RCAF PILOT IN 'MIRACLE' LANDING

Section of Giant Plane Blows Out in Mid-Air

BORDEN, Sask. (CP) — Lady Luck must have been hitching a ride aboard an RCAF four-engined Hercules C-130B transport flying from Edmonton to Rivers, Man., Friday.

The four crewmen of the giant transport walked away from the aircraft after pilot Flt. Lt. John Moore of Rivers nursed his badly damaged machine into a farmer's stubble field about seven miles north of here. Borden is 30 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

Flt. Lt. Moore made the forced landing after a large section of the left side of the fuselage blew out at an altitude of 25,000 feet about 100 miles west of where the aircraft landed.

The section which blew out was about eight feet wide and extended almost half-way round the fuselage. As the section blew out, it destroyed many of the flight controls and engine control linkages in the top of the fuselage. Power on three of the four turbo-prop engines failed and was drastically reduced in the fourth.

However, there was no explosion and fire aboard the aircraft. None of the crew was injured.

The aircraft was on a ferry flight from Namao air base near Edmonton to Rivers when the accident happened.

One of the crew, Cpl. Marc Champagne, also of Rivers, was sitting near the section of the fuselage when it blew out and was nearly sucked out of the cabin by the blast of air rushing out.

The cabin of the transport was pressurized and the crew had to switch to emergency oxygen immediately.

The pilot brought the transport into a mile-long stubble field on the farm of Mike Hunchak in what appeared to be a perfect landing.

SKIDS 1,500 FEET

The aircraft skidded down the field for about 1,500 feet.

The tips of the four propellers were damaged from striking pieces of the section of the fuselage as it flew out of the aircraft.

There was a large hole in the top of the inboard right engine cowling and another between the two engines on the right side.

Pilot Moore made a "wheels up" landing and the underside of the fuselage was torn and wrinkled from the skid down the field.

There were no indications how or when the plane might be removed from the field.

Clive Wensley, who farms about six miles west of the scene, said his young son came running into the house saying an airplane was going to crash.

"I thought he was just fooling," Mr. Wensley said.

The RCAF has convened a board of inquiry to investigate the cause.

REPORT SAYS PAIR CLINGING TO BOAT

Rescue boats were scouring the waters north of Ten Mile Point at noon today following a report that an aluminum boat had overturned.

T. W. L. Butters, 2140 Wenman Drive, telephoned Saanich police after he looked from his window and saw a flash about two miles offshore which he thought could have been an aluminum boat overturning.

One report was that two persons were observed clinging to the sides of the boat.

Two Air-Sea Rescue boats and a boat from Oak Bay Marina had found nothing at press time.

MID-AUGUST ELECTION IN VIET NAM LIKELY

SAIGON (CP)—South Viet Nam's military government has tentatively agreed to hold general elections for a civilian administration in mid-August, usually reliable sources said today.

The agreement in principle was reported to have been reached in private talks between Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and delegates from the national political congress.

This date would be about a month earlier than the deadline set in a government decree signed two days ago in the face of mounting Buddhist pressure. The decree fixed a time limit of three to five months.

Saigon was quiet today after Friday's announcement that the Buddhist church was calling off its agitation in view of the government concessions.

But in Da Nang, about 3,000 demonstrators took to the streets and demanded that Ky's military government give way to civilian rule in South Viet Nam.

LOYALTY TO CBC QUESTIONED

Two Stars Dropped From Top TV Show

TORONTO (CP) — The hosts of the CBC's controversial public affairs program This Hour Has Seven Days said Friday night the CBC told them they are being dropped from the show because their loyalty is in question.

(The Star says there is a possibility of a strike by producers over the matter. It reports that the executive of the Producers' Association has scheduled a meeting today with key figures in the program and has indicated a membership meeting likely will be called this weekend.)

The CBC said Friday the Seven Days program will continue next fall but Patrick Watson is not likely to be involved in it. The contract of co-host Laurier LaPierre, a McGill University professor and part-time broadcaster, expires in May and Mr. LaPierre said he has been told it will not be renewed.

The CBC said: "It is expected that Mr. Watson will play a ma-

NDP IN B.C. AGAIN FACES MONEY CRISIS

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —The B.C. New Democratic Party has once again found itself in a precarious financial predicament.

"It's a case of the poor getting poorer," Clive Lytle, the party's provincial organizer, said here Friday. "We didn't even have the money to prepare the materials to raise some money."

Mr. Lytle told delegates to the party's annual convention it is evident that stabilization of party finances is a prerequisite to building an effective organization throughout the province.

The party's financial statement shows assets of $30,619 for 1965 and liabilities of $35,480 for a deficit of $4,861.

NATO Allies Study Future French Role

Working Body Formed

BONN (AP)—The United States, Britain and West Germany today set up a new body to deal with the French withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's integrated military structure.

It will consist of the No. 2 man in the West German foreign ministry, Karl Carstens, and the U.S. and British ambassadors in Bonn—George C. McGhee and Sir Frank Roberts.

The agreement was announced after two days of talks in the Bonn foreign ministry on the future of French forces in West Germany.

The new body's purpose, the announcement said, will be to continue the exchange of opinions.

"Recommendations of the working group," the three nations announced, "will be the object of further consultations among the NATO powers which received the French memorandum."

JOINT STATEMENT

The joint statement said the discussion during the last two days had been on "the political, military and legal questions arising out of the announcement of the French government that French troops in the Federal Republic (of West Germany) are to be withdrawn from NATO command."

Other member states had been informed of the talks, it added, and the participants were convinced that they had made a useful contribution to further consultations among NATO members. The statement did not say anything about the conditions under which France should be allowed to keep its troops in West Germany.

By order of President de Gaulle of France, the two French divisions and two air squadrons in southwest West Germany will be withdrawn from joint Allied command July 1. They will no longer have even limited access to American or British nuclear weapons.

The French want to keep their forces, whose strength they put at 72,000 men, under their own command. West Germany dislikes this because it looks like a return to the post-Second World War occupation regime.

TENSION IN IRELAND

Bullets Rake MP's House

BELFAST (Reuters) — Extremists fired bullets into a member of Parliament's home here early today as Northern Ireland braced itself for an explosive weekend during celebrations of the 50th anniversary of the Irish Rebellion.

Armed police patrols launched a massive security clampdown to stop members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army crossing from the Irish Republic into Northern Ireland, part of the United Kingdom.

Authorities fear violence from IRA forces—pledged to uniting divided Ireland—during a big republican parade here Sunday commemorating the rebellion, which led to southern independence from Britain.

South of the border, Irish Republican police investigated a mysterious explosion that rocked the village of Inistioge in south Kilkenny.

The explosion and five shots were heard while a dance was being held in the town hall following an Easter Rising commemoration parade.

Two bullets shattered windows in the Belfast home of John M'Quade, a member of Northern Ireland's ruling Unionist party whose policy is to keep the province under British rule. M'Quade and his wife were not injured.

Thousands of southern Irishmen expected to flood across the 182-mile border today and Sunday for the celebrations will undergo an intensive check by police.

The government has ordered a temporary cut in rail links with the south to keep out known troublemakers. All trains here from Dublin, the republican capital, are banned for 21 hours from tonight.

Rhodesia Drops Bid for Beira Oil

SALISBURY (CP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today the tanker Ioanna V's 18,000-ton oil cargo will not be pumped into Rhodesia because he does not want to aggravate the difficulties of Portugal and the ship's Greek crew.

In a broadcast, Smith also said Rhodesia will cut all its remaining diplomatic ties with Britain.

The Ioanna V is anchored at Beira in Portuguese Mozambique and the British government has been putting pressure on the Portuguese government to prevent movement of her oil through the pipeline to Rhodesia.

The Beira port authorities put her under the control of Portugal last Thursday after both the Panamanian and Greek governments revoked her registration.

The broadcast was Smith's first formal comment since the arrival of the Ioanna V at Beira 11 days ago raised the Rhodesian independence crisis to a new peak.

Smith admitted that oil aboard the tanker was meant for Rhodesia.

Smith said last week's United Nations Security Council resolution authorizing Britain to use force to halt tankers believed carrying oil for Rhodesia is not valid because two permanent council members—France and the Soviet Union — had abstained from voting.

Before the resolution, a Royal Navy boarding party had tried unsuccessfully to persuade the Ioanna V's captain from docking at Biera.

"By referring the oil embargo to the United Nations, Britain had unwittingly in the process acknowledged Rhodesia's independence," Smith said, adding that Britain's behavior at the United Nations and a "blatant case of espionage" by a member of the British mission in Salisbury had forced his government to cut remaining diplomatic ties with Britain.

The staff of Rhodesia House in London will be recalled and the British mission in Salisbury will be closed, he said. The decision had been taken reluctantly because the two missions could have led to something constructive in the future, he added, not elaborating.

Smith's mention of espionage apparently was a reference to the expulsion from Rhodesia last month of Neville French, the British mission's first secretary, who was accused of spying.

NO INVITATION SENT TO GERDA, SAYS PROBER

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes Mr. Justice Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada as saying that Gerda Munsinger has not been invited to appear before a commission investigating allegations that she was involved with ministers of the Diefenbaker government in a manner creating a security risk.

The newspaper quotes him in an Ottawa story: "We have not in any way attempted to bring Mrs. Munsinger to Canada."

The commissioner was replying to a question based on a rumor that Mrs. Munsinger, whose home is in Munich, West Germany, was to arrive in Canada April 28, the newspaper continued.

"When asked about the rumor, Mr. Justice Spence said he was prepared to answer that no attempt had been made to bring Mrs. Munsinger to Canada, but he went on to suggest that it was no business of the reporter who would or would not be a witness at the inquiry, the Globe said.

"I am becoming increasingly concerned that everybody except the man appointed to do it seems to want to run this inquiry," Mr. Spence said.

The first public hearing of the inquiry will be held Monday but an inquiry spokesman told the Globe Friday the doors may not be open for long.

Force of the impact tore the engine from the late model vehicle.

Daniel was transferred here from Nanaimo General Hospital early Friday morning.

NDP Ready For Election

Strachan Lists Six Reasons Why Socreds Should Be Challenged

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan doesn't want to fight an election this year but is prepared to do so.

"We had always thought that a government with a working majority could provide stable government. But it is now obvious that the Socreds with their majority cannot do so.

"They seem to be psychologically incapable of fulfilling such an important need."

In his annual report to the NDP provincial convention in New Westminster, Mr. Strachan said that during the recent legislative session, Premier Bennett and his cabinet had repeatedly threatened an immediate general election.

"It is little more than two and a half years since the last provincial election was held and, with his effective majority, it would seem that Premier Bennett has no need to call another general election this year."

Mr. Strachan said, however, that the government should be challenged for its "deceptive tax and economic policies,"

"These are encouraging inflation by leading to runaway prices and are reducing purchasing power."

Mr. Strachan laid the planks for his party's next provincial election campaign as follows:

- Labor laws must be changed so that worker and consumers as well as shareholders can share the fruits of economic progress.
- New jobs must be found for British Columbia's young people who are entering the labor force from technical and vocational schools, universities and colleges.
- The government will be challenged for its failure to provide adequate health care and coverage for prescription drugs, ambulance services and chronic care.
- The government will be challenged for its "mishandling" of the Columbia River development and for "misleading" the people about these developments.
- The government will be challenged for its "destructive" parks policy, ignoring the growing pollution of air, land and water and selling-out British Columbia's natural resources.
- The government will be challenged on its "inadequate" child welfare policies, its tax policies, its lack of an agricultural policy and its failure to provide adequate help for the municipalities.

Mr. Strachan paid tribute to Arthur Turner, NDP MLA for Vancouver East, who has announced that, after 25 years' service in the legislature, he will not run in the next provincial election.

Viet Medical Aid Stand Affirmed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Delegates to the annual convention of the provincial New Democratic Party have endorsed the stand of national leader T. C. Douglas in favor of supplying medical aid to civilian war victims in north as well as south Viet Nam.

Delegates voted Friday night to reaffirm support for demands made by NDP members of parliament that the Canadian government supply medical aid to the people of Viet Nam without political discrimination.

Also debated but not acted upon was a resolution calling for a UN peace-keeping force in Viet Nam and recognition of Communist China. The resolution was referred back to the executive for amendments and will be further debated later.

Provincial leader Robert Strachan told the convention that the NDP will fight the next provincial election with good heart, good candidates and good policies. He made it clear that he expects Premier Bennett to call an election this summer or fall, although, he said, there was no need for one.

He accused Premier Bennett's government of encouraging inflation and of deliberately bringing in labor-management legislation which he said creates dissent.

Petition Opposes Sale Of Tot Lot

A petition opposing sale of a "tot lot" on Lugrin Place will be considered by Esquimalt council Monday night.

Residents of the area have protested the proposed sale. The lot is close to site of the new Rockheights Elementary School.

Council planned to team up with the school board to provide better playground facilities on the school grounds.

The tot lot is now "just a vacant lot" with few playground facilities for the youngsters, said Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant.

An application from the Salvation Army for a grant equivalent to business licence fees paid for renting rooms at Matson and Sunset Lodges will also come before council.

A public hearing on proposed increase in off-street parking for Esquimalt apartments will be held at 7 p.m. before the meeting.

jor role in the CBC's production plans for centennial year which will capitalize on his outstanding producing abilities."

But Mr. Watson said in a statement carried on CBC national news Friday night:

"Unfortunately what the (CBC) management has been have said to me.

"Mr. Walker (general manager H. G. Walker) told me that there would be no future association between me and This Hour Has Seven Days . . . because management had questions about my loyalty to the management and my loyalty to the CBC, to national broadcasting and indeed they had questions about my attitude toward my country.

MOVE TO MONTREAL?

"Mr. Walker said that if he were able to resolve in his mind the doubts that he had about me he would be prepared to consider my involvement in a new program to be produced in Montreal which would involve my being moved to Montreal. But if for any reason it turned out that I was not to be involved in the Montreal project there would be no future permanent relationship between me and the CBC."

In a CBC news interview from Montreal Mr. LaPierre said that Doug Leiterman, executive producer of Seven Days, had called him to say "that he had just been informed by the top management of the CBC that my contract with Seven Days could not be renewed for next year.

"He also informed me that the reasons given were that I lacked loyalty to the top management of the CBC and also that I allowed my personal opinions to show on the program."

Egypt Army Plot Smashed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Egyptian authorities have smashed a plot by a group of army officers to overthrow the regime of UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser, diplomatic sources said today.

They said 20 officers had been arrested in Cairo and would be given secret treason trials because of the Nasser government's reluctance to publicly admit opposition within the army.

The officers were reported to have decided to attempt to overthrow the regime because of opposition to Nasser's Yemen policies.

U.S. Trollers Remain in Port

ASTORIA (AP)—A price dispute kept the Columbia River salmon trolling fleet of more than 100 vessels in port Friday as the salmon season opened.

The president of the West Coast Trollers Association, James Green of Warrenton, declined comment on a report from Westport, Wash., that fishermen had rejected a buyers' offer of 62 cents per pound for large springs, 49 cents for mediums, and 37 cents for smalls.

GETTING BACK TO EARTH WILL BE PROBLEM

Russia Discovers Moon Radiation No Bar

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet Union's Luna X space station shows that radiation in near-lunar space is no bar to manned moon flights, it was announced here today.

Professor Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said flights in the vicinity of the moon should be possible, but the most difficult task will be returning the spacecraft through the earth's atmosphere.

Keldysh, giving a press conference on the Luna X which began orbiting the moon 13 days ago, said it is using chemical power sources.

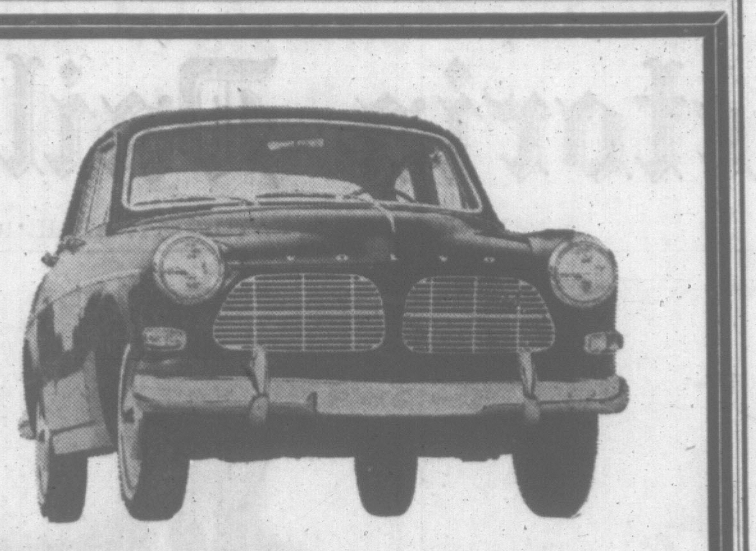
Cosmonauts are studying how to assemble space ships in orbit, he said.

Academician Aleksandr Vinogradov, a noted geochemist, said gamma radiation from the moon's surface is comparable with that of terrestrial granites, but part of this is due not to natural radioactivity but to the interaction of cosmic rays and lunar matter. Such radiation was absent in terrestrial rocks because of the shielding effect of the earth's atmosphere.

The natural radioactivity of lunar rocks was comparable with that of basalt rocks on earth, suggesting that the processes of the formation of the crust of the earth and its planets was similar.

He said Luna X registered 53 hits by meteor particles in five hours and 16 minutes—100 times more than the average in interplanetary space.

Another scientist told the press conference Luna X signalled that the moon had a weak but regular magnetic field.



We Advertise This as the 11-Year Car
Even Our Owners Believe Us

What a manufacturer says about his automobile is one thing. What the owner says about it is often quite another.

We've been saying that Volvo is one tough automobile. As proof, we've been citing the fact that Volvos last an average of 11 years in Sweden where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

A recent survey (honestly conducted) shows that Volvo Canadian owners think this is a well-built car, too. So much so that 94.4% of them recommend Volvos to their friends.

With word-of-mouth like that, you might say, why advertise?

Well, because a lot of people think that quality-built family automobiles tend to be a little stodgy.

Volvos are anything but stodgy. Volvos have won more races and rallies than any compact ever made.

Volvos also happen to run away from every compact in their class and deliver over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

What proof do we offer of that? A test drive.

THREE KILLED IN STORM

Wave Socked Italian Ship With Bang Like Explosion

NEW YORK (AP)—The Italian superliner Michelangelo, battered by a killer wave at sea Tuesday, docked here today.

The sleek, white ship flew her flag at half staff and a giant tarpaulin was strung across her damaged superstructure like a bandage.

The impact of the wave, described as at least 35 feet high, killed two of the ship's 775 passengers. A crew member died the following day from injuries. Also injured were five passengers and seven other crew members.

Nine windows on the ship were boarded up and inside was the debris left by the storm. Broken chairs and tables la, on water-stained carpets and whole sections of ceiling has been ripped loose.

Passengers praised the ship's Italian crew and captain and said there had been no panic aboard when the wave struck.

German novelist Gunter Grass said he was playing cards in a companionway with his wife until the water started to come through.

"Then I knew it was serious," he said. "I went to one of the salons and started waiting like everyone else."

"It felt like an explosion," said Dr. Jay Blaskovich of San Pedro, Calif. "It was rough, I can tell you that."

Dr. Blaskovich said he helped the two Italian ship's doctors on the Michelangelo.

"I did a little minor surgery, a couple of broken legs, broken arms," he said.

Some passengers told of sleeping through the storm. Some lay in their pitching, rolling bed trying to read.

Others told of horrors, strange noises and the crashing of waves like sounds they had never heard before.

A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter Friday removed an injured crewmember Mario Bianchini, and took him to a hospital in Boston where he was said to have suffered a broken femur and skull fracture.

The Michelangelo was en route here from Genoa.

CHINA SPANKS 'HITLER HORDES'

JAKARTA (CP) — China today angrily denounced the sacking of its Jakarta embassy and likened the 2,000 Indonesian Chinese rioters to "Hitlerite hordes."

China handed a protest note to Indonesian Ambassador Djawoto in Peking, the official New China news agency said in Tokyo. The note said that Chinese embassy staff member Chao Hsiao-shou was shot in the chest and seriously wounded during the attack Friday, the agency said.

The protest also charged that the embassy's first secretary, Lu Tzu-po, and four other Chinese officials were beaten up and injured as the attackers rampaged through the embassy compound, smashing windows and burning furniture and papers.

More than a dozen embassy staff members were reported seen early today in Jakarta International Airport on their way to Bangkok, Thailand.

Djawoto announced his resignation today in protest against his government's recent policy toward Peking.

EDITORIAL TOUGH

An editorial in the official Peking People's Daily described Indonesian military leaders as "agents of imperialism" who have called for improved relations with the United States.

"We must warn the Indonesian reactionaries," it says, "that no one can provoke the Chinese people with impunity. The U.S. imperialists confront China with economic blockade, political isolation and military encirclement; and yet we do not care a straw about them, let alone a group of petty thugs as you are!"

During the raid on the embassy, 60 armed Indonesian troops protected about 30 embassy staff members from the mob, but otherwise the troops made little effort to stop the attack.

Reuters news agency quoted an Indonesian army officer as saying a group of embassy staff fired on the demonstrators with machine-guns, wounding three of them. Two others were reported injured by tiles flung from roofs.

Reuters said Jakarta garrison troops fired shots to halt the demonstrators.

CANADA FACES TEST OVER ROLE IN NATO

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—In the current NATO crisis, a hard and delicate test may be shaping up for Canada's apparently developing role as a moderator within NATO between the French and American positions.

Informants say Canada adheres firmly to the U.S. and NATO policy of military integration. But at the same time, External Affairs Minister Martin has said Canada wants to encourage French participation in Western defence to the greatest extent feasible.

He is expected to expand on this theme tonight in a speech at a National Newspaper Awards dinner in Toronto and again Thursday before the Commons external affairs committee.

Canadian officials are upset, but less so than their American counterparts, about France's announced withdrawal from NATO's integrated military commands and its request that NATO bases on her territory—they are all Canadian or American—be vacated.

Informants said Canada wants to maintain and develop good relations with France without at the same time alienating the U.S. A test of this policy may come in the vacating of bases.

DECIDE ON DEADLINE

Canada is expected to accept, after further consultation with its allies, the French deadline of April 1, 1967, for withdrawal from its two military installations in France: the RCAF air division headquarters at Metz and the bomber and transport base at Marville.

The U.S. already has told France it doesn't see how it can meet this deadline. It has some 33,000 military personnel in France compared with Canada's 2,000.

Mr. Martin has said Canada can't outstay its military welcome in France. But, informants said, he doesn't want to put the U.S. in the position of "if Canada can get out on time, why not the U.S.?"

Canada has not yet replied to the March 29 note from France setting the April 1, 1967, date. But it is expected to do so "fairly soon," officials said.

The problem of relocating the two CF-104 Starfighter squadrons at Marville is being studied. Officials said economies will be considered in the shift from Metz and Marville, but without any impairment of this country's contribution to NATO.

There is no intention here that Canada act as a mediator between France and the U.S., one good reason being that it hasn't been asked. Rather, Canada will try to play the role of interpreter as it did for many years between Britain and the U.S.

PM TELLS YOUNG GRITS

'Quite Welcome To Use Needle'

OTTAWA (CP) — This weekend's convention of the Young Liberal Federation of Canada is welcome to use the needle on the Liberal party, Prime Minister Pearson said Friday night.

He asked only that the federation remember needles are for mending tears as well as puncturing skin.

The convention appeared well-launched in both uses of the needle even before Mr. Pearson spoke.

Trade Minister Winters was treated easily in "hot-seat" questioning, but the first sittings of nine Young Liberal policy commissions applied brass tacks to some party matters.

About a dozen delegates discussing party structure considered a proposal to establish control of money and policy in regional "growth centres," wresting power from "an appointive or ruling elite" of Liberals in Ottawa. Another group, tackling the question of political morality, heard some eyebrow-raising figures on party spending.

About 300 of an expected 400 delegates heard Mr. Pearson voice extreme concern for the conduct of parliamentary business. An all-party agreement to allot time for debates was of "utmost importance."

HAS ONLY 29 DAYS

The prime minister said that after the Commons resumes Tuesday, supply, budget and redistribution debates will leave a maximum of only 29 days for 15 pieces of high-priority "social, financial, labor and economic" legislation July 1. The Commons might have to extend sittings into July and August.

He said Commons debate in the 11 weeks before the Easter recess had reached the "lowest point of my official and political career." But in the debate on capital punishment it had reached "almost the top point."

He was staying in political life "as long as health and strength allow" because of his desire to work for national unity.

During his hour in the "hot seat," Mr. Winters was asked about his aspirations to Mr. Pearson's job.

"There's no leadership contest so I'm not a candidate," he replied.

The trade minister had little enthusiasm for the Canada Development Corporation as a government project. He acknowledged a feeling "quite deep" among Western Canadians that they were being neglected by the Liberal party, but the feeling had "no real basis in fact."

SEEKS PRESIDENCY

David Smith of Toronto, one of two candidates campaigning to succeed Michel Robert of Montreal as Young Liberal president, was chairman of the commission on political morality.

He favored government-subsidized election campaigning and publication of all contributions to campaign funds. At present, he said, campaign expenses for a single candidate can run as high as $100,000, but only a fraction of this amount is reported.

A Promising Gesture

WHILE THE PRINCIPLE UNderlying President Johnson's action in inviting an exchange of scientists and students between Red China and the United States is a laudable one, it would be difficult to choose a time at which the proposal had less chance of success than at present.

Several months ago the United States made a similar gesture in giving permission for American doctors and public health officials to visit Red China if invited. A later government offer included United States scholars, and there have been standing offers to exchange newsmen and weather information with the Communist Chinese.

None of these overtures has met with any promising response from Peking. This is hardly surprising. With United States military forces waging war in South Viet Nam with the announced objective of thwarting Communist extension southward, with American aircraft bombing Communist North Viet Nam and American warships stationed off the coast, it is small wonder that the Red Chinese are not attracted by an offer to lift immigration restrictions slightly. The scene is not set, to put it mildly, for displays of camaraderie and hands-across-the-sea.

But the sterile outcome of the United States proposals at this particular time should not be permitted to hide the very real change of attitude that is involved in Washington's approaches. It was not long ago that the very mention of Red China was sufficient to close all doors and ears in United States official circles. The only contact between the two countries was by way of highly secret talks conducted from time to time by their representatives in Warsaw, and a very solid U.S. barrier was placed between Red China and any American citizens wishing to visit there.

The latest overtures by President Johnson therefore signify a marked change in attitude and a promising new tack in Washington's diplomatic course. A mingling of medical, educational and journalistic travellers, even on a small scale, could not help but improve the information of each country about the other — and this is a prerequisite for any attempt at international understanding.

Even without any reciprocal action by Peking, the American offers indicate an altered state of mind, and this in itself is a most significant development in view of the implications it holds for encouragement of a future international settlement. The door has been opened a crack. Let us hope that no violent rebuff from Red China will blow it shut again.

A Step Closer to Renewal

VICTORIANS WILL NOTE with satisfaction steps being taken to bring urban renewal closer to realization in the Rose-Blanshard area. Details are now being worked out to translate projects from the drawing board to actual physical improvement and a reasonable hope is held that financing will be available.

The project has been some time in gestation. The original concept involved the conversion of a rundown area into a modern, pleasing and up-to-date locality, with better housing for residents who would be displaced and a substantial advance in the amenities of this older part of town.

As a preliminary, work has been done on Rose Street, and high priority given, in public opinion at least, to the replacement of the old North Ward School, long a source of concern to the school board and to parents whose children attend the obsolete and badly worn structure.

Once the council has approved details prepared for it by the official planner, it will still be necessary to receive authorization from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation before federal funds are forthcoming to meet 50 per cent of the costs. This is normal procedure and should cause no deep concern. Victoria, moreover, appears to have in hand, or readily available, the sums that will be required from it toward the expense of the scheme; and a wealthy province can be counted upon to meet its 25 per cent obligations.

Victoria is late in moving into this type of urban renewal. The original report from the Capital Region Planning Board was submitted at the end of 1961. During the intervening years, Vancouver has undertaken work of a similar nature on an imposing scale. Now the capital, already brightened by its Centennial Square and other projects, appears ready to move into the Hillside area, taking welcome action which will help to preserve the development momentum so noticeable in recent years.

Concern for the Victim

A COMMITTEE OF THE LAW Society in Britain has produced a suggestion which merits consideration in this part of the world. The plan would make convicted thieves "criminal bankrupts" so that they and their families would not benefit from crime.

Presumably it would have the more positive effect of making restitution to victims to a degree scarcely possible at this time.

The Canadian Criminal Code does, of course, go part way toward this objective. It empowers the court to order a convicted person to restore goods he has stolen to their legal owner. Other sections provide for compensation to the injured and for repayment to the person who innocently buys property after a theft and is required to give it up to the person from whom it was taken.

The problem in such matters arises when the thief steals money which cannot be identified.

The British suggestion proposes a remedy, presumably with safeguards for the innocent family of a thief who may have withheld the proceeds of his crime from its members.

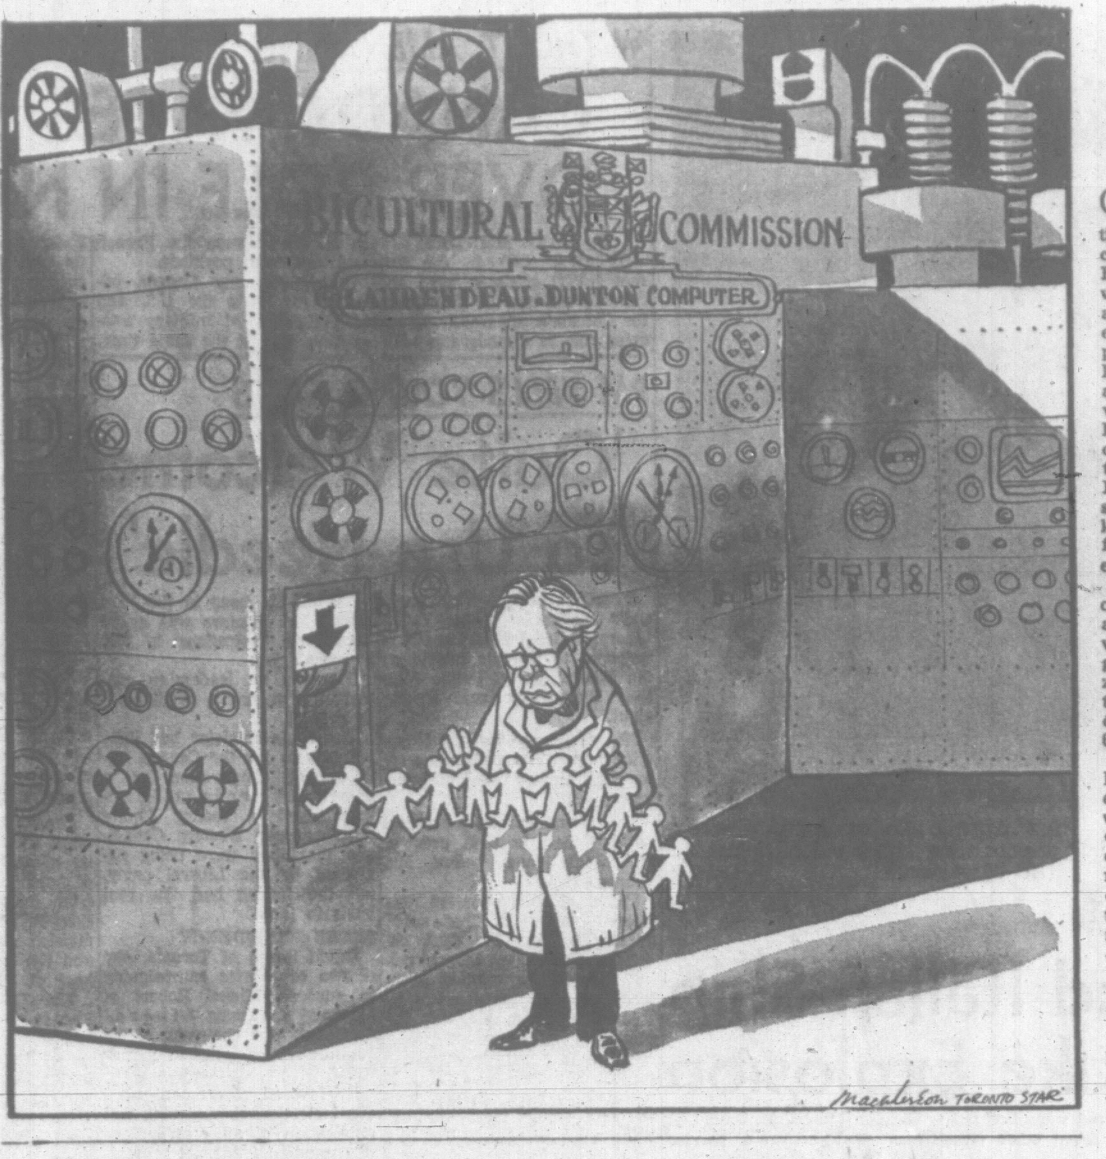
In recent years advanced penology has concerned itself with efforts to rehabilitate offenders. At the same time, in a general preoccupation with this concern, it is valuable to draw attention to the other element involved — the law-abiding citizen who suffers from crime and frequently receives little if any redress.

A Gracious Bilingualism

MR. RENE LECAVALIER OF Montreal is a hockey broadcaster on the CBC French radio and television networks, better known in Eastern Canada than this far west. But if most people in this part of the country were unfamiliar with his name, at least those who watched Thursday evening's hockey intermission program from Toronto have reason to know him — and think well of him even if they are English-speaking listeners unaware of his abilities in his chosen field.

Mr. Lecavalier was selected for the special award given for excellence in sports broadcasting in Canada. He appeared on the hockey television program to receive congratulations and to express in English his appreciation of the honor accorded him.

His modesty, his general disposition, his fluency in English and his capacity to project a personality of unusual appeal came through very clearly. As a sample of bilingualism in gracious form, he leaves us with a small demand. Let's have more of the same.



Riddle In An Enigma

By MAURICE WESTERN
From Ottawa

ON the evidence of some recent correspondence in eastern newspapers, the PR boys still face a considerable challenge in selling Expo 67 to a waiting world. While Expo is a household word for every Canadian taxpayer, it is apparently not one which automatically conveys meaning even to literate persons in other countries. Until the secret history of Expo is written, some years hence, we shall probably not know the identity of the patriot who first sold the name to a grateful government.

Western

We may surmise that it first flashed on his mind in a moment of inspiration as he sat quietly in his living room watching a soap commercial. He grasped immediately that it possessed a zip altogether lacking in such shopworn terms as exhibition and exposition; in combination with the sacred numerals 67, its impact was irresistible.

It is disturbing at this late hour to learn that there are Europeans (perhaps even Americans in remoter hamlets) to whom it still sounds like a detergent, or an improved carburetor, or a soft drink or practically anything. Even the numerals, it seems, are an uncertain clue. One cannot foresee everything but the fact, now recognized, is that beginning next January it will be 1967 not only in Canada but everywhere.

Almost Treason

There was a time, before the PR boys rescued us from meaningful English, when it was permissible to speak of the Montreal World's Fair. This is now considered almost treason, partly because the New York Fair lost its shirt, and partly because geographical identification somehow suggests that the Fair means more to Montreal than it does, say, to Pinkie or Kananaskis. As we know (see any item of Expo literature) it is an all-Canadian endeavor; the money pipeline has to end somewhere and it is purely fortuitous that it ends where landing rights have been concentrated by successive governments.

As the all-Canadian aspects of Expo have been, perhaps, more clearly discernible to Montrealers than to any other Canadians, it is disheartening to read now that there are persons abroad who have failed not merely to grasp what Expo is but also where it is. Even the zipless, pre-PR title would have conveyed nothing. It might, according to one writer, "mean a show in Granby, or some insignificant affair in the sticks." (Granby is a pleasant centre, known chiefly for its zoo.)

Fortunately, we have in the Expo organization an assemblage of PR talent unexceeded, numerically speaking, since the days of Mr. Barnum. Having got us into this peculiar situation, they will no doubt have plans aplenty for getting us out. The problem is at least definable; it is, first of all, to eradicate erroneous notions, such as the idea that Expo is a cleaning fluid and, secondly, to identify it with Montreal while avoiding implications of regionalism which (in the present state of the pipeline) Montreal would certainly deplore.

We can all console ourselves, as we wait breathlessly for the answer, by reflecting on the good fortune which has made us hosts to Expo 67 instead of patrons (removed perhaps in space but not in taxes) of a show with such an uninspiring and commonplace title as Montreal World's Fair.

INSIDERS AND OUTSIDERS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Messages on the Fences

CERTAIN events on the coast of British Columbia have been widely reported and photographed by the nation's press but seriously misunderstood. This is a pity. For the recent odd spectacle in Vancouver and Victoria is a vivid microcosm of mankind. If we could understand its significance we might begin to understand what is wrong with the world, also what is right. The government of British Columbia, understanding neither, erects high wooden fences around the Vancouver Court House, during secret repairs to the grounds, and around the steel skeleton of a new museum at Victoria. Immediately a strange thing happens, or rather a thing which actually is not strange at all but quite natural; indeed, the most hopeful thing seen in Canada for a long time, a local return to sanity.

Hutchison

Artists, professional and amateur, expert and clumsy, rush in to paint pictures on the fences, without hope of monetary reward. Unconsciously they are painting a parable of these times, a protest against the authority of the state behind the fence and against their own follies.

Immortal Hangings

They cannot reach, they cannot even see, the state through the fence but at least they can picture their discontent and their immortal longings. They feel better for this catharis. They go home tired, happy and sane.

Thousands of other people, unable to paint, stop and ponder the paintings, stall the traffic and peer through the cracks at the symbol of the state on the other side. What goes on in there? It is a vital question, perhaps the largest of our era.

Ostensibly the Vancouver Court House is inhabited by judges, lawyers and clerks, fingering their musty documents, arguing their endless cases, enforcing the will be the state. In Victoria the museum, when complete, will contain dead woodland creatures stuffed in crude semblance of life, the noble elk, moose, bears and wolves that once prowled the wilderness and now observe, with sightless glass eyes, the tourists who will never see them alive.

Something Real

But there is more to it than that. Neither the disembodied state at Vancouver nor the caricature of nature at Victoria can satisfy the painters and the spectators. They want something real. Where can they find it?

Certainly not in the state which has achieved ever-increasing power over men but cannot reach their inner reality, the true centre of things. Much more reality will be seen in the fence pictures than in the whole state apparatus, even at its Ottawa pinnacle. Could anything be more unreal than the current dismal nightmare of the Canadian Parliament?

The artists turn therefore to the fence and daub upon it their private testimony to truths far beyond the grasp of the anonymous state. The spectators, more sagacious than any government, know instinctively that the fence represents the dilemma of their kind everywhere—the fence dividing the insiders from the outsiders, the powerful from the men who have surrendered their power, stage by stage, and now wonder how they mislaid it.

Big Forces

We live in a world of big fences, most of them blank and lacking the touch of the painter's brush or any trace of humanity, a world with every technique of communication and yet unable to communicate between men.

The visible fences at Vancouver and Victoria are high enough in all conscience to protect the state from the people, though not the people from the state, but higher still is the invisble fence between the Western and the several Communist and neutral worlds, higher than the Great Wall of China.

Thus the Communists gape through the cracks at us and we gape back at them as if two separate species, two different forms of life, stood on either side of the fence. Big fences between nations, little fences within nations, imprison us all and the most we can do is to paint our visions of a better world on the boards.

These tokens vary from region to region. In Asia and Africa the fences are smeared with such legends as "Yanks Go Home," in America with "God Is Dead," meaning very little. But when a man paints an actual picture of something beautiful, however badly he paints it, his picture is full of meaning and instantly arrests the public eye.

If you think about it for a moment the meaning becomes quite clear. The swarming, feverish city of Vancouver and the leisurely old capital of Victoria pause before the fence to realize, of a sudden, that modern society has achieved everything except happiness and guarantees man everything except manhood.

A short century ago the sites of the Court House and the museum were virgin jungle and our grandfathers toiled among the trees to build the first log cabins, without time to worry about their society, almost unaware that it existed.

They were dealing with reality, not shadows, assuredly not with the awesome shadow of the state. They were ignorant, primitive and overworked but they were free of our doubts and tortures. They needed no psychiatrists to cure their minds, no royal commissions to study their morals, no pictures painted by other men because they made their own. And their gods were not dead.

Somehow their pleasure and satisfaction in simple toil have been dropped in the march of progress, thereby raising the supreme question of our mechanical culture—namely whether man can ever live happily, or live at all, if he is not allowed to create something with his own hands, gripping an axe or a paint brush.

The crowds on the sidewalk unwittingly answer that question, in the negative. They know that urban man, amid all his towering steel and concrete, has lost the wilderness and has not found the magic city of his dream. It is there, somewhere, behind the fence but will not be found in the state which built the fence to keep its power inside and man outside. It will be found, if it is ever found, by the artists who can paint their fragments of reality and the spectators who may be able, some day, to put them together.

FROM LONDON

By MARTIN DEWEY

Anti: And a Long Afternoon in the Square

IT IS now as official as such things can ever be. Bomb-hating is out: Cop-hating is in: Unilateral disarmament is no longer respectable: Pentagon-hating is all the rage. This cataclysmic bit of news is reported on the authority of the 15,000 or so shaggy demonstrators who poured into Trafalgar Square Monday afternoon for this year's Easter rally in support of the campaign for nuclear disarmament. Whatever the demonstrators were trying to prove soon was lost amid the shouting and the jostling and the banner-waving and the folk-singing. What they did prove, however, was that young Britain is as fickle about its hatreds as its hair styles.

Dewey

Eight years ago, when the country's liveliest outdoor show was first organized—half a life-time ago for most of the demonstrators—the bomb was the only thing in the world worth hating. This year, it was President Johnson, anyone who had ever been within a literal stone's throw of the Pentagon or the British foreign office, Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Ian Smith of Rhodesia and the London police—roughly in that order.

To take part in the new-style Easter rally you are no longer required to know the difference between the CND symbol and an advertisement for Mercedes cars. The only requirement is that you be mad enough about something—anything—to spend a long afternoon jammed hairy cheek to acned jowl into the open space between Canada House and South Africa House.

Your credentials are all the more convincing if you are among the roughly 5,000 "genuine" demonstrators who have taken part in the three-day march to Trafalgar Square across a bewildered and largely unsympathetic English countryside. Next best is to turn up as grubby and rumpled as if you had in fact taken part. Of course, it is no good protesting if no one knows what you are protesting about. You need a banner, ideally about 10 feet long and attached to bamboo poles.

Lapel Buttons

Lapel buttons help too, and there is no end of variety: Make Life, Not War . . . Hands Off Viet Nam . . . Unite Against The War Lords . . . Young Communists for Peace. A home-made placard is also acceptable, and even if you happen to be a 15-year-old schoolgirl from East Cheam it is quite in order for you to carry one proclaiming that you will burn any call-up notifications that might be sent to you by the U.S. draft board.

But you needn't restrict yourself to such modest protests. You can carry a feminist banner, as one rather out-of-touch lady did on Monday, or an announcement that the end draweth near, as one man did. You can shout "Sieg Heil" at the most civilized policemen in the world, as many did throughout the afternoon, and you can earn a roar of applause by snatching a blue helmet and tossing it into one of the square's fountains. You can also get arrested for it, as several did, but your accolade is only the more fervent for that.

Naturally even demonstrators have their pecking order and this year, as in years past, the aristocrats of protest were the roughly 500 anarchists who had formed themselves up under black and red banners within easy jeering distance of the speaker's platform. Since they were against everybody and everything—especially the CND rally itself—other demonstrators who were merely against, say, the U.S. state department, tended to look rather weak-kneed by comparison.

Pecking Order

Next in line in the pecking order came Americans. None of the left-wing Labor MPs on the platform commanded anything like the rapt attention of Staughton Lynd, the globe-trotting assistant professor from Yale University. When he denounced U.S. atrocities in Viet Nam it was as if a member of the Vatican Curia were letting loose at the doctrine of papal infallibility.

And during the musical turns, even the most plucked-out protest song drew storms of applause so long as the singer was from "over there" and managed to sound at least a little like Bob Dylan.

All in all, it was a great day for the "right" Americans. It was even a great day for the Irish, who managed to get in several plugs for the I.R.A. and the Easter uprising of 50 years ago. But most of all it was a great day for every young Briton who doesn't particularly care for the way the world is being run.

The only people who can't have been pleased by this year's Easter rally, ironically enough, were its organizers. To the CND officials who hovered on the edges of the tumult like so many worried hens, it must have been painfully clear that this was no longer "their" show. The monster had got out of hand. What was once a dead-serious annual protest against a single specified evil had degenerated into an orgy of protest for its own sake—part political demonstration, part brawl, part folk festival. Unfortunately, the bomb had got lost in the scuffle.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

OUT along the rocky shore by Point-No-Point where the breakers roll in from the Pacific one can see many fascinating things.

Here the black twinberry is now in bloom with the long, pendant, yellow twin flowers. Later they will produce shiny black berries with a reddish cape.

The shrub generally grows with the osier dogwood and the salmonberry, while underfoot will be an abundance of cow parsnip.

On the rocky knolls you can find the thrift or sea-lavender with its compact clump of needle-like leaves and the pink head of tiny flowers.

Scattered along the shore is the Sitka alder, a small shrub-like tree that usually sprawls and sends up many branches, and rarely grows over thirty feet in height.

The leaves can be distinguished from the red alder by the fine, sharp teeth which look like a fringe, the crooked limbs are a form of protection against the heavy snow of winter, as they will bend and spring back when the weight is lifted.

Down on the beach where the rocks are hard, and smoothed by the constant wave action, one can find some excellent glacier scores.

In the crevices are large numbers of blue mussels in clusters, hanging by the tough threads produced by the animal's foot.

There are also many clumps of the gooseneck barnacles which hang on the rock face. Look closely at this animal and see the many plates that make up the protective shell. The blackish necks are really stalks that hold the animals against the surge of the waves.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

Embattled Premier Nguyen Cao Ky survived the week, but paid a stiff price to keep South Viet Nam's militant Buddhists at bay.

As pressure mounted steadily on his regime Ky backed down and promised elections for a new civilian government will be held within five months.

An emergency political congress called by Ky to deal with the civil unrest was boycotted by Buddhist leaders, but almost all of their demands were met.

The junta was compelled to pledge that anyone taking part in anti-government demonstrations would not be punished.

Despite the success of their drive, the Buddhists indicated they may press now for Ky's immediate removal while elections are prepared.

And Ky hinted at more strife ahead with his warning that unless the new civilian government continues the fight against the Viet Cong, "I will not hesitate to overthrow it."

The demonstrations have been strongly anti-American and it is believed that if the Buddhists dominate the new government they may open negotiations with the Communists and ask the U.S. to pull out.

The fighting in South Viet Nam has slackened off during the civil strife but U.S. B-52 bombers from Guam raided North Viet Nam for the first time and blocked off a key mountain pass with a massive attack.

Ky, meanwhile, disclosed that he has advised the U.S. that it must be prepared to open an attack on China if it is to win the Viet Nam war.

The U.S. was reported however to have launched a new diplomatic drive to ease relations with the Chinese. The state department confirmed that it now will allow U.S. universities to invite Chinese scientists and scholars.

An international cat-and-mouse game involving two tankers suspected of trying to break the Rhodesia oil embargo continued off the southeast coast of Africa.

Britain was armed with a new mandate from the United Nations to use force if necessary to make the boycott effective.

The tanker Ioanna V, disowned by both Greece and Panama, lay docked at the Portuguese Mozambique port of Beira, the terminus of an 189-mile oil pipeline to Rhodesia. She has 18,000 tons of oil aboard.

There was more sparring between the U.S. and France over President Charles de Gaulle's decision to quit NATO. The U.S. rejected de Gaulle's deadline of one year for removal of American troops from France and said the operation would take at least two years.

At the same time the state department warned France that it would not have access to U.S. nuclear weapons stockpiled in West Germany if her forces are withdrawn from the NATO integrated military command.

Opening a foreign policy debate in the French National Assembly, Premier Georges Pompidou said France will remain a loyal friend of the U.S. and believes the NATO withdrawal is in the best interests of the Atlantic Alliance.

Pompidou said France will not form any rival alliances with the Soviet Union or China.

De Gaulle's purpose in ending the military pact, he said, was simply a desire to restore control to France of everything that belonged to it. The existence of NATO is helping perpetuate the cold war, Pompidou added.

Liberal Leadership Battle Continuing Under the Surface

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—For all that leading Liberals piously maintain they're not expecting any vacancy at the top, it's readily apparent in Ottawa these days that the race for the party's leadership is still on. It's simply gone underground.

Potential successors to Lester Pearson still have agents fanning out across the country, making the kind of discreet contacts that precede an organized campaign.

Newman

Determining who is or isn't a candidate takes an expert eye, since none of them dare sport "I Love Me" buttons. Observers are forced to look for the tipoff to something as unsubtle as a sudden anxiety to learn Canada's third official language: election French. (Mitchell Sharp begins a Berlitz course next Monday; Robert Winters has taken some lessons, plans more. The impressive attache case Paul Hellyer carries contains, not NATO war plans, but a tape-recorder on which he matches his French pronunciation against pre-recorded samples of suave Gallicisms.)

The activities of these and other presumed candidates are more precautionary than conspiratorial. None of them is attempting to create any subterranean groundswell against Lester Pearson, but there's no question that it exists.

Loyalty Varies

The loyalty Pearson commands varies widely. This isn't surprising when you consider the fact that Canada's Liberal party is really made up of four groups — the parliamentary caucus, the Quebec organization, the Toronto power clique and Liberals from the rest of the country.

The prime minister's stock is probably highest in French Canada, where he is recognized as a sympathetic figure most likely to advance the causes of bilingualism and provincial rights. Pearson's success in attracting Jean Marchand, Pierre-Elliot Trudeau and Gerard Pelletier to Ottawa has won him credit which will be re-enforced with the well-deserved promotions expected for Trudeau and Pelletier this summer.

At the same time, the prestige Pearson has always enjoyed with his parliamentary group as a whole is beginning to wane. Most caucus members want him to stay on, because with no natural successor in sight, they fear his sudden departure would precipitate a damaging internal power struggle. But they also are aware that the party which gets a new leader first will have a six-months head start. Ironically, the more confident Liberals become that the Munsinger probe is going to fatally damage John Diefenbaker's prestige, the more they question Pearson's long-term position.

Impatient

The most impatient Liberals are the Toronto activists who brought Pearson to power in the first place. Many of them regard the party's policy meeting planned for October as a fortuitous juxtaposition of a party need with a party mechanism and are still hoping it will turn into a leadership convention.

"The Spencer-Munsinger episodes," says one leading Toronto Liberal, "lost Mr. Pearson whatever credit he had left in the party's bank. The feeling is that he's on a downward slope and he can't get any better, he can only get worse. So for the sake of the party and really for his own sake, he should go."

Outside the tight circles of Ottawa, Quebec and Toronto, particularly in the Prairies and Maritimes where Pearson has never had a very strong hold, party people are confronted for the first time with the choice they're going to have to make on his successor.

Paul Hellyer seems to be a favorite in B.C., Robert Winters is continuing to gain strength in the Prairies and Paul Martin is a significant candidate in rural Ontario. Mitchell Sharp's performance in finance is adding to his growing band of devotees across the country.

PAUL HELLYER
. . . B.C. favorite?

In terms of disposable power inside the party, the man to watch is Walter Gordon. He's still the only candidate who can make things happen in an organizational sense even though Keith Davey and his other satraps have departed. Gordon is holidaying in Italy, working on a series of speeches he plans to deliver across the country in May which will expand on the policies of economic nationalism outlined in his new book — "Choice for Canada: Independence or Colonial Status" — due to be published May 7.

Dark Horses

John Turner and Joe Greene are the two young Liberals who continue to attract attention as dark horse candidates, But at this state it's hard to guess what kind of support they might command. Although there's a growing feeling among Liberals, both in and out of Quebec, that the next leader should not be a French-Canadian, an impressive win in his provincial election could make Jean Lesage a formidable contender, provided he wants the federal crown.

Meanwhile there's no question that time is fast running out both for Lester Pearson and John Diefenbaker. Liberals and Conservatives have drawn the conclusion that as long as the two men remain, they are condemning the nation to a series of minority governments.

This is a deadlock which must be broken. Canada can't afford to "dally with Dief." or "linger with Lester" very much longer.

Does Canada Do Enough For Scientific Research?

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Scientific research, a government official commented sagely, is like motherhood. It's sacrosanct. Everybody's in favor of it. And of all the fields in which scientific research is conducted none is more favored than medicine.

Waring

Item: "All that governments of Canada have done to support medical research has been completely inadequate" — David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North).

Item: "Last year U.S. federal assistance amounted to $1,300 millions, while Canadian federal assistance to medical school research amounted to approximately $15 millions"—Heward Grafftey (PC—Brome-Missisquoi, Que.).

Item: Canada is "spending about 75 cents per capita for medical research, whereas in the U.S. a single agency, the National Institute of Health, spent about $5.35 per capita last year" — H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West).

Item: The federal government "must increase by a great deal the amount of money" it provides for medical research—Dr. H. C. Harley (Lib.—Halton, Ont.), chairman of the Commons committee on health and welfare.

Item: The government "is concerned about" the situation—Industry Minister C. M. Drury, who is the cabinet minister responsible to Parliament for the federal government's part in scientific research.

Does the government not do enough to support our Canadian scientists whose work in medical laboratories produced insulin, and who are making notable advances in knowledge of endocrinology, angiotensine, and the structure, functions and diseases of the brain? If not, how much is enough? Can there ever be enough?

The answers to all of these questions hinge on how high we set our sights. But in comparison with concern voiced in the Commons in recent weeks, federal officials closely associated with government support for medical research are fairly satisfied with the 1966-67 program. This year they have about $21 millions to disburse in aid of medical research projects outside the agencies of government. One of them said this amount is all they believe they can usefully spend this year.

The $21 millions figure mainly comprises $15.35 millions to be disbursed by the Medical Research Council, $4.5 millions by the department of national health and welfare, $455,000 by the department of veterans' affairs, and $450,000 by the Defence Research Board.

If one adds the financial contributions of voluntary organizations like the Canadian Heart Foundation, the figure goes up to about $28 millions. On top of that, there are other millions spent by the government, universities, hospitals and industry on their own medical research projects. The drug industry alone spent $7.5 millions on research and development in Canada in 1964. Thus the total from all Canadian sources may well be $40 millions this year, or more than $2 per capita of population.

* * *

But in computing Canada's medical research activity, one must also add research financed by contributions from abroad, especially from the U.S. Mr. Orlikow put evidence before the Commons that 65 leading medical research workers get half of their operating funds from the U.S.

However, a reduction in U.S. funds available for Canadian research is believed imminent. The National Institute of Health already has issued such a warning. And so it appears that Canadian medical research will need more Canadian financing just to maintain programs at present levels.

Sure, I Ought to Retrain, But It's Easier to Talk About It

By ART STOTT

"WHEN," I asked the lady, "are you going to wear those nifty pumps you learned to make at night school?"

"When the proper occasion arises," she replied.

Stott

"And when will you wear the dress of the same material that you also learned to make at night school," I persisted.

"When the proper occasion for that arises, also," she said.

I switched the subject but stayed with the theme.

"When are you going to cover the cushions on the chesterfield you learned to rebuild at night school?"

"When the spirit moves me, when I have time and when the occasion arises," she replied.

"And since you have done all this work in adult education classes, have become so adept, when are you going to reline my sports jacket?"

"Please refer to answers 1, 2 and 3 in form above," she replied, looking up from my income tax returns on which she was working. Then she laid aside her ballpoint and turned on me a look more of pain than exasperation and asked: "Is your interrogation over?"

I said it was.

"Sit still," she said. "I have a few questions of my own to ask." She began with a logical preamble:

"You have been mightily interested in the courses I have taken in adult education."

"Yes," I told her. "Very proud of you. You're adding to your accomplishments each year and I think it makes you a better Canadian."

"Hah!" she said. "You think it makes me a better Canadian. What you mean is that what I've learned has saved you a lot of money on the clothes I make for my own use and the things I've built for the house. But let me remind you that each year, when the adult education syllabus comes out, we go over it and we agree that there are courses which might make you a little more competent as a producer or a person—a better Canadian in fact. You always concur.

"And what do you do about it? You do exactly what you've been doing for the last 25 years. You agree and concur, but somehow you never get around to taking them.

"Now it seems to me," she continued, "that you keep talking about, and writing about, the need for today's workers and tomorrow's employees to retrain for new jobs in the course of their lifetimes. To do this, you say, people have to continue their education long after they've left school. You prepare for another occupation while their own is growing obsolete. Then, when the time comes, they step from one to the other. Am I right?"

I told her she was.

"Why then," she asked, "do you keep preaching but not practising?"

"Well," I explained, "I've already picked out my next vocation, but there doesn't seem to be a course in the syllabus covering it."

"Oh," she said, "tell me more. What are you going to be if you're job folds up?"

"I had it in mind," I replied, "to become a wine-tester."

"Hah!" she said again, and she can say "hah" as if it were a profanity. "A wine-tester, no less, hah! How long, how many years, do you think it would take you to learn that wine-testers only take the stuff in their mouths, roll it 'round their tongues and spit it out? Y' hear me? Spit it out. I can see you now, coming home in the forenoon of your first day on the new job, an employee on each side for support while you mumble the Whiffenpoof Song. I don't think that's quite the profession you're cut out for, meaning no disrespect, of course."

Then she added in accents of compassion, "No. I think you'd better look at the next syllabus a little harder and do something about education beside talk and write. And stop worrying about when I'm going to wear my new shoes, new dress, reline your sports jacket or finish covering the cushions."

So I stopped worrying.

U.K. Force In Viet Nam Next Move

The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — There is little doubt now the British election is over, the United States government will renew its request for a token British force in Viet Nam.

No one in the Pentagon expects to see British combat troops there, though American officers do suggest that now the confrontation between Indonesia and Malaysia appears to be fading out, there wil be plenty of well-trained British soldiers with experience of the jungle in Southeast Asia.

What senior American officers are hoping for are British engineers. "Surely Britain can do as much as the Australians?" is what is frequently asked.

A favorable moment to raise the subject will be at the end of April when the special or McNamara committee, established to study ways and means of sharing control of nuclear weapons in the NATO alliance, is due to meet in London.

400 Famous Drop-Outs Challenge to Educators

By DOROTHY RICH

WASHINGTON — All children who have school troubles don't grow up to be good for nothing.

The long rolls of school "problems" include distinguished men and women who grew up good for a great deal. Among them are Thomas Mann, Willa Cather, Henry Ford, Isadora Duncan, Rabindranath Tagore, Pearl Buck, Edward Grieg.

That Winston Churchill hated school and Einstein was labelled "dull" has provided consolation to parents and students — and chagrin to teachers — for some time. These men's disastrous school experiences, now almost myths, may be what led Victor and Mildred Goertzel to examine the early lives of some 400 eminent 20th century people for their fascinating study, "Cradles of Eminence" (Little, Brown).

Choosing their subjects by the number of biographical writings done on them, the Goertzels found that these quite different eminent people from all parts of the world had interestingly similar school experiences.

Eighty per cent of the 400 either didn't like school or school didn't like them. Ninety per cent showed early evidence of high intelligence and talent. The group as a whole disliked school but they liked to learn.

At the same time William Saroyan was a terrible school problem, he was reading every book in the public library. Sigrid Undset couldn't stand the school's freedom-curbing discipline.

Gifted youngsters with particular talents resent the school's demand that they scatter their energies, that they become well-rounded in all subjects. The 400 liked teachers who let them go ahead, working unimpeded in their areas of special interest.

But this didn't happen often, and when it didn't, in those days before compulsory education, many gifted children became school dropouts.

They continued their education in specialized apprenticeships and in the informal schooling that went on at home.

Among the school dropouts were the Wright Brothers, Thomas Edison, Pablo Picasso, Dmitri Shostakovich, Marconi, Noel Coward, Mark Twain, Pablo Casals.

Most of the 400 came from business and professional families: There were books at home; their parents tutored them and sometimes in very unconventional ways. Woodrow Wilson wasn't taught to read until he was 11.

Those who stayed in school expressed common types of difficulties. Einstein, thought dull because he was slow of speech, wanted to learn in his own way. He believed examinations with their insistence on memorized facts impeded education which he felt, is based on a "perpetual sense of wonder." He, in fact, had a terrible time passing the usual examinations, as did Puccini and Paul Ehrlich.

Today when formal school-gotten education out of a book and in a class is revered as never before — and "drop out" is a dirty word — we can only wonder what's happening to our present-day Edisons and Einsteins.

Few Canadians Fear Confederation Breakup

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Canadians, with exceptions in Quebec, continue to feel that any disunity in this country is no cause for alarm in Confederation.

A substantial majority of voters (70%) say that regional or provincial differences in Canada will not break up Confederation. Only a small group (13%) view the future of national unity with pessimism.

The question: "Some people say the differences between various parts of Canada are now so great they will never be solved, and that Confederation will break up. Do you agree or not?"

SUDDENLY ... GAG IS A REALITY

By ROBERT J. SERLING
UPI Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON — "Ladies and gentlemen, this is your captain speaking.

"Before taking off, I'd like to acquaint you with a few features about our new jet. On the first level, you'll find the main dining room and directly ahead of it, the cocktail lounge, where the floor show will start as soon as we reach our cruising altitude of 45,000 feet.

"On the second deck, you may wish to have one of our 27 stewardesses take the children to the swimming pool for a brief dip, and then join you in the theatre section which is on deck three.

"For those of you who have already seen the movie, we recommend the bowling alley and tennis court in the rear of deck two. Now if you'll fasten your seat belts, I'll try to get this blankety blank monster off the ground!"

That gag has been floating around the airline industry for years. But now it isn't much of a joke. The day of the "jumbo jets" is around the corner.

Pan American announced this week it has ordered 25 Boeing 747 king-sized jets — capable of carrying 450 passengers — with deliveries starting in the fall of 1969.

And from abroad come reports that Russia is developing a 724-passenger version of its Antonov AN22, at present the world's largest plane. The prototype displayed at the Paris air show last year was 180 feet long and powered by four turboprop engines.

Boeing's 747 will gross 680,000 pounds on takeoff, 170 tons heavier than the biggest jetliner flying today. It will outweigh either the Lockheed or Boeing supersonic transports by 180,000 pounds.

'Cheap' Still Biggest Lure Of Turkey's Attractions

By HAL McCLURE

ISTANBUL (AP)—Turkey is bracing for the biggest invasion since the Crusades.

The modern invaders will be tourists—arriving by auto and train, ship and plane.

Some 500,000 tourists are expected to visit Turkey and spend up to $27,000,000 this year—making 1966 the biggest tourist year yet.

Last year, 300,000 visitors—all but 50,000 of them tourists—came to Turkey, spending $13,300,000.

From the smallest tourist camp to the big luxury hotels here and in Izmir, the Turks are preparing for the onrush.

A swank 300-room hotel overlooking the Bosporus north of Istanbul will open this month.

STILL CHEAP

"Besides scenic beauties, fine weather and the best Roman and Greek ruins in the eastern Mediterranean, Turkey has one great attractions," a tourist official said. "It is still cheap."

Turkey boasts such famous waterways as the Dardanelles (Lord Byron's Hellespont) and the Bosporus Straits. Some of the finest beaches on the Mediterranean can be found on Turkey's southern Turquoise Coast—the new name for the Turkish riviera.

Skin divers plumbing the clear blue Aegean Sea have found old Roman and Greek artifacts.

Turkey is studded with the remains of many ancient civilizations and cultures. A random sampling:

Pergamum, where parchment was invented; Ephesus, the home of Diana where St. Paul preached; Halicarnassus, where King Mausolus' tomb became one of the seven wonders of the world and gave the word "mausoleum" to the language; Gordium, where Alexander the Great cut the famous knot; Tarsus, the home of Paul where Anthony first met Cleopatra.

SOME NOT READY

Unfortunately, in many outlying areas the Turks are not prepared for massive tourist invasion.

Good hotels—or even hotels—and good restaurants are hard to find in many parts of Anatolia (Asian Turkey). Many secondary roads are in poor shape.

The government slowly is trying to improve conditions.

Tourism has been improving in Turkey every year since 1960 when 94,000 visited the country. It slowed during 1964—the year of the Turkish-Greek troubles on Cyprus—but came back strong last year.

"As long as things stay calm on Cyprus, we will be in business," said one tourist official.

Avoid Small Bumps Taking Air Pictures

There are two ways an amateur photographer can take pictures from thousands of feet in the air.

The first method is to parachute with a camera from an aircraft. The second is to take pictures from inside an aircraft.

The second method is preferable, mainly because there is no chance of getting one's neck broken.

Canadian Pacific Airlines has a few hints for the camera bug who wishes to take pictures from the inside of a commercial airliner.

First of all, while flying, do not take movies or snapshots in either color or black and white when haze or smoke make it difficult to see the ground. A small amount of blue haze should not effect pictures too much, although it is advisable to use a haze filter.

To avoid reflection from the windows, hold the camera close to the glass without touching it. Cushion the camera with your body to avoid small bumps. Pictures should be taken from the shady side of the aircraft, which is usually on the left side when flying in an eastward direction, and on the right side while flying west.

For still shots, a shutter speed of at least 1-100 of a second or faster is desirable. Movies should be shot at 32 frames per second.

By following the above suggestions, the tourist can get excellent skyline shots of cities such as Rome, Amsterdam, Hong Kong, Mexico City and other places of interest.

AIR FARE CUT ASKED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian Pacific Airlines has announced it has filed applications with five nations for permission to slash air fares on its South Pacific routes.

Bryan Renwick, vice-president in charge of sales and traffic, said the airline plans to reduce 30-day promotional fares by 40 per cent and regular fares by 20 per cent.

He said CPA believes the key to increasing tourist and business travel between North America and the South Pacific is to lower fares, now the highest in the world per passenger mile.

Mr. Renwick said the new fares will come into effect June 1 if approved by the governments of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Britain on behalf of the crown colony of Fiji, and the United States for flights into Hawaii.

TRAVEL LIGHT FOR FUN

Travel light and you'll have more fun.

That's the advice of Arlene Cary, reservations director of three downtown Chicago motor inns.

"I've seen the fun go out of vacations when people have to struggle with too much heavy luggage," says Miss Cary, who takes a hand helping plan many vacations to Chicago.

"Travel shouldn't be a chore. Your fun should start when you check in, and one of the ways to be sure of having fun is to avoid the pitfall of taking too many things along with you."

Miss Cary offers some tips for packing which she feels will help you to "travel light."

- Eliminate many "just-in-case" items you think you may need but seldom do.
- Do not overload with cosmetics, tissues, toothpaste, soap and other commodities.
- Plan your wardrobe around one or two basic outfits with a variety of matching accessories. You can always add to your wardrobe if you desperately need something.
- Include as many wash-and wear fabrics in your wardrobe as you can . . . especially in men's shirts and shorts, women's blouses and lingerie.
- Take detergent for washing your own shirts, blouses, socks, and other small items. It's often cheaper and more convenient than using a hotel or motel valet service.
- Pack a spot-remover or pads for fast dry cleaning. A small mending kit is also handy.
- Remember that your suitcase will often be standing on edge. Pack heavier items accordingly.
- Carry a small "flight" bag for film, books, slippers, and other items you want to keep handy while your luggage is in the car trunk or airplane baggage compartment.
- Carry along a first-aid kit. Include aspirin, antacids for heartburn or overeating, cold pills or antihistamines, and other items you use often, as well as the prescription for your glasses in case they are broken.
- Make a prepacking list of things you'll need, then try a practice packing session before you leave.

10-Day Tour of Fabled Lands

The trend is northwards to the Yukon and Alaska for vacationers who like their holiday comfort spiced with good old-fashioned adventure this summer.

These are the fabled lands that were once so inaccessible, but which have been for some years served by motor highways, scheduled air lines, steamer and train.

And a new element is now added! Cavalier's 10-day Yugolaska Tours from May 30 through Sept. 9, where the modern leisure-seeker can feast on the living memory of North America's last great frontier.

Flying into Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, the tourist is already in the midst of the gold rush country on his first day of the tour. But this is only the beginning of a memorable journey — by riverboat, coach and train—that takes in Dawson City, the Klondike Gold Fields, the Alaska Highway, beautiful Kluane Lake, the Trail of '98, Skagway, Haines, and Bennett Lake.

The fisherman also gets a fling at some of the most famous fishing spots on the continent, where the Arctic Grayling run mad for a good line, not to mention Yukon Lake Trout and Northern Pike.

Special "optional" fishing trips have been set up for the tours, going off to Couglan Lake, Alligator Lake, and Michi Lake, by float plane.

The entire tour has been designed with a view to giving the traveller a comprehensive perspective of a land that has often baffled the casual visitor with its great variety of scenery, historic interest, and pleasure spots.

The whole tour, including transportation, hotel accommodation and sightseeing has been put together at a cost of $345 plus the tourist's air fare into Whitehorse.

Sanitary Stations For Trailers Needed

The recreational vehicle industry passed a milestone in March with the total number of such vehicles in use topping the million mark for the first time, according to Merrill D. Ormes, executive director of the Travel Trailer Association.

"Sales of recreational vehicles in 1965 continued their steady upsurge to an estimated $362,000,000, representing 234,000 units," he said. "This breaks down to 95,000 travel trailers, 74,000 pick-up coaches, 60,000 camping (tent) trailers and 5,000 miscellaneous vehicles, including motorized homes.

"Estimated 1965 sales were almost triple those of 1961 and the travel trailer volume alone contrasts sharply with the 15,400 units of that type sold as recently as 1956."

The rapid growth of the recreational vehicle industry has created an urgent need for parking areas, sanitary stations and storage space, Ormes explained. The MHMA Travel Trailer Division is working for improvement in all three areas, with top priority going to promotion of additional parking facilities through major government and private groups, he added.

Some inroads have been made in obtaining additional sanitary stations for recreational vehicles, but much remains to be done, Ormes pointed out. Today there are more than 1,500 such facilities in every state except Hawaii, six Canadian provinces and three Mexican states — compared with a single sanitary station just three years ago.

Pacific Fashions Cruise Feature

Three glamorous San Francisco fashion models will sail to the Orient on the P and O-Orient liner Iberia in June to give passengers expert advice on shopping for fashions in Hawaii, Japan and China.

Iberia sails from Vancouver June 22 for California ports, Hawaii and the Orient enroute to the U.K. Canadians with children in school can fly to Hawaii and join the ship there before she sails at midnight July 1.

During the three-week voyage to the Orient, models Jan Gregg Nell Lenderman and Sue Rice will entertain passengers by modelling clothes designed and manufactured in Honolulu, Japan and Hong Kong, ports of call on Iberia's itinerary.

Before each port, there will be previews for passengers of the way local designers have adapted high style to the fabrics and traditions peculiar to their country. The clothes selected for the shipboard fashion show will feature the fabrics and colors of the Pacific — from the subtle "shibui" silks of Japanese kimonos to the Gauguin-like prints of the Hawaiian holukuu.

The three girls will sail from San Francisco June 25, leave the Iberia at Hong Kong July 18, then fly to Sydney to join the Orsova there, returning to San Francisco August 23. The ship will call at Vancouver en-route to San Francisco, August 20-21.

On the return voyage to the West Coast, a special Joseph Magnin run-away-to-sea collection will be shown to first class and tourist passengers.

In addition to a foretaste of what the Pacific's shops have to offer, passengers may also learn make-up and hair-styling tips from the models.

He Gets to Kiss 7,000 Girls a Year . . . And Gets Paid

HONOLULU — Nobody has a better job than Peter Fithian:

He kisses girls for a living. Maybe 5,000 or 6,000 or even 7,000 a year.

Fithian is a six-foot-three-inch, blond bachelor who operates Lei Greeters of Hawaii, a glamorous service that makes a mainlander feel welcome in Hawaii.

Not only does Fithian kiss girls wholesale — he gets paid for it.

It works this way: Say you have a friend or relative or business associate going to Hawaii and want him or her to get the real Aloha treatment. Just call Fithian. He won't kiss the men, naturally — but he does all right by the girls.

He has girl employees who kiss arriving men.

Peter and his gang are everywhere — the airport and ship docks — ready to spread the atmosphere of Hawaii. After planting a kiss on the arriving tourist, they place a lei around the neck — or vice versa. Then they help with the luggage, arrange transportation to a hotel and reconfirm reservations.

"Here in Hawaii," Fithian says, "everyone tries to greet arriving friends with a lei and a kiss. It's an authentic, well-practiced custom."

Sometimes Peter greets and kisses as many as 50 women in a single day. Maybe a timid teen-ager. Maybe a swooning grandmother. It makes no difference.

Peter — he came to Hawaii from the mainland — got the idea for Lei Greeters of Hawaii (that's all the address that's necessary) while working as assistant manager at the Hawaiian Village.

He noticed how forlorn some of the new arrivals looked when they hadn't been met at the dock or the airport.

He puckered up and decided to help out. A real unselfish guy.

New Mame Role To Test Stamina

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Angela Lansbury is limbering like an athlete for another — and, she hopes, more durable — go at Broadway musical comedy.

"I just can't tell yet how much energy I'm going to need," she explains, "so I want to have plenty."

Miss Lansbury, who has romped quite a dramatic gamut over the years, reaches Broadway's Winter Garden May 24 in a show derived from the adventures of that incredible book-play — film heroine, Auntie Mame.

To avoid confusion with all earlier incarnations, the new exhibit is titled Plain Mame. And, the star vows, the portrayal is going to be "completely different" — if she survives.

"The whole thing is being plotted very carefully so I don't have to keep running around out of breath," she says, ticking off an awesome assortment of chores. Besides taking part in 11 songs — a rare number for even an Ethel Merman or Mary Martin — Miss Lansbury's assignment includes dance variety from tango to charleston and "about 40 costume changes."

Only once before has she essayed musical performance, in a fast flop two seasons back, Anyone Can Whistle.

TOOK TESTS

Although she emerged from the debacle with good reports, a lot of testing was done before she got the new role.

Oddly, Miss Lansbury never saw any of her famous predecessors in the straight stage comedy Auntie Mame. Rosalind Russell did it first on Broadway just 10 years ago, and the following parade there and in multiple touring troupes included Constance Bennett, Bea Lillie, Sylvia Sidney and Eve Arden.

Miss Lansbury, as a matter of record, did sing briefly in two films prior to Anyone Can Whistle — namely The Picture of Dorian Gray and Till the Clouds Roll By.

After Whistle, the energetic star "did a lot of big, fat movies — four or five" so that she could clear her calendar for this stage excursion.

The Lansbury screen career began at age 18 (Gaslight in 1944) and she didn't do her first Broadway show until 15 years later. She confesses one mild reservation.

"I'm an early person except when I'm in a stage role," says the lady who likes to rise by 7 a.m.

"The one thing I object to about being in a show is having to miss half a day. You can get much more done in the morning."

Players Pick Hocus Pocus

A three-act comedy by Jack Popplewell with the high-jinks title of Hocus Pocus, has been selected for spring production by Peninsula Players.

It will be presented April 29 and 30 at Kinsmen Hall, Patricia Bay International Airport.

Director is Ken Smith, veteran of a variety of acting roles during his 11 years with the North Saanich group.

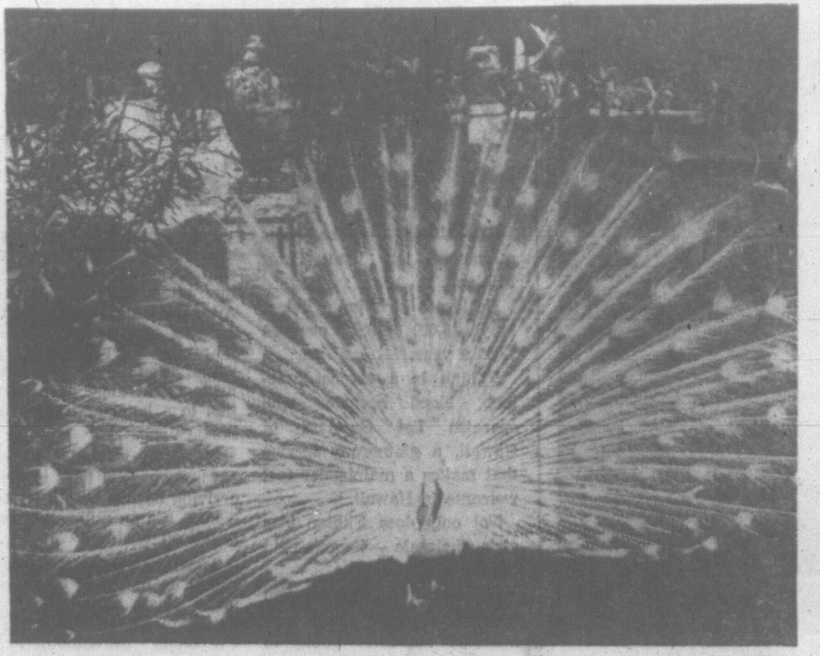
The cast includes Joe Fenton, Margaret Dixon, Florence Newcomb, Joachim Steinicke, Tom Boyd, Chuck Swannell, Bea Hadfield, Dawna Steinicke and Jill Cowan.

Hocus Pocus is an English comedy of character, the plot hinging on double identity and subsequent double dealing.

Annual Meet Sunday

A musical program and social half-hour will follow the business session of Victoria Musical Art Society annual meeting to be held Sunday at 8:30 in the McPherson Playhouse.

The program will consist of selections by St. Paul's Junior Choir directed by Miss Gladys Pearcey, vocal trio Laura and Madeleine Groos and Bill Dyson, vocal solo by Penny Beavan and a harp solo by Lorna Langley.



FAMED WHITE PEACOCK of Isola Bella, one of the Borromean Islands in Lake Magiorre, as seen in Thayer Soule's color film, Venice and the Italian Lakes, to be seen at McPherson Playhouse Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

CURTAIN FALLING ON MET OPERA

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the dignity of an aging Victoria duchess, the Metropolitan Opera House will gracefully draw its gold curtains on 83 years of operatic history tonight.

The elegant dowager's swan song will be sung by 60 of the Metropolitan Opera Company's leading artists and will include selections from 25 operas.

Prompted by a sense of gracious tradition, the program will close with the final scene from Gounod's "Faust." It was this immortal operatic tragedy which opened the Met on Oct. 22, 1883.

When the final chords of "Faust" echo through the ornate hall, the raison d'etre for the Met's existence — opera — will be dead. True, the Bolshoi Ballet will move into the Met next Tuesday and the final musical performance in the house will not take place until May 9.

But the gala audience on hand for tonight's performance knows that the real Met is dead once the final operatic selection is sung there.

GUEST STAR CIRCUIT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Geraldine Brooks is busy on the guest star circuit with appearances in "Gunsmoke" and "Shenandoah."

Something for Everyone At Choral Fete

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Popularity of the Arion Male Choir and Rotary Boys' Choir filled St. John's Memorial Hall to capacity Friday night, when the two ensembles presented a "Festival of Song" that sent everyone home with their heads stuffed with haunting melodies.

The program had something for everyone, no matter what their preference. Even Gilbert and Sullivan fans were not neglected.

The religious mood was well represented, from the opening numbers by the combined choirs — Prayer of Thanksgiving and Beethoven's The Heavens are Telling — through the boys' singing of The Lord Is My Shepherd, Arion's Sanctus by Schubert and the combined choirs again in the Welsh tune, Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah.

From these we were swept all the way to the frivolous — The Hippopotamus Song, Old Mother Hubbard — with side glances at opera — Mozart's O Isis and Osiris (Magic Flute), Wagner's Pilgrim's Chorus (Tannhauser) — and folk-spiritual — Steal Away, John Peel.

The Arion Choir, conducted with a firm but flexible hand by Frank Tupman, sang such numbers as the Sanctus and Steal Away with particularly fine effect. The rich bass-baritone timbre makes these performances really moving.

When the tempo quickens and the mood becomes buoyant, the texture of tone is a little heavy and the diction could be quite a bit crisper.

William Hastings injects excellent color into the singing of the Rotary Boys' Choir. He conducts with lively rhythm and makes one remember what a natural, joyous thing it is to sing.

The choir has two good soloists in young tenor Bob Hall and bass Mike McLuhan, who were featured in the HMS Pinafore excerpts.

Accompanist throughout was Mrs. Helen McVie. James McVie acted as concert chairman. The affair was sponsored by St. John's Anglican Church choir.

NORTH BREEZES

Some of our dining room regulars got to guessing what those mysterious lights and flying objects might be:

"It's Premier Bennett practising with flaming arorws," says one.

"It's policemen shining flashlights in cars parked on Mount Tolmie," says another.

A third man allows it might be doctors leaping between Victoria hospitals in search of an empty bed.

Les Szabo, our maitre d', says maybe they are men from Mars and if so, he'd like them to know we have adequate parking, even for space ships—and our steaks are out of this world, too.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Now that the 25th season of Victoria Symphony Orchestra has come to an end on a rising tide of competence and public interest, it seems an apt moment in which to pay tribute to certain qualities in the body of the orchestra.

The qualities without which even Otto-Werner Mueller could not achieve his near-miracles.

As a critic and commentator on the Victoria Symphony, one has always to reckon with certain inescapable facts.

This is an orchestra preponderantly made up of amateurs.

With the exception of the section leaders and a few navy and student musicians, members are people with ordinary daytime jobs who probably have minimum opportunity for practise outside one or two full or section rehearsals a week.

In comparison your professional orchestra player rehearses daily, either with his section or full orchestra, probably also with other ensembles for TV or radio engagements and also practises on his instrument for several hours a day.

His life in short IS music with time out only for sleeping, eating and probably a hobby or two.

Compare this with our non-pros whose lives are lived in offices, shops, schoolrooms, lecture halls.

For these people daily life is far removed from music; it is routine, worry, responsibility, home chores, family, with time out for orchestra rehearsal and making a bit of music whenever they can find time and are not too tired from their eight or 10-hour day.

When these facts are looked straight between the eyes doesn't it make you feel like getting down on your knees and offering up a prayer of thankfulness that in Victoria, where professional musical opportunities are almost nonexistant, we should have a symphony orchestra whose quality astonishes visiting experts?

Which brings me back to my point — that this would be quite impossible if it were not for the zeal and the dedication of these players.

Anyone who has attended some of the rehearsals must have some idea of the demands the conductor quite rightly makes and of the intensity with which the musicians strive to achieve them.

From close observation I would say there is a personal and ardent desire on the part of every member of the orchestra that each concert should be a success and that they spare no effort to contribute toward this ideal.

It has been noted by some of the visiting musicians of the last two seasons, that this quality of enthusiasm and devotion can not be purchased with dollars; that, in fact, what our non-professional players may lack in technique they compensate for with a sincerity and fervor not always matched in fully professional orchestras.

At any rate, I hope and believe I am speaking for many people in saluting earnest musicians to whom the community owes so much and for which it pays so little.

●

Incidentally, I was taken to task recently for expressing disappointment over the Intermunicipal Committee turning down the five cent per capita grant for the symphony.

The nameless but indignant writer sees no reason why those who prefer fishing, bowling, pub-crawling, square dancing or myriad other time-killing pastimes should be forced to ante up the smallest amount per annum to support a symphony orchestra.

The anonymous one goes further to insist that it is indeed a snob organization and points, as proof, to the published lists of "names" at symphony receptions.

He—or she—further demands to know why "we" should pay for such entertainment. I hasten to reassure him—or her.

Should it please the Almighty to clear the vision and illuminate the minds of the Intermunicipal Committee so that they found themselves agreed on making the five cent per capita grant to the symphony organization, my correspondent will be happy to know that his—or her—begrudged but involuntary contribution will not be wasted on "society" affairs.

Aside from the orchestra personnel, guest artists and board members, invited guests are principally those who make sizeable contributions every year toward maintenance of the symphony.

Sometimes, as was most recently the case, one generous citizen will take on the entire financial responsibility for the affair.

Hidden in our taxes are many payments we are forced to make for services, some of which plenty of us never use through our lifetimes.

One of the biggest tolls is education and one of the expensive aspects of education is the technical equipment involved.

Surely no one will disagree that it is just as important to develop opportunities for the musically gifted child as for the woodworking or dressmaking inclined.

I would not bother to comment on this type of letter if I were not aware that it embodies the sort of thinking vote-conscious committees consider when it comes to grants.

And I just wish that my unknown correspondent and all who share his views might drop into the Royal Theatre some symphony Sunday or Monday and see for themselves the many young people, the old people, and the hundreds of ordinary Mr. and Mrs. John Does to whom this universal language speaks.

●

One last word about the orchestra.

The institution of the Hans Gruber Scholarship concerts two years ago was a self-help project designed to improve the quality of the ensemble.

Money raised by the concerts is used to provide advanced study scholarships for members of the orchestra with exceptional ability and desiring to improve their status.

This year the concerts promise to be more appealing than ever before. They will take place on a Sunday afternoon and Monday evening in mid-May at the Royal Theatre and will be conducted by Mr. Mueller.

First part of the program will probably feature a guest pianist in a popular concerto, while the second part will be in the form of fun and games, taking as a theme, "the orchestra lets its hair down."

Brilliant solo trumpeter Bobby Herriot will be involved and possibly jazz and a typical German band complete with costumes.

THE IN-CROWD

By PAUL THOMAS

Last week, the Scope reopened it's doors to teen-agers, under a new name, the Club Tango. After receiving a facelift, the old place is beginning to look like a club again. A far cry from the pigpen Scope clientele left behind.

The dance floor was jammed as the kids danced and listened to music of the Regents and the Sect.

●

The Esquimalt Sports Centre was the scene of Victoria's second successful show of the year. RPM and the Regents opened the show with their usual driving sound, followed by the Tom Northcott Trio from Vancouver.

The rest of the evening was divided into alternating half-hour sets by Seattle's Rocky and his Friends and the Newbeats. Judging from the response, the show was well accepted.

Coming to Seattle on April 30 are Dino, Desi and Billy, the Lovin' Spoonful, the Shangrilas, as well as Don and the Goodtimes, who are also returning to Victoria soon. Appearing as well on the show will be a surprise star.

This show is similar to the one which was scheduled to appear in Vancouver, but was unfortunately cancelled.

●

This week there are no scheduled special events as we see students returning to class rooms and university students busy writing exams, but as soon as Uvic closes its doors for the year, watch out!

OSCAR CHIEF JOB HARD ON NERVES

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"It's a nice job," Joe Pasternak observed ruefully, "for making enemies."

It seemed an unlikely statement from Pasternak, the friendly, Hungarian-born producer who has made sunny musicals with well-fed songstresses from Winnipeg-born Deanna Durbin (Three Smart Girls) to Ann-Margret (made in Paris). He was referring to his extracurricular post as producer of the Academy Award telecast.

"I was out of my mind to accept the job last year," he said. "Then I agreed to do it again this year. What was I thinking of!"

After his exercise in Hollywood hyperbole, he admitted that the assignment was a challenging and sometimes satisfying one. Especially if the show comes off well, as it did last year.

"I think Monday night's show will be just as good," said the producer. "We'll have a few surprises, but there's not much you can do that is different. Any major change in the presentation requires a vote of the board of directors, so we're stuck with the same format.

HOPE IS GREAT

"Within that framework, I think the Oscar cast is a good show. The main thing we try to do is present an entertaining program while preserving the dignity of the organization. Bob Hope is great for that purpose."

Hope again will be conducting the festivities next Monday at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium, and he will be joined by 40 top names. Included are all of last year's acting winners: Julie Andrews, Rex Harrison, Lila Kedrova and Peter Ustinov.

Booking the stars is one of Pasternak's main headaches.

"The stars themselves are not much trouble," he said. "It's the people around them who give me the trouble—agents, press agents, managers . . . they want to be sure their clients give only the important awards. They don't realize that it can sometimes be better for a star to be in the first part of the show."

Casting singers for the nominated songs is the area where the producer fears that he creates enemies. He turned down one big name because the singer had been featured on recent Oscar casts. Another top recording artist was rejected because he would appear only if he sang all five songs.

ALL WANT FAVORITE

"Everyone wants to sing the song that is the favorite to win," Pasternak remarked. "This year it seems to be The Shadow of Your Smile."

He handed the assignment to Barbara McNair, who has a way with a ballad. Robert Goulet sings The Sweetheart Tree—"because it calls for a romantic voice."

PIERRE COCHEREAU . . . From Paris

Major Organist To Perform Here

One of the world's most fabulous organists comes to Victoria next week.

At Christ Church Cathedral, Pierre Cochereau, organist of Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris, will give a recital Thursday night. M. Cochereau, who has played concerts all over Europe and Australia, is on his eighth American concert tour.

One of the most brilliant of improvisors, Cochereau will cap his program here by improvising a symphony on themes submitted to him only hours beforehand by Robin Wood, director of the Victoria School of Music.

Home for the virtuoso organist is Nice, where he is now director of the Municipal Conservatory of Music and Art and guides a faculty numbering almost 70. He commutes to Paris for weekends and his duties as organist of the Grand Orgue of Notre Dame.

MANY RECORDS

He has made many recordings on London International, Washington and Omega, and more recently, Phillips labels.

In his home he has a four-manual pipe organ, the seventh largest in all France. It boasts two pedal-boards, one American and one European. He spends many hours practising, teaching, recording and broadcasting on this instrument.

Cochereau is also a composer—he wrote many works to honor the 800th anniversary year of Notre Dame Cathedral—and is writing a book on improvisation for use by American organists and students.

On his program next Thursday will be works by Couperin, Cesar Franck, Dupre and Durufle, among others.

In keeping with Christ Church Cathedral policy, no tickets will be sold but a collection will be taken.

MUSIC MAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank DeVol will compose the musical score for MGM's "The Glass Bottom Boat" starring Doris Day and Rod Taylor.

PIANO FEATURED IN MUSIC FETE

Armed with a $3 membership ticket and an official all-inclusive program, any music-minded person can fill his spare hours during the next two weeks with interesting events.

School orchestra, band, choral and dance sessions of the Greater Victoria Music Festival will occupy the second week.

On Monday the festival opens its first week of piano, vocal, adult choral, speech art and accordion classes.

Promptly at 9 a.m., piano accordion sessions will begin at Sir James Douglas School Auditorium, pipe organ at Christ Church Cathedral, piano at St. John's Memorial Hall, and vocal solo at First United Fellowship Hall.

Afternoon and evening sessions will follow the same schedule.

Accordion classes will conclude Monday evening and speech arts will begin Tuesday in First United assembly Hall.

A panel of eight British, Canadian and American adjudicators will add value to the sessions for candidates and public alike.

Individual admissions to the various halls will be sold but a membership card admits the holder to all events with the sole exception of the Festival Highlights Concert in McPherson Playhouse next Friday.

For this gala concert which will feature pianist Robin Wood as guest artist, the card admits the holder at half price.

SEATON'S FIRST

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producer-director George Seaton's first picture under his new Universal contract will be "What's So Bad About Feeling Good."

U.S. Leans On Export To Canada

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States exports to subsidiaries abroad are a major and growing element in American trade, particularly in Canada, latest government figures show.

U.S. foreign investment appears to offer built-in assurance of better export opportunities, with some qualifications, it is implied in the second analysis conducted by the office of business economics of the commerce department on that subject.

Moreover, nearly half of such exports consist of ready-to-sell items needing no foreign labor.

This second analysis, covering 1964, shows that exports to U.S. affiliates rose nearly 18 per cent to $6,300,000,000, compared with a rise of 15 per cent for all U.S. exports that year. They totalled $25,300,000,000.

SUBSIDIARIES

Exports to U.S. subsidiaries and affiliates constituted 46 per cent of all American sales in Canada, one - third in Latin America, 21 per cent in Europe and 11 per cent in Africa, Asia and Oceania.

The international penetration of American capital has long been apparent in Canada, where more than half of the manufacturing, petroleum and mining and smelting industries are U.S. - owned, and where the growth continues in other industrial areas.

Canada periodically is cited here as an example of what could happen elsewhere.

The commerce department's survey says "These (1965) figures confirm the findings in the first (1963) report . . . that export sales to or through foreign affiliates of U.S. firms are a major element in total U.S. sales."

But there are some drawbacks both for trade and the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit, it says.

While the foreign affiliates are important purchasers of U.S. goods, both for their own use in production and for resale in foreign markets, they also now supply directly a considerable part of the foreign demand for a wide range of manufactured products.

"It is impossible to measure the extent to which foreign sales of affiliates might be substituting for potential U.S. exports, or to determine the amount of goods now exported through affiliates that might in any case have been exported through other channels."

LARGEST STEM

However, the largest item is in products resold by the U.S. subsidiaries without further manufacturing. This slice amounted in 1964 to $2,800,000,000, or 44 per cent of the total. Exports needing further processing amounted to $1,800,000,000. These are the major items.

Adds the analysis:

"It is clear . . . that once a manufacturing or distribution affiliate has been established in a country, most of the parent company exports to that country are directed to or through the affiliate."

U.S. sales to Canadian affiliates in 1964 amounted to $2,169,000,000, compared with $1,885,000,000 in 1963. Other 1964 totals were Latin America, $1,400,000,000; Europe $1,813,000,000; and others $908,000,000.

Most of the Canadian figures involved manufacturing, totalling $1,840,000,000.

Of this amount, $628,000,000 was for items for processing or assembly—most in transportation, reflecting the American domination of Canada's auto industry. The analysis suggests the Canada-U.S. auto agreement may change these figures.

There was $659,000,000 worth of exports to Canadian subsidiaries for immediate resale.

Manufacturing exports to Canadian subsidiaries amounted to 15.1 per cent of all the sales of those subsidiaries, which were $11,450,000,000. Canada led all countries in this regard.

The highest components were in non-electrical machinery and transportation, where sales to Canadian subsidiaries amounted to more than 25 per cent of total Canadian affiliate sales.

Trading High Among West Mines, Oils

By LARRY DWORKIN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Investors turned their attention to base metals and western oils on Canada's stock markets this week as both groups enjoyed increased prices.

The base metal group received a shot in the arm Thursday when Chilean copper producers announced a 20-cent increase in the export price of copper to 62 cents a pound.

A number of Canadian producers termed the increase exorbitant and unrealistic, and are not expected to follow.

At Toronto, Kilembe Copper, which is controlled by Falconbridge, jumped 5¾ to 23. Campbell Chibougamau gained 1¾ to 12¾, Inco 1¼ to 105¼ and Noranda ⅞ to 53.

Uranium stocks also fared well. Denison climbed 5¼ to 48¾, Rio Algom 2⅝ to 22⅞ and Preston 1¼ to 12¾. A number of Bay Street analysts attribute the rise to expectations of heavy demand for uranium in the next few years.

PINE POINT FELL

In other base metal activity, Pine Point fell 2 to 60 and Pyramid 1 to 10½.

Volume at Toronto totalled 25,773,843 shares compared with 27,142,911 last week.

Western oils scored the largest group gain as the oil index moved up 4.96 to 113.15.

Scurry Rainbow paced the group, jumping 4¾ to 30⅝. Pacific Petroleum added 2½ at 14⅞, Hudson's Bay Oil and Canadian Industrial Gas and Oil ¾ each to 20 and 13¼. Banff dropped 1¼ to 17¾.

In speculative oils, American Leduc slid 11½ to 25 cents, Mill City 11 cents to 2.31, while Spooner moved up 11 cents to 1.42.

Industrials were mainly mixed, although oil refineries and a few selected issues were stronger.

Recently the gas and oil industry predicted propane gas will be in short supply as a result of scarcity in the industrial market for materials and equipment to build new gas processing plants and additions to plants.

Sulphur Deal Eyed

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta sulphur producers have been offered an opportunity to sell their product to a group of Japanese industrialists at the rate of 100,000 long tons next year, with an increase to 200,000 long tons a year by 1972.

A spokesman for the group said the contract could be on a semi-permanent basis, with preference for an initial minimum contract for 10 years.

Discussions are only at the preliminary stage and price has not been considered, the spokesman said.

The Japanese requirement was revealed by a group of Japanese industrialists and government officials here on a sulphur mission.

Injunction Refused

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judge Kirke Smith in supreme court Friday refused an injunction to stop the weekly Williams Lake Tribune from expanding its operations at 100 Mile House in the B.C. interior.

The injunction was sought by Joseph Maynard, publisher of the Weekly 100 Mile House Herald on the ground that the Williams Lake newspaper had violated an agreement.

Cariboo Press Ltd., which owned both the Williams Lake newspaper and the 100 Mile Herald, sold the Herald to Maynard last July. He claimed that one condition of the sale was an agreement by the Tribune not to publish a newspaper within 50 miles of 100 Mile House for five years.

VANCOUVER TIMES FINED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Times- Publishing Company Ltd., Friday was fined $7,508 in magistrate court here for failure to pay excise taxes.

The company, publisher of the daily Vancouver Times which ceased publication Aug. 6 last year, was found guilty of failing to pay excise taxes between March 2 and July 2 of last year.

Net Earnings Announced

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts Ltd. had consolidated net earnings of $19,247,638 or $1.12 a share in the six months ended Feb. 28, compared with $17,566,609 or $1.02 in the same period last year, the company said. Earnings in the second quarter were $7,721,119 or 45 cents a share against $7,056,102 or 41 cents a year ago.

THE HAGUE (AP) — The 1965 net income of the Royal Dutch Shell group was $628,000,000, nearly seven per cent up on 1964, the annual report said today.

It said sales of crude oil and oil products increased by seven per cent and the volume of chemical sales by 10 per cent.

TORONTO (CP) — Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. earned $3,740,148 or 21.5 cents a share in the three months ended March 31, compared with $3,454,250 or 19.9 cents in the similar period last year, the annual meeting was told. Paul E. Roberts, president, told shareholders that sales were $50,175,000, an increase of $4,692,000 or 10 per cent from the same period last year.

MONTREAL (CP) — Consolidated Textile Mills Ltd. announced net profits of $675,933 or $2.85 per share for the year ended Dec. 31, 1965, compared with $488,826 or $2.06 per share in 1964.

Cash Supply Increases

OTTAWA (CP) — The money supply moved sharply higher last week, apparently as part of the usual spring increase to facilitate resumption of seasonal activity after the midwinter lull.

The Bank of Canada reported total currency in circulation and chartered bank deposits held by the general public on April 6 was record $19,558,000,000. The previous peak was Nov. 3, $19,345,000,000. Since then it reached a 1966 low of $18,848,000,000 Feb. 23.

Together with $559,000,000 of government deposits in the chartered banks, total money supply last week was $20,116,000,000. The previous record was $20,073,000,000 Dec. 15. Last week's figure was an increase of $1,683,000,000 from a year earlier.

At its record last week, the money supply was backed by $1,477,000,000 in cash reserves of the chartered banks—cash in their tills and on deposit with the Bank of Canada. Their cash reserves Wednesday this week were $1,472,060,000, and for the past week they averaged $1,469,000,000.

Net Profit Jumps

MONTREAL (CP)—Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, Ltd. has announced net profit of $9,522,990 in 1965 against $8,862,933 in 1964.

The company's annual report disclosed current assets at $20,935,040 in 1965 against current liabilities of $5,017,165, with the bank loan reduced from $3,000,000 in 1964 to $1,000,000 in 1965.

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Stock Exchange reported Thursday 1965 was the busiest year in its 116-year history. In all, 575,000,000 shares were traded, up 42.5 per cent from 1964. Last year, the dollar volume of trading rose by 28.8 per cent to $7,600,000,000.

B.C. Oil Men Pressing For North Access Roads

An oil industry delegation to the cabinet will renew attempts to solve the access road problem in B.C., Canadian Petroleum Association members were told Friday.

B.C. members of the association held their annual meeting at the Union Club, where CPA manager G. B. McGillivray reported that a June meeting with the government is being scheduled.

The association meanwhile is preparing a submission on the access problem "which has plagued the industry since its entrance into British Columbia."

He said the problem is "very perplexing and extends through a number of departments and at the various levels of government."

A number of submissins have been made by the petroleum association both to the legislative committee on access roads and groups of government representatives.

Mr. McGillivray noted the department of industrial transport has tried to encourage the use of the Industrial Roads Act to solve the difficulty.

"However the industry is not fully agreed that this is the route to go because of the onerous conditions which can be demanded.

"It has been suggested that a clear definition of government policy in connection with oil field access roads is required," the manager said.

The oil industry considers essential government participation in road building and maintenance in settlements and failing this the companies should be guaranteed some form of tenure.

Retiring chairman Fred A. McKinnon, vice-president and general manager of Triad Oil, referred to the high value of the petroleum industry to B.C. It ranks second only to forestry and last year showed a 20 per cent increase in revenue to the government over 1964.

CROWN SALES

Crown sales, bonus bids, rentals and royalties brought $31,956,732 into the provincial treasury in 1965, Mr. McKinnon said.

The net revenue derived from forestry last year amounted to $38,391,926, his report said.

Crude oil production in B.C. last year was 13.4 million barrels, an increase of 17 per cent over 1964. Natural gas was 171.5 billion cubic feet, a 10.7 per cent increase, and total value of production was estimated at $43.4 million.

NEW DEVELOPMENT

Mr. McKinnon stressed the importance of new petroleum development in northeastern B.C., partly through the impact of Rainbow Lake development in Alberta. And he referred to the new gas export agreement negotiated by Westcoast Transmission to supply U.S. consumers.

This would serve as incentive to more northern exploration if higher well-head price benefits are passed along to the producer, he said.

Mr. McGillivray said in his report that following repeated requests by the industry, the provincial surveyor general will this summer start the first stage of land survey work in northeastern B.C. to help in exploration work where there are difficiencies in elevation control.

CHANGES ASKED

He said the new oil and gas act introduced last year has met the needs of the industry satisfactorily but there are some areas, such as gas licensing, where there is room for improvement.

Mr. McKinnon said there had been "a fine working relationship with government agencies in the past year."

Mines and Petroleum Minister Donald Brothers, who welcomed the 30 delegates, said he had found relations with the industry "excellent," and expressed a desire to see more gas exploration in the north.

Members elected L. E. Miller, of Sun Oil Co., as their 1966 chairman, along with the following new directors:

L. I. Brown, Chevron Standard Ltd.; R. W. Burns, Central-Del Rio Oils Ltd.; J. P. Gallagher, Dome Petroleum Ltd.; W. Hope-Ross, Placid Oil Co.; E. W. Scott, Union Oil Co. of Canada Ltd.

Continuing as directors are J. C. Ebbels, Shell Canada Ltd.; H. H. Knapp, Sinclair Canada Oil Co.; Mr. McKinnon; S. G. Olson, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd.; L. M. Rasmussen, Pacific Petroleums Ltd.

Mr. McKinnon paid tribute to deputy mines and petroleum minister Pat Mulcahy, who retires in October. Mr. Mulcahy was presented with a painting by Oak Bay artist Brian Travers-Smith as a token of the association's "pleasant relationship" with him.

Oil Companies Oppose Bid

CALGARY (CP) — Two oil companies denied Friday that Dynamic Petroleum Products Ltd. is entitled to more than a three per cent interest in 23,840 acres of petroleum and gas leases in northwestern Alberta.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. and Socony Mobil Oil of Canada Ltd. filed separate statements of defence in a civil suit launched by Dynamic, seeking 100 per cent working interest in the leases.

Dynamic asked in a statement of claim in February that as an alternative it be awarded $149,000,000 damages which it said represented the value of the leases in the Rainbow Lake area.

Both Mobil and Pan American's statements, filed in Alberta Supreme Court, say Dynamic advised them in January, 1965, it concurred in the surrender of certain leases to the crown but they were not surrendered.

Dynamic's statement of claim said it chose not to give written consent and thus became entitled to assignment of the leases. It said they were surrendered and later re-instated.

In 1959, Dynamic held two Alberta government reservations in the Rainbow Lake area, about 450 miles northwest of Edmonton, a focal point of oil exploration interest.

No Secrets In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange said Thursday it will stop trading at any time during the day in the shares of any company the exchange feels is withholding information from the public.

The suspension will stay in force until the information the exchange feels is needed by investors is made public.

Announcing the new policy, the exchange reconfirmed its established practice of delaying trading in shares of a company when an unusually heavy backlog of orders builds up before the market opens.

CANUCKS EDGED

Bucks Reclaim Favorite's Slot

(Times News Services)

VANCOUVER — Portland manager-coach Hal Laycoe figured on a "home-ice series," but his Western Hockey League team wrecked the time-table Friday night and the Buckaroos find themselves sitting in a favored position today.

The Buckaroos, rebounding from an 8-4 setback in the series' opener, tripped Vancouver Canucks 4-2 here Friday to deadlock their best-of-seven semi-final 1-1.

Next two games will be played in Portland, where Canucks failed to win a game in six tries during the regular season.

SECOND TIME

Friday's victory was only the second this season for Bucks on Vancouver ice.

Cliff Schmautz, the WHL scoring champion, Art Jones, Gerry Goyer and Arlo Goodwin scored Portland's goals after the Bucks had staked Canucks to a 1-0, first-period lead.

Phil Maloney, scoring the first on a Vancouver power play, and speedster Billy McNeill scored Canucks' goals.

PENALTIES HURT

It was a Portland power play that got Bucks' attack rolling. Some brilliant goaltending by Gilles Villemure kept Portland off the scoresheet until midway in the game.

Defenceman Larry Cahan drew a penalty at 8:10 and the Vancouver team was handed a bench penalty 38 seconds later. Jones tied the game 1-1 three seconds before Cahan was scheduled to return.

Goodwin banged in a rebound five minutes later to put Portland ahead but McNeill tied it early in the third period. Goyer scored what proved to be the winner two minutes later.

Third game in the series will be played next Tuesday.

'Frisco Gets Permission To Use Pelletier Tonight

Bud Poile went fishing Friday morning. He didn't land any salmon, but while he was dragging tackle in Saanich Inlet the manager of San Francisco Seals made a more important catch.

He had received permission from Western Hockey League president Al Leader to use veteran goaltender Marcel Pelletier at Memorial Arena tonight in the second game of a semi-final playoff against Victoria Maple Leafs.

Selected by the league as the standby goalie for playoffs, Pelletier watched from the press box Wednesday as the Leafs bombed amateur Bob Gray with 35 shots and grabbed a 6-3 victory in the opener of the best-of-seven series.

Moaning about the injustice of being unable to use Pelletier, Poile promptly dispatched a protest to Leader, claiming it was unfair that any of the other three playoff clubs could use Pelletier if anything happened to the regular goalie while the Seals were forced to go with an amateur.

Regular Jack McCartan of the Seals was injured before playoffs started and rules stipulate that the standby goalie is available only if a netminder is sidelined by illness or injury during the playoffs.

Since Gray was the only other available 'Frisco goalie declared eligible for playoffs, it seemed probable that Leader would abide by regulations and deny the Seals the use of Pelletier unless Gray was injured.

However, managers of the Victoria, Vancouver and Portland clubs consented to a special ruling and Leader decided the Seals could use Pelletier until McCartan was healthy or Doug Favell was finished with Central League playoffs.

WHAT NOW?

Poile learned of the verdict after returning from his fishing trip and promptly huddled with playing-coach Charlie Burns.

"I don't know what to do now," Bud said today.

"Charlie and I will talk with Pelletier and then discuss the situation again. I'm going to leave it up to Charlie.

"Gray looked very good in practice yesterday. He is an excellent goalie, but Pelletier has the experience."

Poile, however, admitted it was likely that Burns would make one lineup change for tonight's tussle.

He also admitted that the Seals were planning to pay special attention to Milan Marcetta, who scored two Victoria goals Wednesday.

SAME EFFORT

"We may let Charlie look after him," commented Poile.

Coach Frank Mario and manager Buck Houle of the Leafs agree that the presence of Pelletier could be a big threat to Victoria's hopes, although they had agreed to a change.

"If we play as we can, it won't make any difference," Mario said. "All we need is the same kind of effort the players gave Wednesday."

"Personally," added Houle, "I feel that if we can't beat them with Pelletier, we don't deserve to be in the final."

Action tonight starts at 8:30.

Series Deadlocked

ESTEVAN, Sask. (CP)—Estevan Bruins beat Fort William Canadiens 3-1 Friday night to deadlock their Western Canada Memorial Cup best-of-seven semifinal 3-3.

FIFTH GAME SUNDAY

'Old Pappies' Plague Hawks

CHICAGO (CP)—A number of hockey fans are expressing amazement that the elderly Detroit Red Wings have pounded the tougher and younger Chicago Black Hawks into the ice during the first four games of their Stanley Cup semi-final.

But this impression is only partly true.

The Red Wing roster does include senior citizens like Gordie Howe and Bill Gadsby, both 38, and Andy Bathgate, 33. But younger players have carried a big share of the load.

The Wings and Hawks are tied 2-2 in the best-of-seven series but nothing else has been equal since the set opened here last Thursday. Detroit has outshot the Hawks in every game, outscored them 14-5 and injured at least five Chicago players along the way.

Howe has turned in his usual masterful performance, scoring two goals and assisting on three. Bathgate, no longer the dominant figure he was with New York Rangers in past years, has nonetheless contributed three goals.

Meanwhile Gadsby has been cavorting like a 25-year-old. The veteran defenceman has been handing out teeth-rattling bodychecks and breaking up play after play.

YOUNGSTERS KEEP PACE

Keeping pace with these three, along with captain Alex Delvecchio and Norm Ullman, are three of the team's youngsters, Bryan Watson, 23, Paul Henderson, 23, and Roger Crozier, 24.

Watson, a Montreal Canadiens castoff, has scored two goals. But, more important, he is personally responsible for holding the illustrious Bobby Hull to one.

Actually, Watson isn't even accountable for the one tally managed by the Golden Jet in the series opener. It was in the next game that coach Sid Abel assigned the aggressive right winger to the job of shadowing Hull and the National Hockey League scoring champion has managed only one assist since.

PLAYING WELL

Henderson, a third-year Red Wing, was one of Detroit's most effective forwards even before he fired the first two goals in Thursday night's 5-1 victory.

Crozier, of course, is the key to Detroit's success just as he has been for the last two seasons. The diminutive netminder has limited the Hawks to an average 1.25 goals in the four games and has come up with one key save after another.

The Red Wings have brought up veteran defenceman Warren Godfrey and forward Irv Spencer from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League as insurance but didn't use them Thursday until the dying minutes of the third period.

Sunday's fifth game, starting at 11:30 a.m. PST, will be broadcast in full by the CBC national radio network. It will also be carried in full by the CBC and NBC national television networks. The NBC telecast will be in color.

TIMES ISLAND OPEN FEATURE

Art Has No Sympathy For the Unsympathetic

Art Donaldson objects to Laurie Carroll's "lack of sympathy," and that tees up a grudge match situation in one of Sunday's quarter-final games in the Times Vancouver Island Open golf tournament.

The meeting of the two former Island Open champions shapes up as the feature of four championship bouts scheduled to be played at Gorge Vale Gulf Club, starting at 11 a.m.

Sunday's survivors move on to Uplands April 24 for 36-hole semifinals and the Island's major match-play fairway test winds up May 1 at Victoria Golf Club.

"The last time I played Carroll," Donaldson remembered Friday, "I came off a sick bed and Laurie whomped me . . . at Gorge Vale.

"He wasn't very sympathetic."

This year, Donaldson says, he feels "just great."

And the Gorge Vale greenskeeper, tongue-in-cheek, doesn't plan to pass out any sympathy Sunday.

"In that case," Carroll interjected, "it's going to be a great game Sunday."

Carroll, like defending champion Ron MacLeod, is bidding to become the first three-time winner of The Daily Times Trophy.

MacLEOD FACES WRIGHT

MacLeod plays Uplands assistant pro Eric Wright in the other "top half" match.

Sunday's other quarterfinals match Cowichan professional Norm Boden, another ex-champ, against Gorge Vale amateur Lex Sutcliffe while city junior champion Don Billsborough plays Colwood pro Bill Court.

Preceeding the championship pairings off the first tee will be the eight survivors in the handicap division race for the Hugh Francis Trophy.

Handicap pairings step off at 10:30.

Cooper is Ready To Sign for Clay

LONDON (Reuters) — Jim Wicks, manager of British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper, said today he expected to sign contracts tonight or Sunday for a world title fight between Cooper and the champion Cassius Clay.

The fight will be held at the Arsenal soccer team's stadium at Highbury here May 21 or 28.

"They all said we would never get the champion to come over to England and meet Cooper, but we have done it," Wicks said. "The next 24 hours should see everything signed, sealed and delivered."

No final decision has yet been made on the exact date, he said, but he expects it to be May 21.

ESTIMATE COST

The fight may cost more than £200,000 ($600,000) to stage. Clay's purse will be a guaranteed £100,000 ($300,000) or a percentage of the gross receipts. Cooper's share is likely to amount to at least £40,000 ($120,000), a record purse for a British boxer.

The bout probably will be held in the evening so that it can be shown on television in the afternoon in the United States.

It is also expected to be shown on closed-circuit television in movie houses in Britain and Europe.

Brian London, knocked out by Floyd Patterson in Indianapolis in 1959, was the last British boxer to fight for the world heavyweight title. The last listed world heavyweight title fight in Britain was in 1908, when Tommy Burns knocked out Jack Palmer.

Barons Boost Playoff Lead

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bob Courcy scored twice Friday night to lead Cleveland Barons to a 6-2 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets and took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five American Hockey League's Calder Cup quarter-finals.

Other Cleveland scorers were Joe Szuna, Keith McCready and Ted Lanyon. For Hornets it was Gary Jarrett, Norm Beaudin and Gary McCarthy.

Orban Voted Best Rookie

SEATTLE (UPI)—Leftwinger Bill Orban of the Los Angeles Bades has been named as the top rookie in the Western Hockey League.

Of a possible 918 votes cast by the six teams in the league, Orban received 258 to edge Earl Heiskala of the Seattle Totems by only nine votes. Votes are awarded on a 5-3-1 basis for first, second and third choices. Teammate Bob Schmautz finished in third place with 229 votes.

The complete voting for the league rookie award was as follows: Orban, Los Angeles, 258; Heiskala, Seattle, 249; Bobby Schmautz, Los Angeles, 229; Dave Parenteau, Victoria, 102; Stan Gilbertson, San Francisco, 44; Doug Favell, San Francisco, 29.

Oregon Schools Plan Rugby Tour

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State University and the University of Oregon, bitter rivals, will field a joint rugby team to tour England and Wales.

Rugby is not a varsity sport at either school although each has teams that play informally.

FIGHT RESULTS

MADRID—Louis Folledo, 162, Madrid, outpointed Clarence James, 164, Oakland, Calif., 10.

PORTLAND, Maine—Milo Calhoun, 174, Kingston, Jamaica, outpointed Curtis Bruce, 173, Newark, N.J., 10.

LOS ANGELES—Dwight Hawkins, 125, Los Angeles, outpointed Zorito Valdez, 124½, Mexico City, 10.

SAN FRANCISCO—Charlie Shipes, 145, Oakland, Calif., knocked out Henry Aldrich, 146½, San Jose, Calif., 11.

Brewer Setting Pace In Las Vegas Classic

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Gay Brewer had a two-stroke lead going into the third round of the $100,000 Tournament of Champions today with a 36-hole score of 70-69-139.

Bill Casper Jr., first-round co-leader with Brewer, and Dudley Wysong were tied at 141.

Arnold Palmer was five shots off the pace in his bid to win the tournament for the second straight year, with 74-70-144, a score be shared with Lionel Hebert.

Jack Nicklaus, pre-tournament favorite, was eight strokes back of Brewer. So were Gary Player and Joe Campbell.

Deadlocked at 143 were Bruce Crampton, Frank Beard and PGA champion Dave Marr, while Doug Sanders and Bobby Nichols occupied the 145 berth.

Brewer, who last weekend tied with Nicklaus and Tommy Jacobs after 72 holes in the Masters and finished third in the playoff, hit into the water hazard on the par-four 17th hole for a five or his leading margin would be greater. It was his only bad shot of the afternoon.

After 36 holes of play, only six pros were under par 144. A year ago, there were an even dozen. This time, only three have broke 70. Last year the figure was 12.

Birdie Binge Boosts Beck

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Larry Beck left a trail of eight birdies as he shot a five-under-par 67 Friday to take the 36-hole lead in the $22,800 Azalea Open golf tournament. He leads by two shots with a 138 total.

Next at 140 were South African Harold Henning, whose 66 was the best round of the tournament, three-time winner Jerry Barber, and Al Besselink.

A score of 150 was needed to qualify for the last two rounds. Seventy-three players qualified.

Bert Drills Rocks For Boxla Season

Preparing for their opening game of 1966 Inter-City Lacrosse League season on May 4, Victoria Shamrocks have three workouts scheduled in the next five days.

Coach Bert Bertoia will drill the Rocks at Stevenson Park Sunday from 10 a.m. to noon, at Oak Bay School gym Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. and at Esquimalt Sports Centre Thursday at 9 p.m.

Interested players are invited to attend the workouts.

Last Canadian Boxer Ousted

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—Jimmy Trosclair of Marrego, La., won a decision from Roger Adolph of Vancouver Friday in a featherweight bout in the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union's annual boxing tournament here.

Adolph was the last of four Canadian boxers eliminated from the tournament.

Tanner Snaps Swim Record

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (CP)—Fifteen-year-old Elaine Tanner of Vancouver shattered a United States record and defeated an Olympic champion Friday night with a clocking of 1:00.7 in the 100-yard backstroke at the senior women's Amateur Athletic Union swimming championships.

The tiny Canadian led from the start as she defeated Cathy Ferguson, 17, a gold medallist in the 100-metre backstroke in the Tokyo Olympics and holder of the world records for 100 and 200 metres.

On the way, she shattered Miss Ferguson's American record of 1:05.5.

Dogs, Bears Better Than Puck 'Birds'

CHICAGO (CP)—Sunday afternoon theatre goers here would rather pay to see a "dog" show than a "bird" show involving Red Wings and Hawks.

This is the confirmed opinion of several theatre managers who carried last Sunday's game between Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings.

Attendance for the game was poor and, as a result, the six theatres here will not carry this Sunday's telecast of the fifth game. The series is deadlocked at two wins apiece.

"Attendance last Sunday was terrible" said one owner. "I can make more money with a dog show (The Ugly Dachshund) and a bear show (Winnie the Pooh) . . ."

"We had almost as many employees on hand as customers. We could have made a lot more money by showing the two pictures."

The Hawks claim the theatres are responsible for the poor attendance because the owners considered the venture unprofitable.

"There will be no theatre TV this Sunday because the owners aren't happy with it," said William Horstman, assistant to Hawks' co-owner Arthur M. Wirtz. "The Sunday afternoon time is unsatisfactory."

Former Dodger Batboy Knows How to Use Bat

By Associated Press

Don Drysdale went twice as far as Sandy Koufax, but neither has gone as far as Jim Lefebvre.

A batboy for Los Angeles Dodgers seven years ago, their second baseman and the Rookie of the Year in the National League last year, Lefebvre has gone right to the top this year —as the leading slugger in the majors.

The 23-year-old switch-hitter pulled Drysdale off the hook Friday night by slamming his fourth homer in three games, a three-run shot in the eighth inning that carried the world champions to a 4-2 victory over Chicago Cubs.

GOING GREAT

Lefebvre, who hit two homers Thursday night, now leads the majors in that department as well as runs batted in, with eight, and has compiled a .467 batting average by connecting for seven hits in 15 at-bats.

Drysdale made his first start of the season after his 32-day holdout and proved more effective than Koufax. Where Koufax surrendered five runs in three innings Wednesday in his first start, Drysdale lasted six innings while giving up eight hits — all singles — and only two runs.

Another holdout, San Francisco's Bob Shaw, went 5 1-3 innings in his debut but beat Drysdale and Koufax to the victory circle by getting credit for the triumph as the Giants whipped Houston Astros 6-2.

SECOND VICTORY

Roger Craig became the majors' biggest winner by posting his second victory as Philadelphia Phillies edged Cincinnati Reds 4-3. St. Louis Cardinals continued their mastery over Pittsburgh at Forbes Field by subduing the Pirates 9-2, and Atlanta Braves added to the Mets' history by edging the New Yorkers 3-2.

New York Yankees defeated Baltimore Orioles 3-2, Detroit Tigers whipped Washington Senators 8-3, California Angels downed Minnesota Twins 9-4 and Cleveland Indians edged Boston Red Sox 8-7 in American League activity.

Fritz Peterson, a 24-year-old southpaw making his first major league start, hurled the Yankees to their first victory after three losses.

Shaw, who signed three days after Drysdale and Koufax, gave up six hits and two runs before needing relief help from Frank Linzy in the sixth inning.

The game, however, was never in doubt once Tom Haller hit a three-run homer in the third inning for a 6-1 lead. Willie Mays went 2-for-4 for the Giants and scored runs No. 1,500 and 1,501 of his career.

Craig, working in relief of Jim Bunning, got the victory for the Phillies when they battered former team-mate Jack Baldschun for two runs in the ninth inning.

The Cardinals tied a major league record by beating the Pirates for the 18th straight time on Pittsburgh's home grounds.

Olympics 'Live' and 'In Colour'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Olympics Games in Mexico City in 1968 will be shown live and in color in the most ambitious sports television program ever undertaken, the American Broadcasting Co. said Friday.

Thomas W. Moore, president of ABC-TV, announced that his network had bought exclusive TV rights to both the Summer and Winter Games for showing in the United States and Canada.

Moore said ABC paid $4,500,000 for the rights to the Mexico City Games, committed $3,000,000 additional for color and other equipment and figured the over-all outlay at $12,000,000.

Now get the Evinrude!

Let's get a move on! There's a great, big sunny summer ahead with all sorts of things to do: fishing, camping, cruising or just relaxing on the water in a boat with a good, dependable outboard motor—an Evinrude. Have you seen our new Folding 3—the little outboard that folds up and fits into a compact, carrying case? Ideal for camping and fishing. You'll enjoy toting this one around. For economy and performance try the rugged Evinrude 5 or our 6 with big motor features. They've been fisherman's favourites since they were first introduced.

And check out the 9½ while you're at it. See why it has become the outboard that tops the list with sportsmen across Canada. Its low silhouette makes it ideal for trolling and it's almost as quiet as the fish themselves. If you want power for water skiing and good, spirited cruising, try the 18—an Evinrude workhorse that does whatever you want of it. There's an Evinrude just right for the activities you have in mind. See them now at your nearby Evinrude dealer, listed in the yellow pages. He has the entire Evinrude line; 3, 5, 6, 9½, 18, 33, 40, 60, 80 & 100 horsepower. Also, OMC stern drive units: 90, 120, 150 and 200 hp. models.

All Evinrudes use a 50-1 gas/oil mixture which increases engine life, saves wear and expense. And every Evinrude carries a full 2-year warranty.

COAST TO COAST NEWSPAPERS SELL THE MOST

STACKING ticketed books in readiness for opening of two-day sale, April 28-29, are Mrs. Edward Gudewill, left, and Mrs. Gordon H. Grant.

City Music School Plans Book Bazaar

If book bargains attract you, or you want to catch up on some reading you may have missed or you have some bare shelves to furnish, 507 Pandora Avenue is the place for you Thursday and Friday, April 28 and 29.

That address, opposite Scott and Peden's, will be the scene of the second annual book sale sponsored by the Victoria School of Music.

The Women's Committee of the School has been busy for weeks, sorting, pricing and ticketing the hundreds of books of every description which have been donated.

There are also, incidentally, some quite fabulous buys in 78-rpm recordings, for anyone who is interested in collecting these items.

Sale hours are 5 to 9 p.m. Thursday and 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday.

The first book sale, held last spring, was successful beyond all expectations, and the Women's Committee hope to see it grow each year as more and more donations of books flow in from people who realize they can unload books they have finished with and at the same time replenish their reading supply at bargain rates.

Book on Indians Patronizing Tale

A WOMAN OF THE PEOPLE, by Benjamin Capps; General Publishing Co., Toronto; 240 pages, $5.95.

Reviewd by Glen Allen

This is the simple, clear, even exciting story of a white girl, taken from her family and raised by a small vagrant band of Comanche Indians.

The girl becomes Indian in all ways possible; only the image of her infancy in a white man's home and a few words of the language she had barely learned remind that she does not belong.

This novel is, more importantly, a record of the demise of the great Apach-Arapahoe-Cheyenne-Comanche sub-culture of the American southwest.

The white man came west for land and buffalo. He had guns and wagons and an ambition to go all the way to the western sea. He got there.

Mr. Capps knows a lot about Indians and the times, and, considering that he has adopted the literary conventions of Fenimore Cooper, he has written well and carefully.

But the terrible truth about Woman of the People is, that like the Indians whose life and death it describes, it is the last of its kind.

The conventions of Fenimore Cooper and the story of the conflict of Indian and white as it has always been written, bit the dust long ago.

There is not, after all, anything intrinsically attractive or noble about the representation of Indians either preternaturally subhuman or superhuman, the Last of the Mohicans, Tonto, and the whole crew of fictional Indians notwithstanding.

A Woman of the People, perhaps inevitably, has all the failings common to the genre.

The language, especially the dialogue of the Indians, is mock-Biblical, declamatory, always inflated. It is as if they spoke only to warn of catastrophe or to lament the passing of gods.

No one ever has a good laugh, or makes love, or wonders about the stars. Everyone is named Spitting Wolf or He-Who-Runs-Over-the-Mountain-In-the-Dark. (Was there never a Comanche called Joe? Has no-one ever considered that Sitting Bull went on the warpath just because they called him that?)

People, whatever kind they are, are irreducible and complex. To treat people otherwise is to patronize history and themselves, the makers of history.

'GOOD MAN LOST'

THE HORSBURGH AFFAIR —DISCIPLE OR DEVIATE, by Rev. R. C. Smeaton; Baxter Publishing Co.; 153 pages, paperback; $1.95.

Reviewed by M. Schierbeck

The author of this book, during his years of study, worked a great deal in co-operation with Horsburgh in his youth work and he clearly expresses his intention with the book in the foreword.

"Our decision to embark on this venture is with one end in mind. That end is a strictly honest attempt to help vindicate Horsburgh in the eyes of that vast public which has been presented with a selective and manifestly colored portion of the truth."

Rev. Smeaton examines the evidence against Horsburgh when he was tried in Chatham in 1965 for his methods and behavior in his work with the young people in Chatham.

His modern approach to their problems infuriated and was misunderstood by many of the older and more conservative members of the congregation and he was accused of indecent behavior himself.

Many of the witnesses in the case came from the very youth groups with whom he had worked and who were obviously unstable and unreliable and often contradicted themselves.

But in spite of the vague and equivocal evidence Horsburgh was condemned and lost the case with the tragic results, according to Rev. Smeaton, that an honest man was defamed and the church lost a valuable worker.

HIS PLEA: DON'T HIC IN MY CUPS

ODDLY AD LIB by Paul Jennings, Queenswood House, $3.50.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Paul Jennings is a man in love with words; the effects of his romance are hilarious. His new book, Oddly Ad Lib, contains the result in the forms of drama poetry and prose.

For instance, how many well informed people know which animal is the largest: the larpode, rhose, snukk, giter, earzb, omseo, or artbib? Or how many can state what the following have in common: the ardople, the osher, the knusk, the bazer and the oomse? (All have yellow teeth and smell horrible.)

Ram at the Tup

This and other fascinating answers may be found in Mr. Jennings satiric investigation of modern education practices, "I Don't Like You, I.Q."

And those who have read Room at the Top will not find their understanding of the novel complete without reading Jenning's version, freely adapted from James Joyce, entitled "Ram at the Tup."

If such pornographic intimations are too gross for sensitive minds, perhaps his essay on "Varsity Parsity," with its solemn pronouncement that "Oxbridge should now be entirely devoted to postgraduate work" will strike a sympathetic response.

And the idea of Oxbridge itself, "a long thin university 70 miles long on stilts, extending from Oxford to Cambridge, and 100 feet wide, except for certain administrative clusters" will be greeted with unrestrained enthusiasm.

Obvious Result

The obvious results of this and similar fine institutions will be that "Any student who can't fit in somewhere along this spectrum will be either a real neurotic or a real dud."

In fact, every essay in this collection has amusing and pointed application to our society.

Whether it is his "Bubblegabble," a watery-garbled interview with one of M. Cousteau's fellow enthusiasts, or his "Don't Hic in My Cups," or his ludicrous parody of Keats' "Ode to Autumn," entitled simply, "Owed to Keats," dealing with the expenses incurred by a fond parent sending his child back to school, all are at once telling in their satire, amusing in their approach, and ingenious in their use of language.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

Bare Rocks Conjure Up Tense Drama

By ROBIN SKELTON

Toni Onley is one of the most sensitive painters we have, and his sensitivity is well revealed in the current exhibition of his work at Pandora's Box.

Skelton

His sensibility leads him to perceive significant relationships in apparently uneventful landscapes. An empty space and a couple of bare rocks are enough for him to create a whole drama of tension and doubt.

Thus in Silent Rock and in Southern Approach, two of his many superb water colors, one senses both drama and hesitance.

The forms appear to be awaiting some event or visitant; they are an empty stage upon which, at any moment, some wanderer or hero may emerge to transform our understanding of the universe. The forms themselves are, meanwhile, in silent dialogue; they oppose and counter one another.

Thus in Inland Passage the large rock shape in the foreground appears to be hesitating upon the brink of movement; it may choose to move between the two peninsular arms before it, to breach that "inland passage" or it may remain stilled in contemplation of the possibility.

Contemplating this work, and the other water colors, I find myself impressed by a tension which is never crude, a balance which is always trembling upon the edge of unbalance, and a tonal harmony which is subtle without being characterless.

When I turn from the water colors to the acryllic paintings, however, I am disturbed in a different way. The soft textures of the water colors, with their air of meditative speculation, have disappeared.

The surface of these works is not related to their moods as clearly as in the water colors, and the tones are less subtle.

Silent Morning is, in my view, disastrous. The mud colors are not properly related to the greens; the texture is clumsy and the overall impression is of a badly made acryllic copy of a possibly excellent water color original. This is admittedly the worst of the works on show, but it is perhaps indicative of something centrally wrong about Onley's work.

He is concerned, obsessively concerned, with a particular vision, and that vision is so much dependent upon the water color medium that when he changes his medium his vision loses both authority and accuracy.

This may seem a harsh judgment, but if you compare Black Sun and Silent Coast, both acryllic paintings, with the water colors of similar subjects, you may agree with me that whereas in the water colors the surface implies a tentative, even intuitive, quality which is appropriate to the whole import of the paintings, in the acryllic works the surface has nothing to do with the themes at all.

Thus the acryllic works appear contrived rather than perceived, and their textures (or the handling of them) appear superficial and fail to become part of the art object.

When you turn from the paintings to the engravings on copper you may feel, as I do, that Onley has chosen to concentrate upon his feeling for space and texture at the expense of subject matter. These engravings have great delicacy; the roughly rectangular and sometimes lozenge shapes are beautifully placed with relationship to one another, and are supported by many lightly engraved forms which appear to echo them and to re-interpret and revise their tensions.

Nevertheless, in spite of the subtlety and delicacy of these works something appears to be missing; there is little urgency about them and there is none of the dramatic power of the water colors. They are dangerously near to becoming merely decorative, merely exercises of sensibility. It is as if the visionary has grown content to display merely the way he perceives rather than what he perceives.

This all leads me to wonder where Onley is going next. I find myself thinking of stories in which the artist hero, by degrees, reduces his vision to nothingness. I think of the man who believes, finally, that his own sensibility is more important than the works to which it gives rise, and therefore ceases to create at all.

I am not, of course, suggesting that Onley is following this particular track. There is the pressure of the need to communicate behind even his most decorative works.

Nevertheless it looks to me as if he may have come close to working out a particular lode and may now be unsure as to what territory he should start prospecting.

This is an easy statement to make and a hard one to justify.

These are all works of real significance and even the least satisfactory is aesthetically pleasing.

What, then, am I complaining about? It is a measure of my belief in Onley's individual genius that I find myself worrying about his work in this way.

He is a superb artist, and this is a good exhibition, but I want to know what happens next.

It could be of enormous importance.

Chinese Suspicious Of U.K. Missionaries

BRITAIN, CHINA AND THE ANTIMISSIONARY RIOTS, 1891 - 1900, by Edmund S. Wehrle, The Copp Clark Publishing Co., pp. 223, $5.50.

Reviewed by S. W. JACKMAN

When all of the world is so much concerned with political morality and so-called imperialism it is perhaps illustrative to recollect that a good deal of what goes on is old hat.

Pressure groups have always existed, great powers have always tried to exert their influence over lesser powers, and local antipathy to foreigners is not original.

In the 20th century the old sport of twisting the lion's tail has gone out of fashion; the lion is elderly and rather toothless. Now it is Uncle Sam's beard that is pulled and singed.

America and China are in opposite corners of the ring; England earlier had the dubious privilege of being the object of Chinese suspicion.

This wariness was not necessarily unwarranted. The British had their economic interests in China; they had also their agents. Granted, these agents were not spies as would now be presumed but were people with what they thought to be the highest motives, who planned to change the Chinese way of life.

The missionaries were, in their fashion, as much interested in civilizing 'the heathen Chinee' as are the CIA.

This volume is an account of the Chinese reaction.

It is not a popular book by any means—probably it began as a doctoral thesis and the heavy trappings of scholarship are very much in evidence—but it does give one an illuminating picture of the influence of pressure groups on policy; it also goes a long way to explain the origins of contemporary Chinese policy with respect to the west.

Is Anyone with money Interested?

The city, for a variety of reasons, seems obliged to demolish the Dowell Building on Wharf Street. I believe it is too important an example of its style of architecture to see it go without an attempt to find a new use for it. I believe it could be made into a number of exciting, far-out apartments and/or offices or studios, perhaps on a co-operative basis. The structure is sound and the spaces generous. I will be at home at 636 Toronto Street on Sunday afternoon, the 17th, from 1 to 3 to anyone who is interested in discussing this problem and who may be prepared to invest some money to indicate to the city whether there is a real concern about civic design.

Tenders were called for demolition last Tuesday and are due in next Tuesday. Time is short.

World Defense Heads Give National Views On Nuclear Weaponry

The defence heads of West Germany, Great Britain, France and the U.S. will be seen giving their views on the spread of nuclear weapons, in the NBC White Paper: Countdown to Zero, colorcast Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Interviews have been filmed in Europe with Kai Uwe Von Hassel, West German Defense Minister; Denis Healy, British Defense Minister; and Pierre Messmer, French Armed Forces Minister. U.S. Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara will be seen testifying before the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

Among others appearing on the special program will be Franz-Josef St. Rauss, former West German Defence Minister; Lord Chalfont, Britain's chief disarmament negotiator, General Pierre Gallois, theoretician of France's nuclear weapons policy; William Foster, America's chief delegate to the 18-nation Geneva disarmament conference; Under Secretary of State George Ball and Senator Robert F. Kennedy (D — N.Y.).

NBC News correspondent Chet Huntley will serve as reporter for the special program.

The program will examine steps being taken by non-nuclear countries to acquire atomic bombs and worldwide efforts to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Nuclear Club

"NBC White Paper: Countdown to Zero" will describe the present nuclear "club" consisting of the U.S., Russia, China, France and Great Britain and provide a detailed report on each member's nuclear status, including previously unreported information about China's capabilities.

The program will also analyze the situation in India where the decision to "go nuclear" may soon be taken, the highly sensitive Middle East situation, prospects for Germany acquiring the atom bomb and possible courses of action for the United States.

Will the day come when underdeveloped countries, gangsters and irresponsible groups can gain access to H-Bombs? Very possibly, says Dr. Herman Kahn, director of the Hudson Institute and author of "On Thermonuclear War," in a statement he will make on the NBC News' special.

Other distinguished scientists and educators will appear on the NBC News special, including Jerome Wiesner, dean of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Carl Keysen, director of the Institute for Advance Studies at Princeton, Bernard Feld, professor of physics at M.I.T., and Dr. Ralph Lapp, consulting physicist to the Nuclear Science Service in Washington, D.C., and author of "Man in Space: The Next Decade" and "Kill and Overkill."

Bombs Are Cheap

Dr. Kahn and Dr. Lapp suggest that atom bombs can be built for as little as a few hundred thousand dollars and that the price tag is not out of reach for underdeveloped nations and organized criminals. To quote Dr. Kahn: "There'll be the problem that really irresponsible nations of people may get it (the bomb). It may even spread to . . . the gangster level . . . or the people with enormous ideological or racist problems on their hands. What happens in these unstable countries when the army gets hold of these nuclear weapons?"

"The A-bomb is no longer a rich man's possession" says Dr. Lapp on the program. He goes on to describe how atomic bombs work and how they have become cheaper and easier to make in recent years. Using a blackboard, he describes the process of turning a small lump of plutonium into a ball of fire equal to 20,000 tons of TNT. He then shows that by adding lithium around the core of the bomb, it can be made 1,000 times more powerful. Lapp concludes: "A-bombs can be made for a few hundred thousand dollars apiece, but this bomb (with lithium added) . . . can be made for a million dollars."

Man of the Month

The draftee — how he is picked and what happens to him once he is inducted into the Army — will be the Man of the Month on "The Twentieth Century" Sunday, at 6 p.m. on Channel 7.

CBS News Correspondent Walter Cronkite is the reporter.

The Man of the Month broadcast follows two 18-year-olds — David Pettit and Larry Don Taylor — from the time they register with their draft board in Topeka, Kan., to the time they take their pre-induction physical and mental examination. Sequences also show them and their draft group at the induction station in Kansas City and at the reception centre at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., where they begin basic combat training.

Cars, Horse Races

"CBS Sports Spectacular" covers the Grand Prix of the United States and presents a preview of the 1966 Kentucky Derby, both in color, Sunday, at 2:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

Coverage of the Grand Prix, which was raced at Watkins Glen, N.Y., will focus on British drivers Graham Hill and Jackie Stewart and their team manager, Tony Rudd.

Hill tells the story of the 1965 world racing season leading up to the Grand Prix, the only race in the United States that counts toward the world driving championship. Stewart, a Formula-1 driver in his first year on the championship circuit, entered the race one point behind Hill, the Number 2 man in the world standings.

Viewers will follow the British team and listen to their comments as they prepare their cars in the pits during practice runs at Watkins Glen and in the race itself. Highlights will be shown of five European Grand Prix championship races — in Monte Carlo, Belgium, Germany, Italy and England.

QUESTIONING — Investigator Trevor Howard as a UN narcotic's agent probes Senta Berger in the UN Special, "The Poppy Is Also a Flower," Friday at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 4 and 8. The program deals with a multi-million-dollar narcotics ring.

The special Kentucky Derby preview will spotlight the leading contenders for this mile-and-a-quarter classic for 3-year-olds at Churchill Downs. Among the horses eligible for the race are undefeated Graustark; the Eddie Neloy-trained quartet of Buckpasser, Bold and Brave, and Impressive and Stupendous; Moccasin, 1965 horse of the year; Priceless Gem, and the late-blooming Abe's Hope.

Arabian World

Lowell Thomas transports viewers to the Arabian world of the Indian Ocean as he joins a group of Arabian sailors on one of the oldest and longest trading routes in the world in "Persian Gulf to Zanzibar" on "High Adventure" Sunday, at 4 p.m., over Channel 4 in color.

Here, as 4,000 years ago, big booms carry precious prizes of the Persian Gulf to spice rich Zanzibar — from the pearl fisheries off Bahrein along the incense coat of Arabia — seeking cargo in the Hadramaut where cities have been hidden from the world since the time of the Queen of Sheba.

Sexual Psychopathy

The problems of the sexual psychopath will be examined on KING-TV's "Community Workshop," to be televised at 9 a.m., Sunday, on Channel 5.

The program will take an in-depth look at methods of treatment, the legal problems involved in dealing with the sexual psychopath, and the facilites used in their treatment.

KING-TV cameramen were on hand to film Washington State's first statewide conference on sexual psychopathy, held in Seattle on Saturday, April 2, at the Pacific Science Centre.

The day-long meeting drew some of the nation's top experts in the field.

The program will also show films of a group therapy session being conducted at Western State Hospital. Viewers will see a group of patients talking about their problems with their psychiatrist.

Sullivan Show

Jimmy Durante, Petula Clark, the Animals, Franco Corelli, Dorothy Kirsten and Myron Cohen will appear on "The Ed Sullivan Show" in color from New York Sunday, at 8 p.m., on Channels 2, 6, 7 and 12.

Durante will offer a potpourri of comedy, songs and piano selections.

Petula Clark, English star, will sing "Just Say Goodbye" and "Sign of the Times," her current hit recording.

Tenor Franco Corelli and soprano Dorothy Kirsten of the Metropolitan Opera will sing the first-act duet of Mimi and Rodolfo from Puccini's "La Boheme."

The Animals, British vocal and instrumental group, will present some of their hit tunes, and storyteller Myron Cohen will deliver a humorous monologue.

Other guests are Gitta Morelly, contortionist, and the Swingle Singers, who chant baroque music with a swing beat.

Other weekend viewing highlights are listed in order of appearance as follows:

TONIGHT

7:00: Channel 4: ABC Scope. A profile of the U.S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade, the first unit to complete a year of duty in Viet Nam.

7:00: Channel 5: Racing U.S.A. Highlights of the 1964 Rebel 300.

ASK RITHET'S
You are invited to submit questions on insurance and similar matters for inclusion in this column. The origin of such queries is kept entirely secret.
Q. Is there any kind of Third Party Liability insurance to cover damage caused by the use of my outboard motor boat?
A. Yes. A Personal Liability policy is available which covers bodily injury and property damage to others caused by the ownership and use of a motorboat. This policy applies not only while the boat is in the water, but also while being moved or towed on land. In most cases the policy can be easily added to your dwelling fire insurance policy.

Hollywood Kept Alive By TV Needs

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The two-hour feature for television has replaced pay-TV as Hollywood's pie-in-the-sky.

For 15 years, the cry has been: "Wait until pay-television, then this town will really boom!" The theory had been that when first-run movies could be paid for and seen in the home, the Hollywood product would be in greater demand than ever before.

But pay-TV remains only a glimmering hope after years of experimentation. Now the studios are scouting another, more immediate prospect of future prosperity: The movie feature made expressly for television.

For 1966-67, the three networks have scheduled prime-time movies on five nights — Tuesday and Saturday for NBC, Thursday and Friday for CBS, and Sunday for ABC. All three are scrambling for products.

"Within two or three years, the supply of feature movies should become critical," Grant Tinker, new head of NBC programming, remarked recently.

"It behooves us to start making plans to replenish that supply."

MAKE DEALS

All three networks have entered into deals to provide new features for television.

CBS recently announced a contract with Warner Brothers for six two-hour films which would be released in theatres first, then on the network. CBS was also reported in negotiations for features by producers Ivan Tors and William Castle.

ABC concluded a deal with MGM for six features, which may or may not be released in theatres first. One now is being filmed: 52 miles to Terror with Dana Andrews and Jeanne Crain.

NBC is the pioneer in the field of new features for television, having contracted with Universal for such films during the last two years. The network reported that ratings suffered no drop when new features were played, rather than the more publicized old ones.

MAKE A DOZEN

Universal expects to make a dozen two-hour shows for television this year, most of them for NBC. Recently the studio had three of them shooting at once: Dragnet — 1966 with Jack Webb and Harry Morgan; How I Spent My Summer Vacation, with Robert Wagner, Peter Lawford, Walter Pidgeon, Jill St. John, Lola Albright and Michael Ansara; The Doomsday Flight, with Jack Lord, Van Johnson and John Saxon.

Studios generally reserve the right to release the films in theatres first, in case they turn out promisingly. That happened with The Plainsman, which Universal made for CBS with Don Murray and Guy Stockwell. Additional revenue comes from the release of the films in foreign theatres.

All this bodes well for an industry that once feared television would destroy it. Now it appears television may supply the movie industry a means of survival.

NOW HAS SECOND WIND

Steve Lawrence is properly in his second career, since he had to "retire" as a boy soprano when his voice broke at the age of 11.

UN Dope Fight Probed

Dramatic Special Reveals Methods Of Smugglers, Police

The Poppy Is Also a Flower, fourth in a series of TV dramatic specials about the activities of the United Nations, will be telecast Friday at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 4 and 8.

Princess Grace of Monaco, Senta Berger, Rita Hayworth, Yul Brynner, Marcello Mastroianni, Omar Shariff and a distinguished international cast star in the 90-minute presentation, the most ambitious single dramatic program ever produced for Canadian or U.S. television.

The Poppy Is Also a Flower is based on a storyline by the late Ian Fleming (creator of James Bond) and was written by Jo Eisinger.

In The Poppy Is Also a Flower, E. G. Marshall and Trevor Howard portray American and British agents, respectively, assigned by their governments to help track down a ring of illegal narcotics smugglers.

The program has James Bond overtones.

As agents, Marshall and Howard trace a shipment of contraband opium from its source in the Iranian desert through Teheran, Naples, Rome, Monte Carlo and the French Riviera. They eventually identify and eliminate the kingpin of the smuggling ring.

Canada 99

"Like winds and sunsets, wild things were taken for granted until progress began to do away with them."

That statement, by the late American naturalist Aldo Leopold, touches on the theme of the final Canada 99 program, which will be seen Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6. Subtitled Once Upon a Marsh, the program looks at the resources of our waterfowl and marshes and examines the role they play in the lives of Canadians.

Ron Bashford, of CBC Winnipeg, who produced and directed the program, says: "Although I was born and raised in Manitoba I was astonished at the amount of water on the Canadian prairies. It wasn't until we flew by helicopter over the central and western part of my province that I was aware of the great pattern of farm and marshland existing side by side."

Academy Awards

On Monday at 7 p.m. Channels 2, 4 and 6 will carry the 38th annual Academy Awards presentation of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences live from Santa Monica Civic Auditorium in California.

Master of ceremonies is comedian Bob Hope, who has handled the honors 11 times before.

Speculation as to who will win the coveted "Oscars" is already rampant and will reach its peak as millions of North American television viewers settle down to watch the dazzling extravaganza.

The ever-expanding list of popular stars of stage, screen and television who will make appearances on the 1966 Academy Awards show to date include Dorothy Malone, Julie Andrews, James Garner, Gregory Peck, Yvette Mimieux, Omar Sharif, Joanne Woodward, Rex Harrison, Natalie Wood, Warren Beatty, Jack Lemmon, Sophia Loren, Peter Ustinov, George Hamilton, Lila Kedrova, Lana Turner, Paul Newman, Debbie Reynolds, Shirley MacLaine, Liza Minelli and Patty Duke.

In special performances viewers will see dancer Cyd Charisse in a salute to screen musicals and choreographers, whose unique artistry and achievements have given the Dance new horizons on film. Television, nightclub and recording stars The Smothers Brothers sing The Ballad of Cat Ballou and rising young star Liza Minelli sings the title tune from What's New Pussycat?

Following is a list of nominations for the top three categories — Best Picture of the Year, Best Performance by an Actor, and Best Performance by an Actress.

Best Picture of the Year — Darling, Doctor Zhivago, Ship of Fools, The Sound of Music, and A Thousand Clowns.

Best Performance by an Actor — Richard Burton (The Spy Who Came In from the Cold), Lee Marvin (Cat Ballou), Laurence Olivier (Othello), Rod Steiger (The Pawnbroker), and Oskar Werner (Ship of Fools).

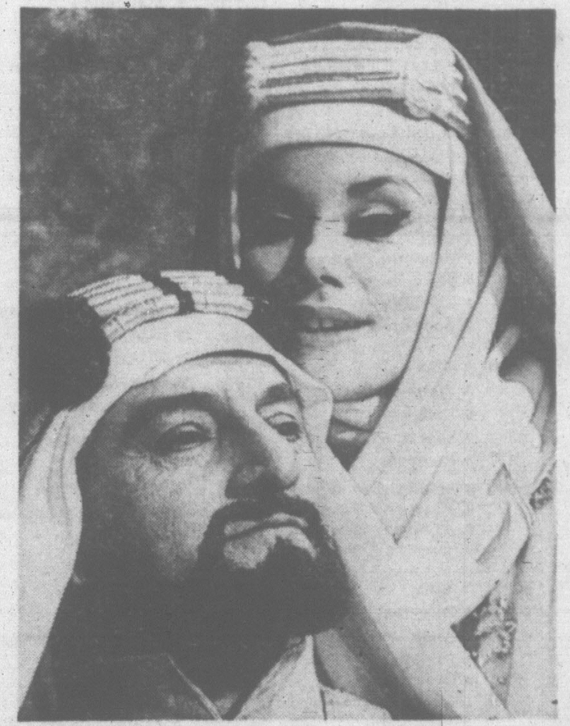
Best Performance by an Actress — Julie Andrews (The Sound of Music), Julie Christie (Darling), Samantha Eggar (The Collector), Elizabeth Hartman (Parch of Blue), and Simone Signoret (Ship of Fools).

Testing Government

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania, Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York and 12 other members of Congress will define U.S. administration policies (to help viewers place themselves in the American political spectrum) when they appear on NBC News' special colorcast of "Testing: Right, Left or Centre?" Wednesday at 10 p.m. on Channel 5.

Each guest on the NBC News special will give his views on a fundamental aspect of the current American political scene. Vice-President Humphrey will describe the president's "Great Society" program and Governor Scranton and Senator Kennedy will talk about the relationship between government and the individual as they see it. Other subjects include whether there should be a national anti-discrimination policy in housing, whether the Supreme Court makes proper decisions, and whether there should be federal laws protecting civil rights workers in the South, permitting prayers in schools, and forbidding wiretapping.

As each subject is covered, NBC News correspondents Frank McGee and Robert Abernethy will ask viewers to choose the viewpoints corresponding most closely to their own. The scores kept by viewers at home will help them to decide their individual attitudes towards politics and where they stand in the political spectrum.



THE ROAD TO LEBANON will have Danny Thomas (shown with guest star Claudine Auger) play a dual role as he is joined by Bing Crosby on the season's final "Danny Thomas Special" Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5. Danny appears here as Ali Ali Oxen Free, a desert chieftain. Miss Auger portrays Ali's "son" Laurence—(he wanted a boy).

Festival

James Oliver Buswell IV, a brilliant 19-year-old American violinist, joins Seiji Ozawa and the Toronto Symphony on CBC-TV's Festival series, Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. (Channels 2 and 6) in a one-hour concert, The Exquisite Twenties.

Produced and directed by Franz Kraemer, the program features music of the Twenties by three composers — Maurice Ravel, Igor Stravinsky and George Gershwin.

Ravel's La Valse, performed by the Toronto Symphony with Ozawa conducting, is a waltz which mingles the romantic measures of the 19th century with the jazz idiom of this century.

Waltz and Ragtime, from Stravinsky's L'Histoire du Soldat, features violin soloist James Oliver Buswell IV with six instrumentalists from the orchestra, conducted by Seiji Ozawa. The work is based on an old Russian legend about a deserting soldier whose soul (represented by the violin) is claimed by the devil.

Young Buswell joins the Toronto Symphony in the third and fourth movements of Stravinsky's Violin Concerto, a work he performed with the orchestra in a concert at Massey Hall in February of this year. His performance with the Toronto Symphony and Ozawa at that time won him a wild ovation from the capacity audience.

Road to Lebanon

Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Claudine Auger, Hugh Downs and Sheldon Leonard join Danny Thomas in "The Road to Lebanon," the season's final "Danny Thomas Special," Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

The first "Road" picture ever made for television finds Danny Thomas in a dual role as he decides to visit his ancestral home only to learn that two people are searching for him. The first is Bing Crosby, who wants Danny to become his new partner since he thinks Bob Hope no longer fills the bill. The second is Ali Ali Oxen Free (also played by Danny), a desert chieftain who decrees that Danny must die for an unpardonable sin committed against the tribal name by the American branch of the family.

Claudine Auger portrays Ali Ali's "son," Laurence. (He wanted a boy.)

Sheldon Leonard appears as Arabian storyteller Hamad the Bore, Hugh Downs "interviews" Crosby on the "Today" show, and Bob Hope makes a brief appearance just when Danny and Bing are convinced that all is lost.

FIRST STEP IS PUT FRAMEWORK IN PLACE

Time to Get Out Nets for Favorite Climbing Plants

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

Most of us had figured on doing quite a bit or work in the garden over the Easter weekend, but Jupiter Pluvius had other ideas. He absolutely refused to play along so it ended as a lost weekend as far as gardening was concerned.

This means extra work added to a backlog that had already reached disconcerting proportions, and with only two weeks until the beginning of May when gardening really starts in earnest, we shall have to use every spare minute to catch up.

Providing the weather cooperates, we shall at least have an hour for gardening after supper for the last week of April, since advanced summer time goes into effect on the 24th, and it would be wise to plan a job for each evening that will lighten the load for May.

One of the first things we can think about is the framework for the sweet peas. With all climbing annuals, whether sweet peas, garden peas, runner beans, or cucumbers, it is prudent to get the framework into place before the seeds are sown or the plants set out.

Quite a few gardeners will have last year's structure in storage. This weekend would be a good time to get out the different pieces (the nets, wires, posts and cross-bars). check them over and make necessary repairs.

Sweet pea plants that have been grown in peat pots should go out as soon as possible, planting the entire pot so as not to disturb the roots.

These peat pots can go directly into the soil and the plant roots will penetrate the peat, and then spread into the surrounding soil.

This is not the case with fibre pots. These are very slow to disintegrate and I have never had what one could call success when they were left on the plants.

For this reason I always advise that only the true peat pots should be considered as safe to set right into the soil with the plants.

Sweet peas differ from most of our garden plants because they can be planted in the same place year after year.

Once a good bed has been prepared for them, that is, deeply loosened soil with a good quantity of well-rotted manure or compost added, all the gardener has to do in future years is add some manure or compost and a little fertilizer and set out the plants.

When the structure on which they are to climb is made from scrap water pipe, the frame can be left in position over winter and only the net, strings, or bamboos put into storage.

Location is quite important for a good showing of flowers. Over the years, I have had the best results when the plants were grown on the east side of a building. In this position they get the morning sun which they enjoy, but are out of the hot afternoon sun.

Shelter from wind is also beneficial. In windy locations the petals are damaged and the vines bent or broken when the gusts are strong.

It is disconcerting after a storm to find several lines going yellow because they have been cracked or broken.

When the young plants are set out be sure to provide immediate support on which they can climb, in fact, hook a few tendrils around the supports to give them a start.

If the netting or wires are six inches or so above the plants, use some twiggy sticks for the plants to cling to until they can reach the main structure.

Not only do the plants grow much faster when they have a hold on something, it also prevents them being spun around like propellors when the wind blows and having their young growths twisted and broken.

QUIZZING the GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

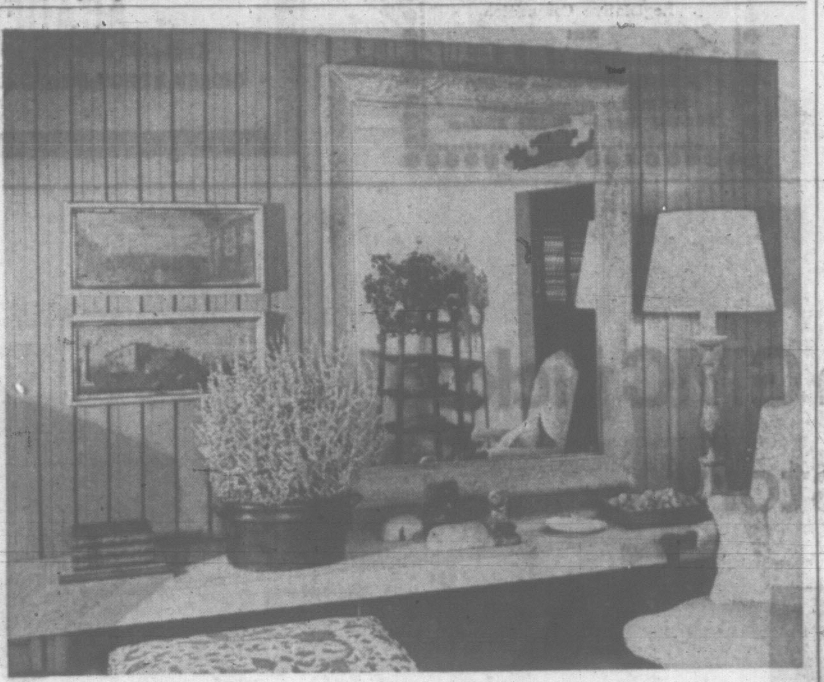
Q. My camellia which has bloomed for the last two years is not flowering at all this spring, and the leaves look a light green instead of a dark green. It is well shaded by other shrubs so that it can hardly be due to sunlight. What shall I do about it? K.T., Saanich Rd.

A. Take a look at the camellia at various times during a sunny day to see whether the plant is getting at least six hours of sunlight. This is needed for ripening the woody stems for flowers.

The yellowing of the foliage may be due to lack of sufficient available food in the soil. Suggest first a gentle, thorough watering at the roots, followed by a half cup of acid-type fertilizer (especially for azaleas, rhodos, camellias, pieris and similar acid-loving shrubs) spread over the root area, and watered in. A difference in color should be noted within a month. If there is too much shade, move the shrub to a somewhat sunnier position. If it is two feet or less in height, do it now; if larger, wait until September to make the change.

Q. The white spiraea that is out now, does not look like the Bridal-wreath bush which we had in the East. Do you know if the eastern one can be grown here? M.C., Sidney.

A. The one blooming now is Spiraea thunbergi; the one known as Bridal-wreath is Spiraea vanhouteii, coming into bloom by late April, lasting into June. It does well, and is available here.



This House Has 50 Years

By PAULINE GRAVES

When one sees this handsome wall, designed by William Schneider, A.I.D., one does not realize that it is installed in a 50-year-old house. Redwood laths cover the wall, every third one doubled to create texture. To counteract these strong vertical lines, a wide ledge, 23 inches high, extends almost the length of the wall. Color contrast emphasizes the ledge, which is off-white against the light cocoa background.

Not only is the wall handsome and distinctive, but an application like this, almost a wall over a wall, can hide many defects. Cracks, an accumulation of wallpaper or paint over the years, uneven surfaces, all disappear.

The ledge is made to seem heavy with a 1x4 as a border, but actually it is composed of two 1x10s on a frame of 2x2s, bolted to the wall with heavy angle irons.

Two brackets at each end give the ledge additional support and are decorative as well. The mellow finish of the ledge has interest, the off-white flat paint glazed with raw umber and then sanded.

Also a part of the wall's decorative success is the large mirror reposing in an old frame from a second-hand store. The scale of the mirror is just right in relation to the ledge and it gives depth to the room.

Luxury Look of Chiseled Stone Moving Indoors from Patios

CHICAGO (NFS) — The rich look of hand-chiseled stone, popular on exterior walls and patios of more expensive homes since 1960, has moved indoors.

Fireplaces, recreation room walls, room dividers, and planters of stone are now seen regularly in new suburban homes.

Interior decorators are including stone in their designs wherever it can serve as the focal point of a room. Around a fireplace — a natural focal point — stone adds texture and color interest.

In family rooms and dens, stone wall treatments — wainscoting or full-height panels — impart a casual, brightening effect to the decor.

ROOM DIVIDERS

Room dividers and planters of stone provide an unique way to create study corners or to separate dining and living areas.

Properly selected, stone can create a warm or cool atmosphere in a room, depending upon the decorative feeling desired.

Warm browns and reds will usually go best in carpeted areas, and the blue-white effect of marble looks best with tiled floors.

WALL COLORS

With parquet or hardwood floors, wall colors should dictate the choice of stone.

To redecorate with stone, budget is not the only limiting factor. Real stone requires professional application, and its weight may restrict its use on some walls and floors. And once in place, that's it.

Do-it-yourself home decorators are using an economical new fiberglas stone panel called Roxite for interior walls and room dividers. The panels, made of real crushed stone imbedded in durable fiberglas, actually look and feel like warm Sierra blend or Georgia marble.

Rozite corners, edgestones, and panels are simply nailed on, and a special mortar covers up nail heads and seams.

Free plans for room dividers and planters and for accent-wall treatments are available from the Roxite manufacturer: Bolen International, Inc., 5238 W. Belmont, Chicago, Ill.

Other uses of stone inside modern homes include bars in recreation rooms and porch-and-patio benches.

Floor-to-ceiling wall sections of stone, about four feet in length, effectively brighten long interior corridors and entrance ways.

Proper selection of stone shapes is essential for desired effects.

To make a room appear larger and to maintain harmony with the horizontal design of modern homes and furniture, predominantly horizontal stones are now most popular.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

If the weather and the water is warm enough, clean out the lily pools of all debris; and plant waterlilies.

Sweet peas grown in peat pots can be planted out if the soil has been well prepared and the netting or strings are placed.

Give final feeding of bulb fertilizer to daffodils and tulips. Avoid splashing of flowers but water the fertilizer into the soil if weather is dry.

If any roses have not been pruned, do them at once.

Repair brown patches in lawns by raking, sowing fresh seed, and covering with fine sand and soil.

Sow outdoors if weather still good: peas, beet, white turnip, lettuce, radish. Make small sowings of these last two, and make them often.

Indoors, prick out the tomato seedlings into small pots, plant bands or peat pots and keep them growing sturdily.

Sow seed of various squash, marrow, and cucumbers in peat pots if garden is subject to late frosts. Transplant outdoors by end of May.

Individual Kitchen

NEW YORK (UPI) — The modern homemaker's desire for "individualized" kitchens is one of the major reasons for the increasing popularity of stainless steel sinks, according to Robert J. Ritchey, general manager of United States Steel's residential construction marketing.

New Treatments

NEW YOR K(UPI) —"The Elegant World of Window Shades," by Mary Davis Gillies, focuses on creating exciting new window treatments.

She reports clutter is out and colorful trimness is in. The book tells how to choose your decorative shade for perfect light control; why to use room darkeners for bedrooms, bed-sitting rooms, television rooms and children's rooms; translucent shades for filtered light in dining and living rooms and kitchens.

Duncan Girl Wins B.C.-Wide Speaking Finals

A 15-year-old Duncan girl won the B.C. 4-H Club public speaking finals Friday.

Roberta Jameson was awarded the B.C. Institute of Agrologists silver tray in a ceremony following the contest in the B.C. Hydro building's Flame Room.

A member of the Cowichan 4-H Beef Club and representing the South Vancouver Island district, Roberta spoke on Soil Conservation.

All eight 4-H districts of the province were represented in the finals.

Runner-up was Lena Reeuwyk, 18, of Sardis. Lena, from the Chilliwack Lamb Club, was one of two contestants from the Fraser Valley. Subject of her speech was 4-H in the Past, Present and Future.

The second Fraser Valley girl, Colleen Kennedy, of Mission and a member of the Pitt Meadows 4-H Holstein Calf Club, took third place with a speech entitled Should You Marry a Farmer? Miss Kennedy at 14 was the youngest of the medallist orators.

11th COMMANDMENT

The judges' choice, Miss Jameson, said in her talk "We need an 11th commandment."

She proposed "Thou shalt care for the land."

Topsoil, she said, was one of our most precious possessions.

"The best and richest land in the province is at our river mouths," she said, adding that Vancouver Island particularly is prey to many kinds of soil erosion.

The contestants were given from eight to 10 minutes to deliver their speeches.

FINALISTS

The five remaining finalists, each of whom was presented with an award by Ss. Beaver Kiwanis Club's Jim Augenstein, were:

Lot More Harriets Than Harries

Head, Heart, Hands, Health and a lot more Harriets than Harries.

The 4-H movement in Canada has lost the battle of the sexes.

Though for five years after its founding in 1911 there were no females at all in 4-H, they now have the balance of power.

It's so bad the lonely hearts columns in rural newspapers carry ads reading "young farmer wants to meet attractive girl—with tractor."

This imbalance in 4-H membership reflects in the organization's public-speaing contest.

All eight finalists in the competition held Friday in Victoria were girls. Same as last year and the year before that.

They say you can't keep them down on the farm, but this is ridiculous.

$1,000 Bail Set In Salt Spring Theft Charge

GANGES—Charles R. Head, 54, of Cusheon Lake, Salt Spring Island, was committed for trial Friday on charges of breaking, entering and theft, possession of stolen property and willfully setting fire to a dwelling.

Bail was set at $1,000 by Magistrate M. F. Pieler.

Head is charged in connection with a March 29 fire which destroyed the home of Donald Symons of Cusheon Lake.

Investigation by the RCMP and the fire marshall's office revealed a number of articles were stolen from the house prior to the fire.

Most of the articles have been recovered, said police.

MAN KILLED WHEN PULLED INTO MACHINE

COURTENAY — Clarence Fitzgerald, 40, of Courtenay, was killed Friday in a logging accident on Denman Island, south of here. Police said he was working on a logging machine when his clothing became caught in a revolving shaft, which pulled him into the machine.

The outside of a GMC pickup is only half the story…

here's the other half.

The GMC pickup's box floor is made of preservative-treated wood. It can't rust; won't "drum." Stays like new longer!

Standard two-stage coil rear suspension automatically adjusts springs to load demand. Optional heavy duty leaf springs shown here.

Double roof-panels with sandwiched insulation help keep driver warm in winter, cool in summer and cut down on noise in cab.

Standard cab comfort and convenience features include windshield washers, two-speed electric wipers, and comfortable, deep-padded seats with two seat belts.

Printed circuit for instruments eliminates spaghetti-like tangle of wires, ends shorting, makes circuit-tracing easy.

A sturdy three-speed manual transmission is standard. Or choose an extra-cost heavy duty three-speed, four-speed, or automatic transmission (on most models).

Standard GMC pickup engine is an eager 250 cu. in. six with 155 hp. More powerful engines are available, including a 170-hp six, a 175-hp V8 and a 220-hp V8.

Independent coil-spring front suspension makes GMC ride almost like a car. The load is better cushioned and handling is easy at any speed. GMC pickups are great with camper backs.

PM Demanded Dupuis Resign

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Yvon Dupuis, former federal minister without portfolio, told the court at his trial Friday the circumstances of Prime Minister Pearson's request for his resignation.

Mr. Dupuis, accused of accepting $10,000 from Roch Deslauriers, a chiropractor from St. Johns, Que., in exchange for efforts to obtain a racetrack franchise, said that on Jan. 20, 1965, Guy Favreau, then minister of justice, asked him to see Mr. Pearson.

"When I met them, Mr. Pearson and Mr. Favreau looked troubled and nervous. Mr. Pearson told me: "I'm sorry but I must ask for your resignation as minister without portfolio.' "

Mr. Dupuis said he insisted on the right to explain his side of the case before being condemned. He said Mr. Pearson replied that the newspapers already had wind of an RCMP investigation and the affair would be all over the newspapers in perhaps a matter of hours.

Mr. Dupuis said he told the prime minister: "I shall certainly not resign without thinking about it and without getting advice."

At this point, he said, Mr. Favreau advised him that the RCMP were waiting for him so that they could go through his offices and his apartment.

Later, on Jan. 22, 1965, after the RCMP had also searched his home in St. Johns, Mr. Dupuis said he received a telephone call from Mr. Pearson who said: "I haven't yet received your resignation and I should like to have it this morning."

Mr. Dupuis said he replied: "I'm sorry. I haven't yet decided to give it because I have done nothing which would lead me to do so."

He then quoted Mr. Pearson as saying: "I am not calling you to argue about the matter. I'm asking for your resignation. I am the prime minister. I name my ministers. I am demanding your resignation. I have the right to do so."

Mr. Dupuis said he then went up to Ste. Adele, Que., to see Maurice Lamontagne, a cabinet colleague.

"He was a friend. He told me that, in my place in the circumstances, he would leave the cabinet, and that I could justify my position better in that way.

RESIGNS BY PHONE

"I telephoned Mr. Pearson . . . and read him my resignation which I had written on a piece of paper. 'Are you going to bring it to me?' Mr. Pearson asked. I told him: "Wouldn't you have a messenger who could come and get it?"

Mr. Dupuis said he did not want to go to Ottawa at that time where he would have to "face the mob of journalists. I put the text in a sealed envelope to Mr. Lamontagne, and that was how a messenger came to get my resignation in a hotel."

Mr. Dupuis, who choked up in the course of his testimony and wiped his eyes with his handkerchief, also testified that he asked for a royal commission inquiry into allegations against him concerning the racetrack. He made such a request to Mr. Favreau and, through an intermediary, to Premier Jean Lesage, he said.

"I felt that, if the RCMP had charge of the investigation, I would be the one investigated, not the racetrack. I wanted a royal inquiry, so that light would be thrown on the whole affair and on all those, far or near, who were mixed up in it."

Mr. Dupuis was testifying for the third day in his own defence. The trial continues Monday.

Traffic Jungle

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police Chief Ralph Booth said Thursday that the city is becoming a traffic jungle and the accident toll has hit an all-time record. He said this can be blamed on "driver inattention and failure to accept responsibility on the highway."

Government Calls Meeting As Quebec Labor Restless

MONTREAL (CP)—A weekend of activity was expected in Montreal's construction strike, the largest and potentially most explosive of a series of labor disputes which have left more than 18,000 Quebec province workers idle.

Representatives of the Confederation of National Trade Unions and the Quebec Federation of Labor, whose member unions work on the construction projects, were called by the provincial labor department to a meeting today.

An estimated 10,000 CNTU members are on strike. The approximately 20,000 QFL construction workers are not on strike but large numbers have not crossed CNTU picket lines.

A mass meeting of CNTU members Sunday night will hear a report from their leaders.

The strike has hit tens of millions of dollars worth of construction projects in Montreal, although work on Expo 67 is unaffected because of a no-strike agreement signed two years ago.

MAKE TALKS OFFER

In other strikes:

—Leaders of some 2,300 technical school teachers, facing legal action said they are willing to negotiate. The provincial government replied it is willing to negotiate, but only if the teachers return to work as ordered by a court injunction.

—Some 3,000 construction workers at Hydro-Quebec's mammoth Manicouagan-Outardes construction project remained off the job. Le Devoir says unionized engineers estimate the company has lost $120,000 a day in interest on loans and wasted salaries since the walkout started March 15 over a dispute involving men on the job.

—About 250 Hydro-Quebec engineers remained off the job. They went on strike Wednesday.

—Some 5,000 workers at Dominion Textile's plants continued a strike that started six weeks ago. Wages and other contract benefits are the main issues at stake in the strikes.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1966—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

One day I sketched for you here a futuristic fantasy in which Victoria's suburbs had crept north to mesh with the ticky-tacky subdivisions of Vancouver - employed commuters.

Well, on Thursday evening we took ourselves to the first of four meetings laid on by the capital region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, and came away with the knowledge that the dream, or nightmare, is all too likely to materialize.

The hope of planners, both professional and amateur, is to channel the expected population influx in such a manner that life will remain reasonably pleasant in this demi-paradise.

If they succeed, considerable credit will probably go to a transplanted Welshman by the name of Anthony H. Roberts, whose lilting voice lends a touch of poetry even to sober facts.

★

Mr. Roberts, who directs the Capital Region Planning Board, has broken any number of lances against the dragon of uncontrolled urban sprawl since he came to Victoria from Burnaby five years ago.

He was chief speaker at the meeting, which he shared with a middle-aged audience, a panel of four questioners, and an actual fibre-board panel that towered high over his head.

During introductions and other preliminaries, this last stood faced toward the wall. When the time came for him to commence, Mr. Roberts lugged it around to show Saanich Peninsula in outline. There were no houses, no roads—only a speckle of trees to mark the edge of the watershed.

All was as man first found it; but planner Roberts, a prophet of the future, didn't leave it that way for long.

From a palette which consisted of waxed-paper coffee mugs wedged into holes in a board, he chose a color, then dipped a long-handled brush.

"The Russians," he said, rimming the shoreline expertly with azure, "have their blue belt, and so do we."

True enough; and that's some comfort. But the audience wanted green belts too, and these Mr. Roberts later applied in the shape of parks.

Brown in a peculiarly unpleasant shade was the color of industry, and those areas were even sparser than the parkland.

Downtown Victoria was worth revitalizing, but unlikely to press more than a timid step past its present confines.

The expanse beyond, clear out to Land's End, our prophet of the inevitable left blank except for a slashing north-to-south parkway. Into the open spaces, wave after wave, with a break here for the university and there for a school or a community centre, will surge houses, houses, houses.

★

It should be remembered at this point that, like all good planners, Mr. Roberts is guided by realities and probabilities rather than his own emotions. So please don't blame him.

We're never going to amount to shucks industrially. Our agriculture is a dying duck, since the rise in land prices is going to doom the farmlands. It seems we will remain primarily a government and service town—service in the sense that you serve me and I serve you—with a yearly and lucrative invasion by tourists, if we keep ourselves looking nice.

Another of our present functions will remain unchanged. To borrow apt words from Dr. L. Austin Wright of Deep Cove Property Owners' Association, we will continue as "God's waiting-room" for the elderly retired.

I'm not sure what all this adds up to, but I hope as does Dr. Wright, that space will remain on a peninsula destined to reach the quarter-million population mark by 1981, for a man to paddle his feet in salt water without elbows gouging his ribs.

The unreconstructed will also sympathize with the lady panelist of the quartet, Mrs. Ruby Masters, from the Association of Women Electors.

"I hope," said she, wistfully, "there will be at least a little room for the curly lilies."

Victoria's Finest Parade on May 8

Victoria's finest will parade before the public at the annual city police inspection May 8, from 2 to 4 p.m., in Memorial Arena.

Members of the force will receive medals and service bars and the police precision drill squad will perform.

Also on the program will be a judo display, an appearance by Vancouver City Police motorcycle drill team, city police youth band and Victoria Girls' Drill Team.

Man Given Up for Dead Found Alive by Brother

Slept Under Tree; Ate Rose Shoots

By BOB DONAHUE

For the past five days a 35-year-old draftsman has been living a Robinson Crusoe life while lost on an Island in the Georgia Strait.

Given up for dead several days ago, Gerry Brda of Richmond, slept on a bed of boughs beneath a cedar tree and existed on a diet of rose bush shoots and raw oysters.

He did not know there was a family living about a half-mile from where he swam ashore on Prevost Island, two miles east of Salt Spring Island, last Sunday night after falling from his rowboat on a fishing trip.

He was found alive and well late Friday afternoon by his brother, Robert, several days after RCMP and Air-Sea Rescue listed him as "missing and presumed drowned."

●

His eight-foot plywood boat was washed ashore upright on Salt Spring last Monday.

"It's like coming back from the dead," he said today.

Brda's storybook tale began Sunday evening.

Let him tell it:

I started out about 6 p.m. from Long Harbor on Salt Spring Island. I fished for a while until dark when I decided to head back.

One of the oarlocks jammed and I stood up in the boat to kick at it when I fell into the water.

I went underwater and began swimming desperately for the surface, but I didn't know which direction to swim. I must have been swimming downward . . . my lungs began hurting . . . it was pitch black.

Then I just relaxed and when I floated to the surface I couldn't find the boat in the darkness.

I saw a dark outline in the distance which I thought was Salt Spring Island.

●

I swam and I swam—I don't know for how long before I reached shore.

It was so cold. I knew I had to get warm so I crawled up on the bank and fell asleep in the warm moss.

I must have slept for two days, but I thought it was only overnight.

When I awoke I was very sore—my lungs were very sore and I have a game leg which I could barely move.

I hobbled further into the bush until I found a friendly cedar tree where I made a bed of boughs and slept the rest of the day and night.

When I awoke on what I thought was the second day (it was the third) I began picking the shoots from a nearby rose bush. I little while later I went back to the shore and opened some oysters.

●

I knew nobody would be searching for me inland, but it was too cold to stay on the beach so I went back into the bush.

Further inland I found an open meadow where there were pools of water to drink from and it was there I discovered abandoned farm buildings.

I saw the airplanes overhead, but they were so high I didn't bother waving at them.

I made a bed in the barn and fell asleep again. My lungs were still hurting and I thought I had pneumonia. I began to wonder if I would make it out alive.

The next morning I heard a motor boat in the bay so I began walking toward the water.

It was my brother Robert and a friend—I was never so glad to see anybody.

Robert Brda continued searching for his brother after the search was called off because he "just couldn't accept that Gerry was lost."

Mr. Brda will spend a few days resting on Salt Spring at the home of a friend before returning to Richmond.

PREMIER BENNETT
. . . holding his own

Bennett Battles Beatles!

Premier Bennett is as popular as the Beatles with the people who paint pictures on the fence around the museum site.

He appears in two panels, the same number as feature the Beatles.

The other panels feature a bewildering variety of subjects. Many are indescribable and a few are indistinguishable.

Religious themes appear in only three of them but ironically they have caused more trouble than any of the other 400 panels in the fence.

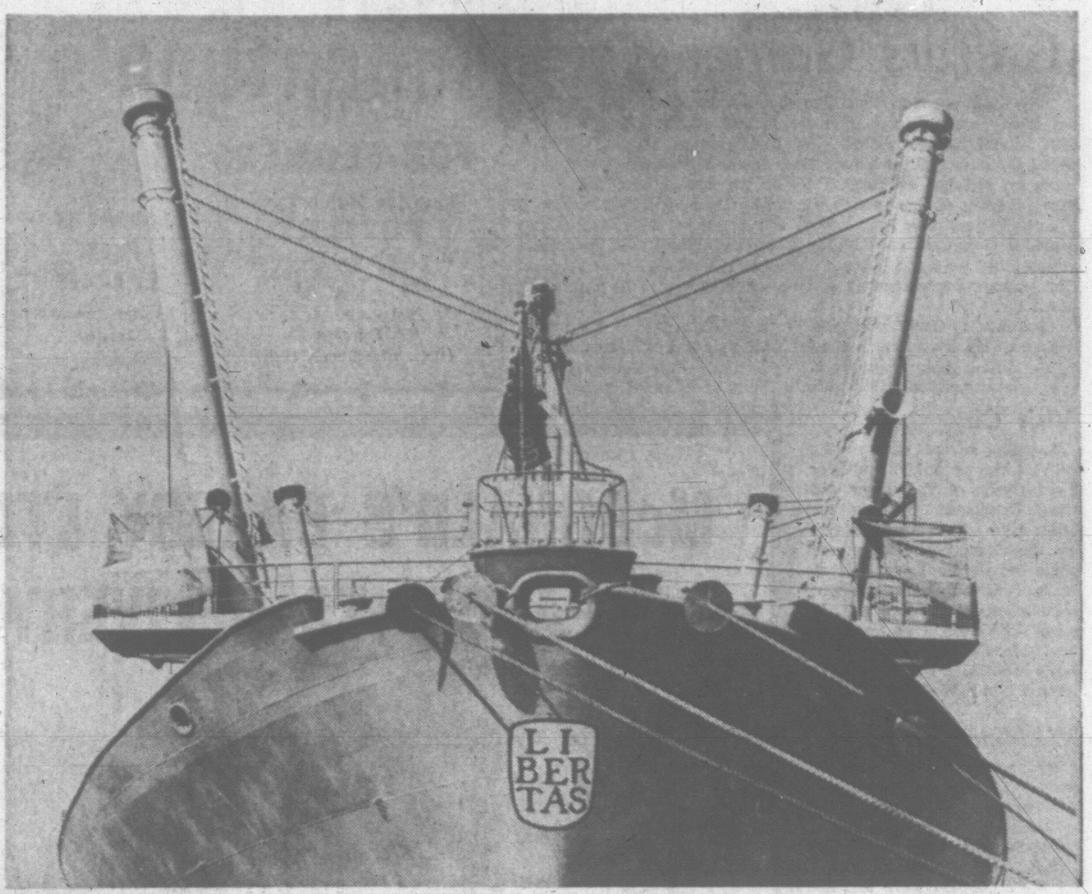
The two youths who painted the religious subjects don't claim to be pious. They used a religious theme because it had not appeared in any other panel.

ACCUSATIONS

But they were immediately accused by passers-by, even before they had finished their paintings, of "pushing religion." Then another painter accused them of stealing the panel he had reserved.

Paint was later splashed on their Crucifixion scene. But the fuss was settled this morning. The other painter gave up his claim on their panel. The youths painted over it and started all over again.

Other painters were at work this morning on the fence. A Norfolk House student was painting a folk singer "just for fun." Around the corner from her several younger teenage girls were working on a panel "to dramatize hanging."



GIANT ANTENNAS make excellent feelers for the deep-sea freighter Tiha which has just finished loading lumber at Ogden Point. At least that's how it looks in this unusual shot taken by Times photographer Bill Halkett. The antennas are newly designed Sampson posts which splay outwards instead of standing upright as on most ships. The posts support the ship's derricks. The 12,000-gross-ton Yugoslavian-registered ship sailed for the U.S. east coast with 1,125,000 board feet of lumber.

On a Tiny Island in the . . .

By TERRY IZZARD

This is a story to bring tea to your eyes.

That's not original but pass the sugar and read on.

It concerns a fairy-tale town called Victoria on a tiny island in the Pacific.

Now the citizens of Victoria were quiet and peace-loving. They worked diligently and steered clear of their big bad brothers on the mainland.

Each day at 5 p.m. the entire populace ceased its daily toil and adjourned to what was known as the "tea shop."

There the goodly womenfolk, teacup in hand, little finger cocked at a 45-degree angle, chatted gaily of the day's social activities.

The menfolk, god-fearing sober men all, discussed the day's events at the office.

In the quaint streets outside, horse-drawn buggies skittered to and fro, bearing young courting couples in the throes of love.

It was an ideal way of life.

Happiness abounded behind the "Crumpet Curtain," a phrase derived from a certain delicacy which was taken with afternoon tea.

But the badmen on the mainland were jealous of the Victorians.

They made jokes about their teas and crumpets. They chided the sober games of cricket and croquet.

Yet no amount of criticism would induce the local populace to change their way of life.

And the latest little fun-poking in a press release on British Columbia by the National Geographic Society is no exception.

The release talks tongue in cheek of tea and crumpets, cricket and croquet, horse-drawn carts and the remark: "They're so English it brings tea to your eyes."

HOW TRUE?

Just how true is the fairy tale?

It's pretty accurate," according to Mike Hepple, head of Victoria Visitor's Bureau.

"The people do drink tea, eat crumpets and ride carts," he says. "And why not?"

Mr. England himself, Sam Lane of the Olde England Inn, thinks its just an image.

But it's an image he helps promote with his roast beef and Yorkshire pudding and steak and kidney pie specialties.

The staid old Empress Hotel takes a bow as the tea and crumpet capital of the world.

In the three summer months some 10,000 pots of tea are served between 3 and 5 p.m. along with thousands of crumpets.

"And they're not all tourists," says assistant manager Stan Porter. "Victorians love their afternoon tea."

Alan Macfarlane, the MLA who lives in the heart of "little England"—Oak Bay—sums it up:

"Behind the tourist promoting facade of this tea and crumpet capital are the happiest, hard-working buggy-riders in the world."

DOCTOR SAW YOUTH AFTER CHARGE LAID

A misheard date resulted in an error in the Times report Friday of the preliminary hearing of Francis Wollaston on a charge of capital murder.

The report said Dr. Charles Gregory, a psychiatrist, had examined Wollaston three days before the slaying of 7-year-old Linda Crocker.

In fact, Dr. Gregory's examination was made subsequent to the youth's arrest and at the direction of the juvenile court judge.

It took place Feb. 17, not Feb. 7 as reported.

EXQUISITE SHOW SPOILED FOR WEEKEND GARDNER

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The world's most exquisite and beautiful flowers are on show today at Memorial Hall, 912 Vancouver Street.

But what a difference it would make if the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society gave the show a face-lifting to make it more attractive to the uninitiated.

It would influence more people to take up alpine gardening — one of the most fascinating and rewarding hobbies.

★ ★ ★

But it has become, perhaps not intentionally a show more for connoisseurs of plants, specialists and serious gardeners. It needn't be. It could be developed as one of the most attractive shows in the Pacific Northwest.

These are my views after seeing the show for 15 consecutive years.

I'm not criticizing the exhibits. They are exceptional this year. And the collection of plants is the largest of its kind in North America.

But there is a real need to improve the layout. Some of the individual species should be exhibited singly with suitable backgrounds.

★ ★ ★

The beauty of many is lost to the untrained eye because they are grouped. Alpines as a whole are miniature and require special settings.

New plants should receive special treatment. Some information should be given as to where they are found and the country of origin.

But don't let these few observations deter you from seeing the show. If you are a gardener, don't miss it. It closes at 9 tonight.

It was opened Friday by Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, a keen gardener and an authority on alpine plants.

Judges awarded the Dr. C. T. Hilton trophy for the highest aggregate of points to J. Erickson, winner of the cup in 1959 and 1963. He specializes in growing alpines from seed.

Other winners: Rex Murfitt, Biggerstaff Wilson trophy for most outstanding plant; A. DeMezey, Christiansen cup, rarest plant in show; Flora-Vista Gardens, Will and Marjorie Pemberton trophy, most outstanding rhododendron.

Col. Keith Dixon, Jeffries cup, highest aggregate novice section; Jonas Mynkantas, Alan Brooks Morkill trophy, best native plant; Mrs. W. W. Ritchie, Barton trophy, best primlia polyanthus (amateur); Ed Lohbrunner, Lohbrunner trophy, best plant for woodland garden; V. W. Ahier, VIR and AG trophy, most meritorius plant, commercial or amateur.

★ ★ ★

In the children's section, Heather McIlree placed first in 12 years and under. Jillie Boyd took top honors in the 13 to 16 class.

FINE FLOWERS AND SHRUBS can be seen at the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society at Memorial Hall today. More than 1,000 are on display and some are new to this area. Shown above is Rosalind Napier, 13, of 1930 Woodley Road, inspecting rhododendrons.

Rear-End Collisions Sent 3 to Hospital

Two rear-end car collisions Friday night sent three persons to hospital with minor injuries.

Two were injured at 9:22 p.m. when a car driven west on Yates by Robert Unwin, 1842 Crescent, was in collision with the car of Daniel Pain, 33, of 2253 Sooke Rd.

Police said Mr. Pain sustained a back injury and his wife, Shirley, 34, complained of a sore neck.

The accident occurred in the 700 block Yates near Douglas.

Fourteen minutes later cars driven by John F. Olsen, 1742 Howroyd, and Larry R. Schultz, 865 Wollaston, were in collision at Quadra and Hillside.

Mrs. Marie Olsen, 29, was treated at hospital for a sore neck.

Victorians can put away their beach bags and bikinis this weekend — although the weather outlook is "quite favorable" no heat wave is in sight.

Temperature at noon today was 54 degrees and, although the sun was out, it was nothing to write back to folks on the prairies about.

The mercury was expected to rise a degree or two this afternoon, with night temperatures dropping to just above freezing, the weatherman said.

Sunday, however, the thermometer may show "pretty close to 60," said the weather office, allowing Victorians to at least get out and cut their lawns.

Most city residents, however, will probably sit tight, basking in spring sunshine and thanking their stars they aren't in Kimberley or Cranbrook where two inches of snow is on the ground with more falling.

BODY RECOVERED

The body of a longshoreman, killed when a freighter rolled at dockside at Port Alberni Friday, was recovered today from the harbor.

He was identified as Arthur Dube, 38, one of six Port Alberni longshoremen spilled off the deck of the Liberian-registered Archangel.

The freighter, being loaded with lumber, suddenly listed to port, then rolled back to starboard. Its deckload of lumber cascaded into the water and on to the wharf.

SCHULZ

Approximately 75 guests attended an "open house," given by the Women's Mission Circle of Central Baptist Church in the church's Fellowship Hall Friday afternoon. The affair was in honor of the 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schofield, 1547 North Dairy Road, seen cutting the anniversary cake. The couple was married in the Lancashire town of Rossendale on April 15, 1905, and came to Canada in 1910. Having lived in Roblin, Man., for several years, the Schofields moved to Victoria about 40 years ago. For many years Mr. Schofield was secretary of the Gordon Head Fruit Growers' Association. Both he and his wife will be 86 years of age this year.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Hey Buddie! Sign This Paper

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a grandmother who is greatly disturbed about the declining moral standards of our young people. Not only of the uneducated and underprivileged, but the intellectuals and upper class as well. Why don't our young women realize that their most prized possession is their virtue?

If I had my way, every girl old enough to go out with a boy would carry in her purse a contract which the boy would have to sign should they find themselves involved to the point where the girl considered surrendering her virtue. The boy would agree to assume full responsibility for children, should there be any, and to marry the girl, should she desire it. Should the boy refuse to sign such a contract, if the girl does not insist in being taken home immediately, she might as well commit suicide on the spot.

MRS. D. A. J.

DEAR MRS. D. A. J.: In order for a contract to be legal and binding, the signer must be in his right mind at the time he signs it. I doubt if your plan would work.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend's husband died, so I let her and her three children move in with my husband and me. I treated her like a sister. I even looked after her children while she was out with my husband. (She made me believe it was someone else.) He never took me out much before she came to live with us, then suddenly he started taking us both out. Everybody knew what was going on but me. When I found out it nearly killed me, Abby. We have been married 16 years and I thought we were happy. We finally had a showdown and she left town. I would never consider divorce, but I can't seem to forget the past. My husband is better to me now than he has ever been. How can I get over this?

DEEPLY HURT.

DEAR HURT: One of the most difficult things we are called upon to do in this life is to forgive and forget. But with determined effort, it can be done. Try not to dwell on the past. We should all learn the art of forgiving, for who among us does not need to be forgiven?

DEAR ABBY: I am a new bride with a problem I am unable to solve. Newlyweds have many adjustments to make, and I feel that the more time my husband and I spend together, the sooner we will make the adjustments. Our biggest problem is this: My husband has been asked to play golf again by some of his college friends. I don't especially enjoy being left at home on Saturday afternoons, Sundays, and holidays. Especially without a car. When I complain it always ends up in an argument, so I decided to solve the problem by taking up golf, too. I play a fairly decent game, but somehow I get the idea that he would rather play with his men friends. Am I wrong to object? At 22, I am . . .

A GOLF WIDOW.

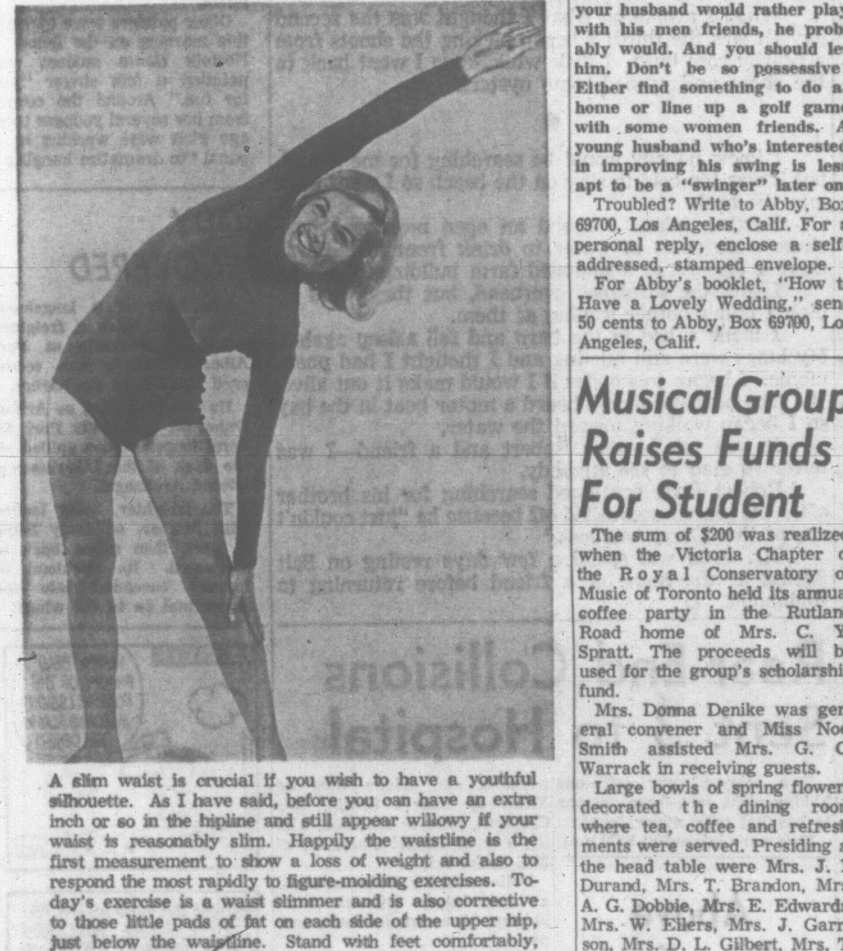
DEAR WIDOW: If you "somehow get the idea" that your husband would rather play with his men friends, he probably would. And you should let him. Don't be so possessive! Either find something to do at home or line up a golf game with some women friends. A young husband who's interested in improving his swing is less apt to be a "swinger" later on.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN



A slim waist is crucial if you wish to have a youthful silhouette. As I have said, before you can have an extra inch or so in the hipline and still appear willowy if your waist is reasonably slim. Happily the waistline is the first measurement to show a loss of weight and also to respond the most rapidly to figure-molding exercises. Today's exercise is a waist slimmer and is also corrective to those little pads of fat on each side of the upper hip, just below the waistline. Stand with feet comfortably, but fairly widely, separated. Raise your right arm up by your right ear. Place your left palm on the outside of your left thigh. Bend to the left as you slide your left hand down your left leg to the knee, or lower if you can do so with straight knees. Hold this position while you count to six. Raise the trunk and return arms to starting position. This time raise your left arm up by your left ear and slide your right hand down your right leg. Hold for six counts and return to starting position. Continue, alternating. Do not bend forward, but to the side.

Wench With Wrench

LONDON (AP)—Janet Peach—whose vital statistics are 37-26-37—appears to be shaping up handsomely as a real wrench-swinging plumber.

After finishing high school, Janet, 15, recently joined her father in his flourishing plumbing business in the British town of Peterborough.

A sign on the side of their truck reads:

"Charles Peach and Daughter, Plumbers."

As dad and daughter installed a central heating system in a private home, Janet said in an interview:

"I could have been a secretary, or a hairdresser, or gone on to college. It interests me."

The mass circulation Daily Mirror commented editorially:

"Here's wishing lots of luck to the girl who wants to do what is usually and stupidly regarded as exclusively a man's job."

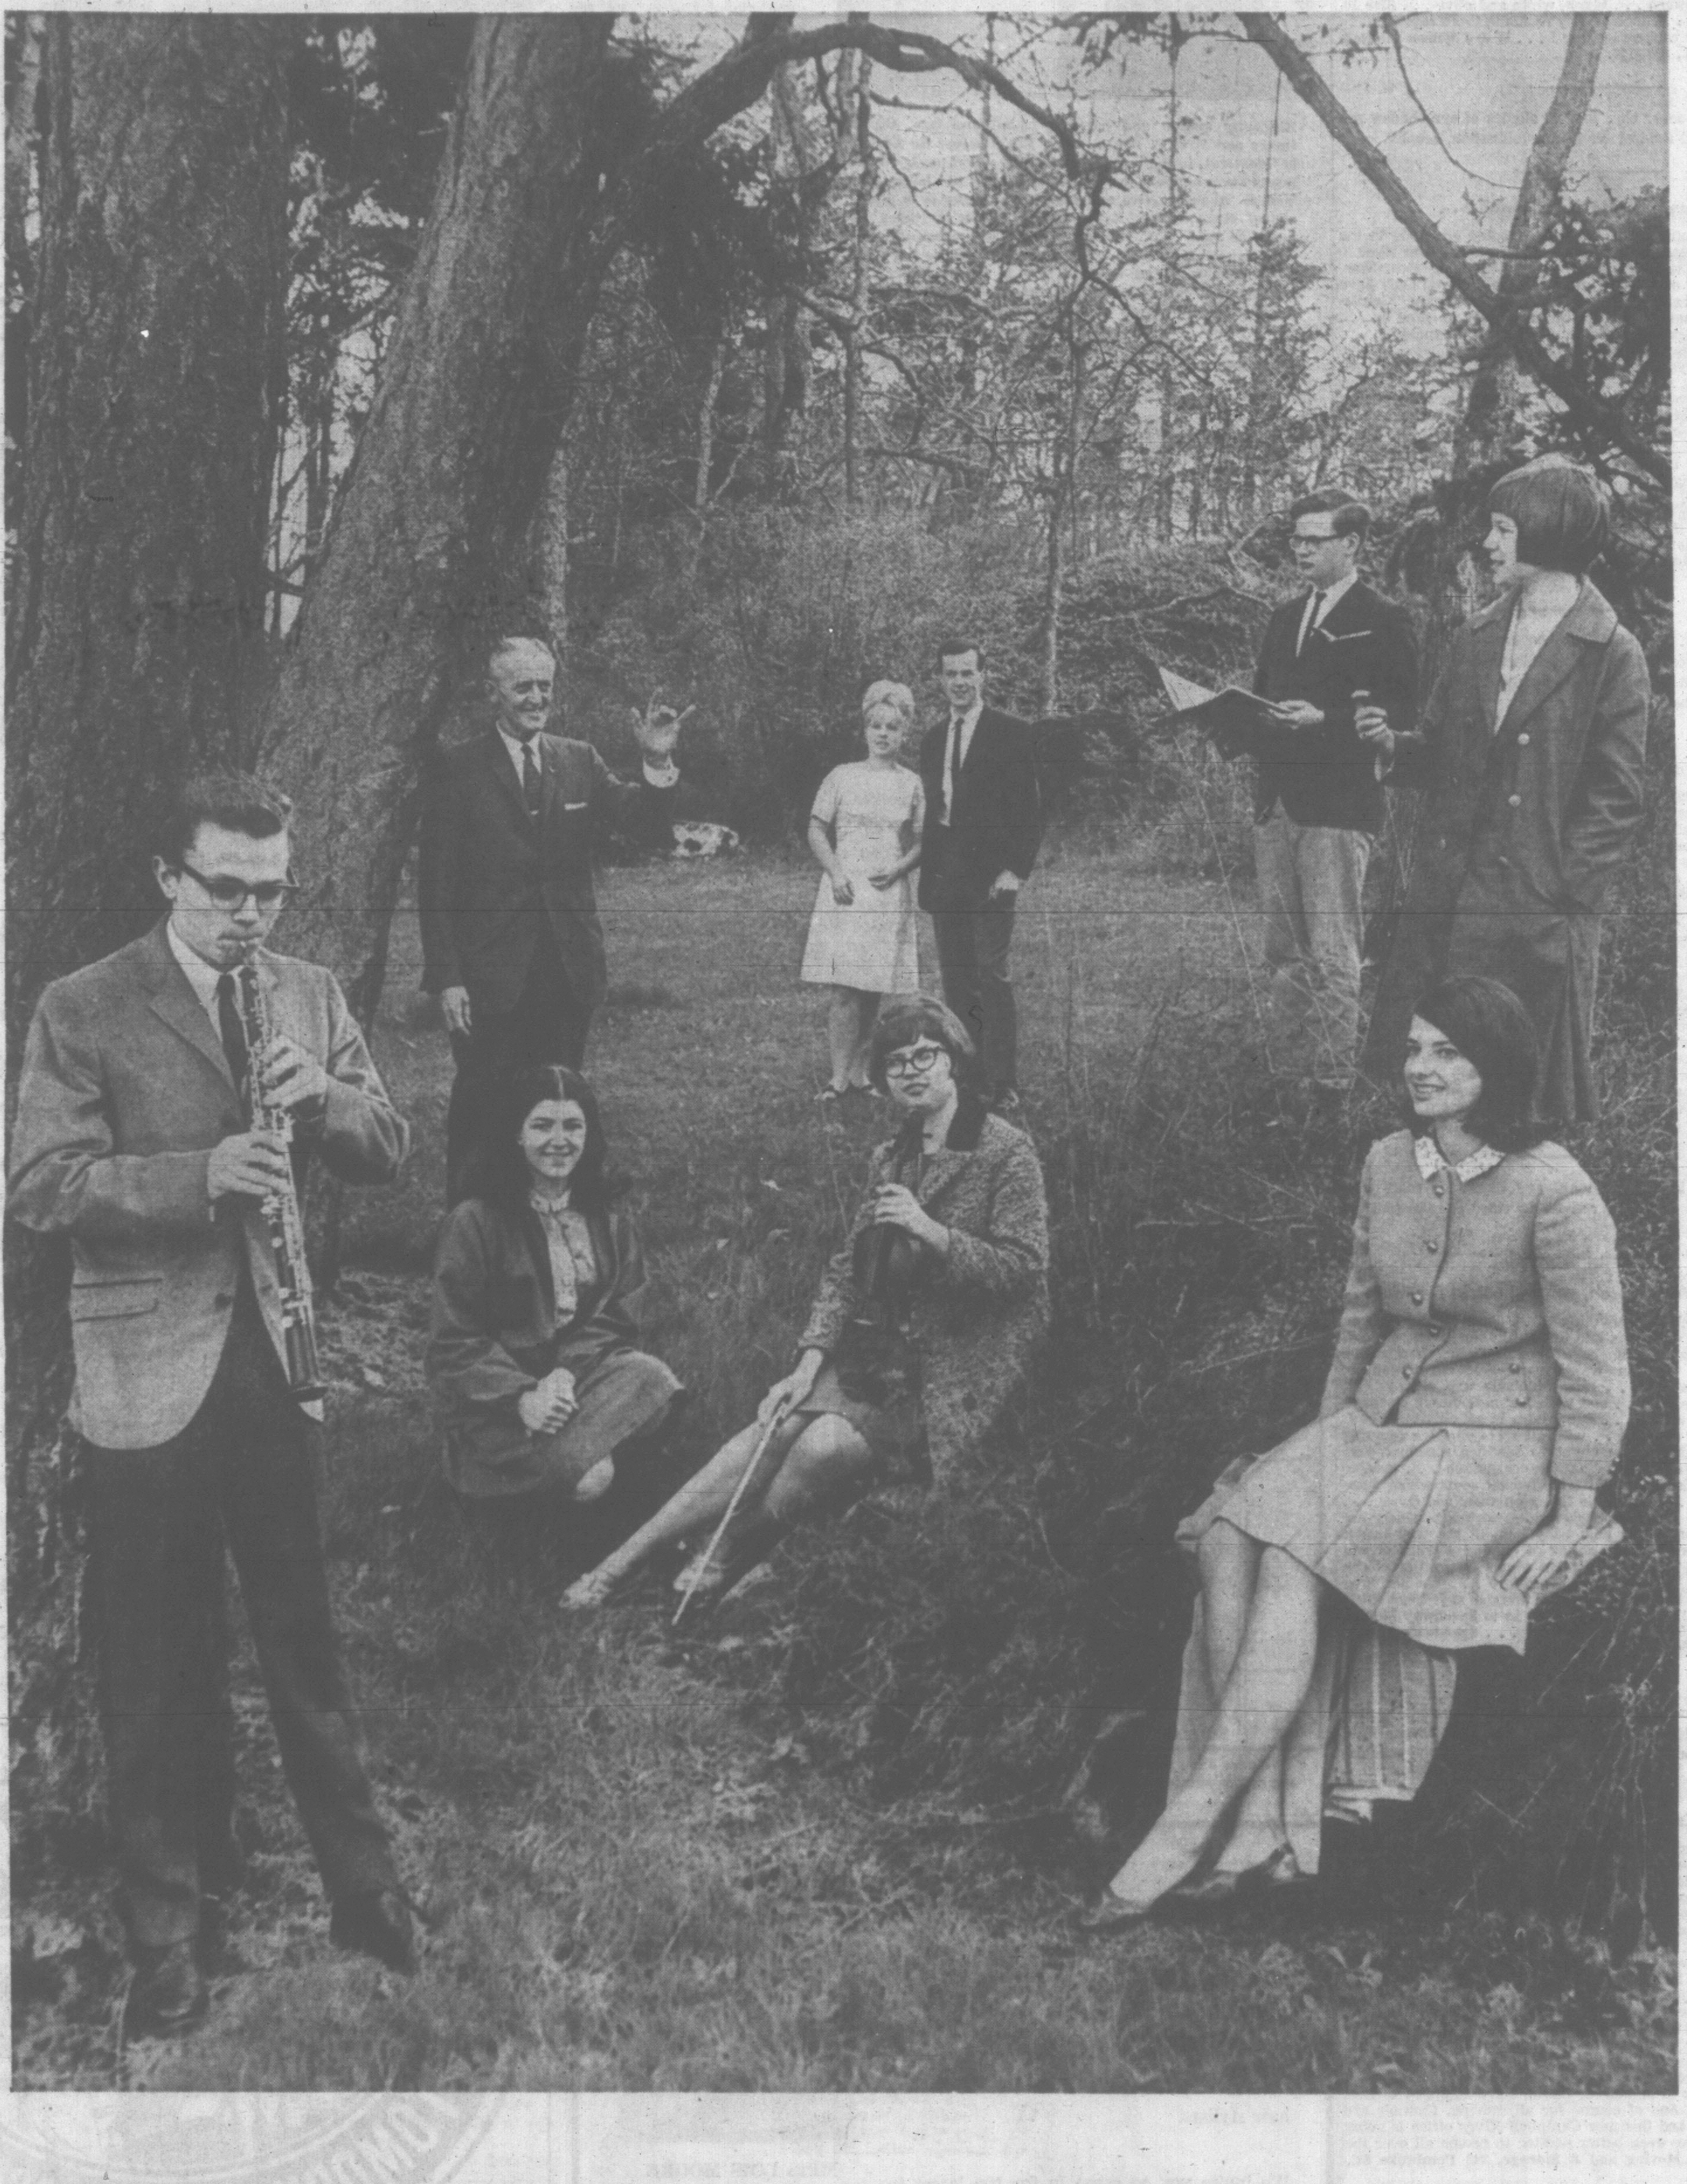
Greater Victoria Music Festival—April 16-29



Music as diversified as all outdoors will dominate the Victoria scene for two or three thousand Victorians during the next two weeks. The Music Festival opens Monday morning and in its 10-day course involves more than 1,200 entries, many of them choral, instrumental, speech and dance groups. Representative of many phases, as well as a fine standard of performance in previous festivals, are Ian Franklin (with oboe), Penny Beavan (kneeling), a participant in piano, choral and vocal solo events; Frank Tupman, dean of Victoria choral conductors and a solid supporter of the festival, who will lead his Arion Male Choir in one of the adult phases; soprano Dena Noble, and lieder pianist David Palmer (background); Angus Arrol, solo pianist in open classes; Susan Belford, speech arts; Trudi Conrad (with violin), contender in the important Congress of Strings scholarship event, and Laura Groos, solo and ensemble singer. Sessions begin at 9 a.m., 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. daily. Special evening concerts include the speech arts honor performance, dance honor performance, schools honor performance and Festival Highlights Concert at McPherson Playhouse, with Rose Bowl and City Medallion contests and special guest artist, Robin Wood, which takes place next Friday. The festival starts Monday in Sir James Douglas School auditorium (accordion), Christ Church Cathedral (organ), St. John's Church Hall (piano), and First United Church Fellowship Hall (vocal). Events will also be held at Central Junior Secondary School, First United Assembly Hall and McPherson Playhouse. Full programs and membership cards are available at music stores or at the halls.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Perfect packables for warmer climes . . .

There's a white, sleeveless dress at W & J Wilson's that's going to be a real "find" for any woman who's packing for a warm climate . . . and who can wear a size 12! . . . It's a waffle weave, snow-white polyster fabric dress from Sweden . . . crisply tailored, beautifully styled, with a row of self-buttons marching down the front to the lowered waistline . . . high round neckline . . . sleeveless . . . And we can just picture the overall effect when worn with nicely sun-bronzed skin! . . . And here's the clincher: this dress is completely wash and drip-dryable . . . Wear it all day . . . swish it through suds at bedtime . . . hang over the bathtub and lo and behold, you're ready to start off next morning fresh as a gardenia! . . . Another nice packable dress is a Liberty pure silk with scoop neck, short sleeves and apron-effect front . . . gorgeous color combination of green, blue, purple . . . in a design of ripe blackberries mingled with flowers . . . A stunning town ensemble consists of printed handkerchief linen dress and crash linen coat in identical print pattern . . . black, white and olive . . . Size 10, and sold separately . . . though they're made to go together . . . Very chic and haute couture looking! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

The new eye is never shy; neutral shades of eye shadow are OUT . . . Bold vivid shades, often in combination, are IN.

What no gentleman should be without . . .

The English gentleman sipping his whiskey and soda in the gracious surroundings of his manor house is a pleasant sight to contemplate . . . Even pleasanter to participate in . . . Now, you may not be the owner of a manor house, but you CAN have all the other accoutrements . . . including those elegant "Gentlemen's Whisky Glasses" which are far from easy to come by . . . but are at the moment available at Sydney Reynold's . . . A new shipment has just come in from England . . . they're heavy, solid cut crystal tumblers, prismed to reflect the light . . . the finest glass made . . . Just looking at them makes us think of stability, gracious good living and all the solid virtues . . . These glasses cost $8 each . . . and if you're interested, don't wait too long since we understand it's difficult to get enough to meet the demand! . . . Other new arrivals at Reynolds are another shipment of Italian trays . . . wooden ones with 18 karat gold Florentine designs . . . There are some large trays this time, as well as all the usual smaller ones in various shapes (One of these large trays would make a lovely wedding gift) . . . Take a look at the new Belleek too . . . there's an exquisite hand woven procelain Rathmore basket which we vow will delight you . . . Sydney Reynolds Ltd., 810 Government St., EV 3-3931.

However young . . . or old . . . you are, cultivate the habit of immaculate, almost antiseptic cleanliness of face and neck. This is the first and foremost commandment for life-long complexion health and beauty.

Knits to live in 'round the clock . . .

It used to be said that Victoria women were addicted to tweeds . . . which is all very well and good because there are some very nice tweeds around . . . and you could do a lot worse . . . but our own opinion is that knits are the big thing in fashion today . . . for more reasons than we can count! . . . They're smart, comfortable, appropriate to our climate and way of life . . . and no matter how much you may invest in one, it's money well spent because a good knit is timeless and practically indestructible . . . This week we saw some really beautiful Italian knit suits at Miss Frith's . . . Jonfel and Couturier labels . . . Other knits from Austria, France and Switzerland . . . There's a wide choice of sizes and styles . . . and the colors are lovely . . . Light pastels for summer . . . dark colors too, like navy, and the new Aspen green . . . smart in a 3-piece suit with pale blue stripe-accented shell . . . Frilly pastel knits would make charming going-away outfits for spring and summer brides . . . or anyone else who loves the soft, feminine look! . . . Prices of these imported knits start at $75 . . . but we hasten to tell you that Miss Frith's also have some very smart Canadian-made knits which are tagged at a mere $35 . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Try wearing a bright green hat and blouse or scarf with your navy suit . . . This is a refreshing color combination for spring, 1966.

Once you own a Volkswagen, you're hooked for life! . . .

Ever talk yourself into anything? . . . Well we did . . . or at least, we WROTE ourselves into turning in our seven-year-old, dearly-loved Volkswagen "Bluebelle" and replacing her with a 1966 1300-series VW to whom we've transferred our affections, and christened "Sandra" . . . Now Bluebelle was a lady, and we'll love her till we die . . . and wish her new owner as much joyful driving as we've had . . . But Sandra is not only an eyeful, she also runs like a dream . . . with all sorts of extra features like more engine power (you ought to see her speeding past other cars on the Malahat!) . . . fast acceleration . . . greater comfort and less noise . . . adjustable bucket seats which automatically lock back . . . washable lining on sides and doors . . . not to mention all the improved inside workings which are Greek to us! Of course this new baby has all the well-known VW economy of operation . . . a lick of oil and a whiff of gas now and again . . . The 1966 VW also comes in prettier colors and more attractive interiors than heretofore . . . We just love it when people stop and look . . . and maybe say "Nice little car you've got there!" . . . Why not drop in to Speedway Motors and look at a new Volkswagen yourself? . . . Speedway Motors Ltd., Yates at Vancouver St., 385-2415.

The sleeveless mode in dresses continues unabated. In fact it has even extended to suits, which strike one as looking a little odd at first glance, but will probably grow on us as time goes on.

Cantin's now in Campbell River . . .

If you're moving into smaller premises and have more furniture than you need . . . Are going away for a few months or years . . . sans household effects . . . Own trunks of clothes or cartons full of books which you don't know where to stow away at the moment . . . for goodness sake don't be impulsive and get rid of everything! . . . the day may come when you'll have bitter regrets! . . . Instead, have Cantin's whisk your stuff away into their modern, fireproof storage warehouse . . . where it'll be treated with loving care, and all ready to return to you the minute you give the word! . . . You'll be surprised how little it costs, too, to store your things at Cantin's . . . where they remain in a state of suspended animation until you're ready to welcome them home . . . safe from wear and tear, moth and rust! . . . And for those of you who live up-Island, Cantin's have just opened an office and warehouse in Campbell River . . . so if you have things to be stored, Cantin's are equipped to take charge of them . . . And of course for all moving, Cantin's are absolutely tops . . . And this new Campbell River office is going to enable them to give even better service to people all over the Island . . . Cantin's Moving and & Storage, 742 Pembroke St., EV 5-3476.

Notice how effectively various types of checks and stripes can be worn together. Seems that most of the old rules about not mixing different patterns have been thrown out the window!

Luxury living at a budget rental . . .

With all the new apartment blocks springing up like mushrooms around town, it's a bit of a puzzlement to know where to look first . . . if you're apartment-hunting . . . Unless, of course, you have preconceived ideas about some particular area . . . and even then, we suggest you take a good look at Christie Point before making any decision . . . To begin with, Christie Point is just about the most delightful spot you could possibly hope to find . . . Right on the waterfront, only 9 minutes drive from Downtown . . . There are several types of 2 and 3-bedroom apartments and townhouses available . . . but today we'd like to tell you about the Maxwell suites . . . on the second floor of buildings designed for adults only . . . These are 2-bedroom apartments considerably larger than average . . . big living room with dining area . . . covered patio where you can sit in privacy and watch the gardens, water, wildlife . . . Compact, completely-equipped kitchens . . . Two twin bed size bedrooms, roomy clothes closets, and a huge storage closet (500 cu. feet) right in each apartment . . . Free drapes, and many other features . . . And what do you think these apartments rent for? Just $125 a month! . . . It's de luxe living at a budget price! . . . Best value we know of . . . Christie Point Apartments, 2891 Craigowan Road, 385-0644.

Elegantly attired and correctly fitted are Mrs. G. C. Baker and Mrs. G. Bruce. Mrs. Baker wears an Adrian of Montreal spring navy dress with a soft sash which peaks from beneath the scalloped hem of the bolero-like bodice. Her attractive matching Breton roller is in rough ribbon straw. Mrs. Baker gladly admits to being 70 years of age . . . she is 5 foot 3 and wears this designer's size 21 to perfection. Mrs. G. Bruce is tall with a full diaphram and wears a size 16 Evelyn Aldren of Montreal silk linen costume in bittersweet and bone. The sleeveless sheath dress in bone shade has yoke seam and button detail. The bittersweet coat is classically simple with bone shade revers. The portrait chapeau of bittersweet balibubtel straw is highlighted with organza flowers in light and dark tones of bone.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Lifetime Bargain—Yours Without Cost

By Penny Saver

Are you ready to join the hundreds of Canadians who have been thrilled by the bargain of a lifetime? The opportunity is here, right in Victoria. Every day up until May 30 can be a "red-letter" day and you can't afford to miss this chance. You and your family simply don't have the slightest reason for passing it by. There will be no "sold out" signs on the "items" concerned, no rushing to squeeze past countless other Victorians who have the "bug in their ear," to get to the counter first. The "counter" is coming to you!

The "item" concerned is the most priceless possession of you and your family. It is life—a healthy, happy life. You can help nip one of the dreaded threats to healthy lives in the bud by taking advantage of the free X-ray and skin tests that are now available to you and your family. The threat is tuberculosis.

Mobile TB test clinics come almost to your door so that you may protect each member of your family from the disease by taking a quick visit through one of the clinics nearest to you.

The procedure is simple, fast and painless. For the X-ray, stand in front of the machine, take a deep breath, hold it, then exhale. That's it. You'll have no problem with your youngsters, either, as how many wee folks don't enjoy having their picture snapped?

Other factors show up in the X-ray too, as well as TB. Some examples are lung cancer, emphysema and overly large hearts. If you have neglected to have a physical examination in the last little while, take advantage of this opportunity.

I am usually a coward when it comes to facing up to injections, but the skin test, or tuberculin test, is so painless that even I wouldn't mind taking it again. This test is an injection of a harmless substance called tuberculin under the skin on the forearm. It forms a little bump, so don't be alarmed. This bump is about the size of a small nail-head. In a few days, return to the clinic so that they may check the spot on your arm. By doing this, they can tell if you have TB germs or not. Most people don't, but it pays to be sure.

When one of these clinics visits your neighborhood, be sure to have them test you. It takes just a few seconds to be sure.

IN STEP WITH STYLE By NONA DAMASKE

Maturity No Bar to Haute Couture Touch

Damaske

Frankly forty . . . mature . . . problem figure . . . you are not the forgotten group. With so much emphasis on the young "go-go" generation, many older women, who are interested in good fashion, are feeling neglected.

I must admit the trend to capture the swinging young set is very much with us but there are some manufacturers and retailers who feel that there are satisfying and lucrative rewards to be found in the field of mature fashions.

I visited a shop this past week where the owner has searched diligently to find the type of dresses and suits that allow an older woman to be fitted correctly with clothes that are suitably smart.

No woman wants to be 'frumpy' but many complain that when they find a dress or suit that is designed for the older, less than perfect figure, color and style are nonexistent. The woman with unlimited means may turn to a high priced designer or dressmaker who can overcome figure problems but the average woman, who shops within the medium price range, still forms the bulk of our population.

The owner of the shop told me that her business shaped itself into catering to the fashion-hungry group.

The challenge of satisfying her customers was so great that she went from one manufacturer to another until she obtained enough sources to supply a choice of costume to the older woman who wants to dress fashionably in keeping with her age.

The large-bosomed woman with a short waist often has a fine figure, good looks and lovely coloring. She does not want to spend her life in drab crepes designed without any imagination.

This woman may have beautiful silver hair and want to wear the deep rich pinks and vivid blues which are so becoming to her. Many women with a full upper figure have slender hips and legs and need skirts that are cut a little longer but also tapered to avoid that square look. Often there is a tendency to hollowness in the back and some shaping of the back waist seam will hide this 'swayback' completely.

Belts are usually unkind to the thicker waistline and dresses designed to be worn beltless are so much more becoming than just discarding the accompanying belt.

No rule of thumb says that a size 23 should not wear a print . . . the correct printed fabric may be most flattering. Flat bows, attractive buttons and self-colored trimming will, in many cases, add rather than detract style.

Suits are a joy to this woman who is often free to spend her daytime hours in town, at meetings and luncheons. I saw suits designed with easier armholes, a trifle more bust fullness and more generous waistbands.

Coats, blouses, millinery and all manner of accessories are taken into consideration for this interesting age group. Youth is having its fashion fling, and it is fun, but the older well-groomed woman is still the epitome of elegance.

MANY CHANGES IN 15 YEARS

Queen Will Be 40 on Thursday

LONDON (UPI) — Elizabeth II, the young queen who ascended the British throne on her father's death in 1952, turns 40 this month. She does so with aplomb, self-assurance and no sign of regret.

In the coming years, Elizabeth may think about handing over her crown to her eldest son, Prince Charles, now 17. But she would not consider retiring before 50 as he would have to be old enough to shoulder the responsibility and — preferably — be married with at least one child to continue the royal line.

The Queen, 40 on Thursday, was a shy and reserved girl of 25 when she came to the throne.

She is very different now. She is no longer awed by any of her ministers or official advisers. Indeed some of them say the notes she writes can be just as direct and scathing as any penned by her famous great-grandmother, Queen Victoria.

Once she has made up her mind about something as her course of duty, not even her husband, Prince Philip, 44, can sway her from it.

Elizabeth thinks that Britain, perhaps unlike some other European countries, will continue to have a royal head of state for some time to come.

The Queen takes the same size in clothes she did at 21, even after four children and 14 years on the throne. Her skin is clear and almost unwrinkled save for laughter lines around her sea-blue eyes. There are no grey hairs in her thick, curly brown hair.

She is vigorous, active and puts in long, crowded days of duty without apparent effort. She is called with early tea at 7:30 each morning and is rarely in bed again before midnight.

Elizabeth is seldom ill. When she is, it is usually a cold followed by the sinus trouble which affects most members of her Royal House of Windsor.

What is the secret of the Queen's continued youth?

She claims none, but she does follow some daily beauty and health rules.

Every afternoon she takes at least half an hour's brisk exercise in the open air. At Buckingham Palace she walks round the wooded gardens with her Corgi terriers, inspecting the flowers and perhaps playing with her youngest sons, Prince Andrew, 6, and Prince Edward, 2.

She goes horseback riding regularly on weekends spent at Windsor Castle, her favorite country home 25 miles up the River Thames from London. Often she goes riding before breakfast with her daughter, Princess Anne, 15.

At Balmoral the Queen also goes hunting through the mountains, stalking stags. She is a first-class shot. She spends other days there fishing in the River Dee.

NO DIETS PLEASE

Elizabeth gets annoyed at suggestions that she "diets," but she does watch her meals carefully.

The second drink and the over-plumping pudding and potatoes are permanently banned.

At parties and banquets she drinks a single glass of champagne or wine with the other guests. When alone she orders fresh orange juice diluted with soda water.

She eats candy with her children at weekends but never otherwise.

Tea and coffee are taken without sugar, but this she has always done because she likes it that way.

Her favorite lunch is a grilled meat or egg dish with a green salad and one vegetable, followed by fresh fruit and a small portion of cheese.

Her beauty routines are simple. Ever since she was 17 the Queen has used the same range of cosmetics.

Nightly she has cleansed her skin, applied a little astringent, then a rich night cream, wiped this off and gone to bed.

In the daytime she used warm water and a mild oatmeal-base soap after removing one make-up and before applying another.

While young Londoners hitch their hemline up to many inches above the knee, even the Queen has followed the shorter skirt fashion for this spring. But unlike many of her subjects, her knees still remain covered when she sits down. Even so, her new outfits are two to three inches shorter than they have ever been before.

The "correctness" of her dress, at least partly dictated by royal dignity, often has come in for criticism. It could not be said she has any flair for clothes. The fact probably is it's the Queen's own inherent conservatism that is to blame. She has some of the severity in such things that marked her grandmother, the late Queen Mary.

The same severity of character puts Elizabeth at some distance from the people she seeks to serve so faithfully. Britons probably could not be said to "love" their Queen, but she is held in respect and admiration. She rarely generates warmth in public, whether through reserve, shyness, or plain standoffishness.

She is self-conscious about her high-pitched speaking voice and has assiduously — but without success — studied to make it more appealing. In her youth the sometimes shrill, uncertain tones could be ascribed to girlish inexperience. In the older Queen it must be put down simply as a drawback she can do little about.

The Queen is immensely rich — no one knows exactly how rich. Apart from her state income, she is a millionairess many times over. She inherited vast sums from her father, King George VI, and grandmother, the late Queen Mary.

GROOM'S GIFT

Carries Pearl Rosary

With her colonial bouquet of red roses, Carol Marguerite Swayne carried the groom's gift of a pearl rosary, this morning, when she became the bride of Douglas Albert Praud.

The bouquet and rosary complemented the bride's gown of norganza, which was styled with a full train sweeping back from a bridal bow at the back waistline. Swiss lace appliques starred the fitted bodice and bateau neckline of the gown and sleeves ended in lily points. Her full silk veil, trimmed with Guipure lace, misted softly from a tiny rosette headpiece.

Fr. M. J. McNamara heard the marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Swayne, 848 Old Esquimalt Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Praud, 751 Rockheights, at the ceremony in Queen of Peace Church. Mr. Swayne gave his daughter in marriage and organist was Mrs. J. Smith.

Matching street-length dresses of turquoise taffeta were worn by maid of honor Miss Barbara Guzda, bridesmaid Miss Vivian Brinkman, and junior bridesmaids, Cathy Praud and Marie McPhee. Accenting the outfits were self-fabric rose headpieces and colonial bouquets of Talisman roses.

Jim Horrigan was best man. Ushering the guests to their pews were David Praud and Donald Swayne, brothers of the principals, and Ted Pacowski.

A wedding breakfast followed in the home of the bride's parents. This evening, a reception will be held at Holyrood House. The head table will be centred with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with doves holding wedding rings. Jim Twells will propose the toast to the bride.

The couple will make their home at 205 Island Highway, following a honeymoon trip to Harrison Hot Springs and Banff. A knit suit in pink and white tones will be worn by the new Mrs. Praud for travelling. She is complementing the outfit with accessories en tone and corsage of white roses.

They will be here to attend the 53rd annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter IODE, to be held at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Registration will take place on Monday evening from 8 to 9:30 p.m., Tuesday from 8:15 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. and 1 to 2 p.m.

Miss Christine MacNab, regent of the Victoria Municipal Chapter IODE, will also welcome delegates with the response being given by Mrs. R. W. Lockhart, regent of Tsawwassen Chapter IODE.

A reception honoring out-of-town delegates will be held in the hotel ballroom on Tuesday evening from 8 to 10 p.m. Highlight of the affair will be a centennial fashion show, to be staged by the local municipal chapter.

Wednesday's sessions will begin at 9 a.m. A Cenotaph service has been planned for 2:30 p.m. Following this there will be a meeting of the provincial councillors and municipal regents. Other delegates will be taken on a drive of the area with the members of municipal chapter acting as hostesses.

Presiding at the three-day meeting will be Mrs. R. R. Shortreed of Vancouver.

Long Gown of Embossed Brocade Worn by Bride Jeannette Brown

White embossed brocade formed the floor-length gown worn by Jeannette Louise Brown when she became the bride of Emerson Sidney Campbell this afternoon in St. Aidan's United Church. The fitted bodice featured a round neckline, and the skirt was slightly bell-shaped. A tiara of pearls held her three-quarter-length veil of illusion net. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Rev. A. G. McLeod officiated at the ceremony, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Brown, 3321 Doncaster Drive, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. MacLean, 3049 Donald Street. Mr. Brown gave his daughter in marriage.

Arrangements of spring flowers in blue, yellow and white tones decorated the church for the ceremony. Organist Mrs. Vera Barclay played "O Perfect Love."

Floor-length gowns of cotton with blue floral designs were worn by the bride's attendants, maid of honor Miss Barbara Masters, and bridesmaids, the Misses Lorraine Brown and Yvonne Jones. The outfits were similar to the bride's gown, with slightly fuller skirts. Accenting the gowns were headpieces of white net, bouquets of white carnations with trailing blue ribbons.

Gene Campbell was best man for his brother, and guests were ushered by Douglas Poole and Eric Kent.

At the reception following in Holyrood House, the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake which was flanked with yellow roses. A bouquet of spring flowers decorated the mantelpiece. J. C. McKinnon proposed the toast to his niece.

For travelling on honeymoon trip motoring through the interior of British Columbia, the new Mrs. Campbell chose a pale green boucle suit complemented with beige accessories. A corsage of pink rosebuds completed her outfit.

When they return, the couple will make their home at 1009 Fairfield Road.

Mrs. Richard Egan, left, and Mrs. L. J. Moore show two of the outfits that will be modelled when the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society holds its annual spring tea and fashion show in the Fellowship Hall of First United Church, 936 Balmoral Road, on Wednesday, April 27, at 2:30 p.m. Fashions will be from The Bay and in charge of tea arrangements are Mrs. D. L. Howe and Mrs. J. Neuls.

Duke-Patrick Vows Heard In Chapel of St. John's

The chapel of St. John's Anglican Church was the setting, this afternoon, for a quiet ceremony which united Mary Russell Patrick and Lloyd Joseph Duke in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of E. R. Patrick, 2170 Lafayette Street, and the late Mrs. Patrick, and the groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Duke of Victoria. Dr. John Sandys-Wunsch officiated.

During the service, choir boy John McVie sang "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

Given in marriage by John Green, the bride wore a dress of pink lace, styled with flared skirt and fitted bodice. Neckline of the bodice was round and sleeves were full to the elbow. Her floral hat, edged with a veil, was en tone, and her corsage was of pink spring flowers. Jewelry was pearl earrings and necklace, which had belonged to her mother, and her mother's wedding and engagement rings.

Her only attendant was Miss Norma Borge, who was in a blue silk dress, starred with gold sequins. Accents were a hat en tone and corsage of yellow flowers.

Victor W. Duke, Vancouver, was best man for his brother.

The best man proposed the toast to the groom at the reception following in the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Pederson, 3065 Eastdowne Road.

The couple will make their home at 2170 Lafayette Street, following a honeymoon trip to Vancouver. For travelling, the new Mrs. Duke chose a two-piece grey suit, with pink floral hat and accessories of black and navy blue. Completing the outfit was a grey fur stole.

Travelling from Vancouver for the wedding were Miss Jean Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Duke and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Duke.

Hey, Bud, Going To A Fire?

BALTIMORE (AP) — "Sometimes they spit in my face or tear up my tracts and throw them at me. It's only by the grace of God I didn't arrest them."

"But I didn't do a thing," chuckled Edward V. Walter, the Baltimore police department's only ordained minister until he retired recently. "Because I wasn't supposed to give the tracts out anyway."

The six-foot, 145-pound preacher-patrolman often has flagged down a motorist for a traffic violation, and whipped out a religious tract on "how to receive Christ," instead of a traffic ticket.

Walter, 55, joined the police force in 1945 at age 34.

REAL ROUGHNECK

"I drank, smoked and did things I should have been put in the penitentiary for," he said. "Christmas time, I used to get a van and pick up all the free booze from merchants."

Then in 1955, Walter says, he was assigned to patrol car with a rookie officer, "a great big tough ex-marine who was a devout Baptist.

"He used to open up his Bible and talk to me about the Lord. I complained to the captain that he had put me with a real goof, a screwball, and I wanted a new partner."

But the captain refused.

"After a while, on coffee break," Walter recalls, "I would pick up his Bible and look at it. If the rookie saw me I would flip through the pages real fast."

Walter says he finally accepted Christ in August of that year.

"I had my television set on and Billy Graham was preaching in New York. When he started the invitation, I began to cry and I was on my knees. I knew that something happened there in my life."

Viet Nam Anguish Outlined in Film

The anguish and suffering caused by the war in Viet Nam is reflected in the vivid documentary film Viet Nam Profile to be shown in the Alliance Church, 1039 Yates Street, tonight at 8 o'clock.

It was produced by Dr. Bob Pierce, who is known throughout the Orient for his chain of children's orphanages and his program of assistance to hospitals and missions.

More than 100 missionaries are still stationed in Viet Nam and Dr. Pierce is among them.

"The Christian and Missionary Alliance has been the major Protestant mission in Viet Nam since 1911," says Rev. Ted Chapman, pastor of Victoria Alliance Church.

"The Evangelical Church of Viet Nam, with an estimated community of 100,000 Christian believers, is the result of Alliance missionary work.

"This film, Viet Nam Profile, shows how missionaries, American aid personnel and men in the armed forces are co-operation to meet the needs of the people."

Baptists Plan Induction Rite

Rev. Norman K. Archer from North Surrey will be inducted as minister of Emmanuel Baptist Church and Stevenson Memorial Church on Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The induction service in Emmanuel Baptist, 1900 Fernwood, will be conducted by Lt. Col. Rev. J. Willox Duncan, executive secretary of the B.C. Convention of Baptist Churches.

Rev. Stuart Frayne, minister of First Baptist Church, ancouver, will give the message.

Mr. Archer succeeds Rev. Alvin Hamill, who left here last December to become minister of the Baptist church at Kelowna. He has been pastor of Parkview Baptist Church, North Surrey since 1962.

Born near London, England, Mr. Archer was educated at Challoner's Grammar School, which was founded in the 17th century. He then served for four years as an executive officer in the British government's stationery office, London.

During that time he formed a team of young laymen to reopen a mission church which had been closed for many years.

He decided to become a minister and studied theology at London University. On graduation he was called to the pastorate of St. James Baptist Church, Watford, Hertfordshire.

REV. N. K. ARCHER
. . . from North Surrey

Mr. Archer went to North Surrey at the invitation of the Baptist Union of Western Canada.

During his ministry there he served as secretary of North Surrey Ministerial Association, moderator of the Fraser Valley Association of Baptist Churches, a member of the board of trustees of the Convention of Baptist Churches of B.C. and chairman of the evangelism committee for the Baptist Union of Western Canada.

Mr. Archer's wife, Mary, was born in the Okanagan and is a graduate nurse from the Royal Columbian Hospital, New Westminster. They have two sons, Paul, 6, and Timothy, 4.

Confirmation and communion will be held Sunday at Garden City United Church at 10 a.m.

At the 11:15 service at Wilkinson Road, Rev. H. R. Whitmore will speak on Life's Dark Road.

'Paternal' College Under Fire

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NEW YORK (CP) — Every day of classes since Jan. 4, a small file of pickets has been marching back and forth in front of St. John's Roman Catholic University here, demonstrating against what they call "paternalism" and "violations of academic freedom."

They are the spearhead of a protest against the dismissal Dec. 15 of 31 professors at St. John's, with 13,000 students, the largest Catholic university in the United States.

This protest has been kept alive by the dismissed professors and by 59 colleagues so disturbed by what they considered high-handed dismissals that they went on strike.

The Vincentian Fathers, who own and operate the university, appear to have won at least a short-term victory. The university has continued to operate in the January-to-June semester this year by hiring 44 new instructors, cancelling a few courses and limiting the registration in others, and getting some instructors to carry an extra teaching load.

Very Rev. Joseph Cahill, university president, said: "There is no doubt we've been hurt, but the damage is not fatal. St. John's is going to emerge greater than ever."

The dissident professors, the vast majority of whom are Catholics, contend that the university is on the road to ruin. Their position is that St. John's is so rigidly run, and so out of touch with the spirit of renewal let loose in the Roman Catholic Church by Pope John XXIII, that its decay is inevitable.

FACULTY SOUGHT VOICE

The dismissals were the climax of two years of agitation at St. John's for a faculty voice in decisions on academic matters. Twenty professors were informed by letter that they were deprived immediately of all functions and duties, although they would be paid to the end of their contracts, and 11 others were told their contracts would not be renewed when they expired in June.

The letters cited no specific charges, but all 31 had at least one thing in common: They had been active in the effort to win for the faculty authority over what they would teach, how they would teach it, who would head the various departments, and automatic recognition of a professor's contractual right to his job after he had held it for a certain length of time. One of the leaders of this campaign, Prof. Andrew Robinson, had resigned from the St. John's faculty at the end of the 1964-65 academic year and gone to Canada. He now is teaching at the University of Ottawa.

The administration has not been more specific, publicly, about the background to the dismissals than Father Cahill's statement that "a small, non-representative" faculty group had "challenged the Catholic character of this institution."

A three-member committee named by the American Association of University Professors to investigate the St. John's dismissals, and headed by Prof. John Noonan of Notre Dame University's law school, called the dismissals "inexcusable violation of academic freedom."

METROPOLITAN PLANS GUEST

A special service of witness will be held in Metropolitan United Church Sunday, May 1, at 3 p.m.

The guest speaker will be Rev. Harold Sherry from St. Alban's Anglican Church, Richmond, who was at one time a missionary in Japan and is a member of the national board of the Canadian Bible Society.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will attend the service and Rev. Dr. William Klempa, president of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Bible Society, will be in the chair.

MEN SCARCE

Polygamy Advocated For Elderly

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—An expert in medical care of the aged said Friday polygamy, marriage to two or more mates at the same time, should be made legal after the age of 60.

Dr. Victor Kassel said legalized plural marriage would be a special boon to elderly widows, many of whom subsist on inadequate diets and in a state of sexual frustration because partners of their own age are hard to find.

This was because widows of 60 or more far outnumbered men in that age bracket.

However, Dr. Kassel recommended the legalization of both polygamy, marriage to more than one wife, and polyandry, marriage to more than one husband.

The Salt Lake City physician has specialized in geriatrics, the treatment of the problems and ailments of the aged, for 15 years.

SET FORTH VIEWS

He set forth his views on the benefits of polygamy for the elderly in an article in the medical magazine Geriatrics.

"Studies at various geriatric centres have disproved the misconception that older people are not interested in sexual activity.

"Studies have demonstrated that most women have an increase in libido after the menopause, simply because they lose the fear of pregnancy.

"A polygamous marriage enables them to express this desire, instead of remaining repressed through a continued widowhood."

As for men, Dr. Kassel said, they seem to have a natural desire to diversify their sexual partnerships.

"It seems that most impotency in the aged male represents boredom and, many times, an unattractive and uninterested partner. With variety, greater interest is sparked and many men can come back to life sexually."

Drip-Catcher Cartoon Wins Contest

VANCOUVER (CP)—A man who always wanted to be an editorial cartoonist and a man who used to be one are among the top three winners of The Sun's Sketch the Fountain contest.

The contest was started by Vancouver's afternoon newspaper shortly after the provincial government refused to release details of its Vancouver courthouse centennial fountain project, under construction.

First prize of $100 went to Ron Woodall of West Vancouver. His cartoon shows four workmen carrying pails of water up a set of rickety stairs, pouring it in a rusty oil drum full of holes, then running back to ground level to catch the drips.

Mr. Woodall said he always had a desire to draw editorial cartoons for newspapers. Second prize of $50 went to a man who could only be identified as "John B" and the $25 third prize was won by W. George Doubt, a former Sun cartoonist.

LEADERSHIP NIGHT

A camp leadership night will be held in Metropolitan United Church Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

PTA Official Backs Religion in Schools

KELOWNA (CP)—Mrs. H. L. Steves, president of the B. C. Parent-Teacher Federation said Thursday she is in full agreement with the continuance of religious exercises in schools in B.C.

"I do not feel it hurts any pupil, regardless of his religious beliefs, to recognize and respect the religion of others," Mrs. Steves told federation delegates.

"They do not have to follow it, but they can be present during prayer and bible reading, as a mark of respect. It won't hurt them."

Education Minister Peterson said in 1965 that as long as he was in office, present religious observances would be retained.

He was replying to a resolution approved by the B.C. Teachers' Federation calling for discontinuance of all religious exercises in school, including reading the Bible.

This week in Vancouver, the Teachers' Federation again resolved to urge discontinuance of these practices.

Hilda Cryderman of Vernon, a past president of the Federation, said the teachers' request is not brought about through any lack of reverence.

She told the Kelowna meeting there is an influx into B.C. schools of pupils of different ethnic backgrounds whose parents object to some features of the religious exercises. Many of them ask to have their children excused.

In view of this, she said, "the teachers have decided the program is no longer satisfying as visualized."

JOHN HAS THE CONFIDENCE TO REACH THE TOP

Scot Swirls His Kilt at Grim Reaper

Jim Hume Talks To . . . JOHN DUNBAR

Tuesday, April 5, was the hottest day of the year to date.

With the temperature standing in the high 60s and only the faintest ripple of a breeze John Dunbar crossed from the Douglas Hotel to a small restaurant on Pandora.

"I recommend the hamburgers," he said in his rich baritone. "Maybe you'd like a full meal but I'll settle for a hamburger any time."

He ordered hamburger and tea. I matched him but with milk to drink.

He talked as he munched, I listened and munched, pausing now and again to mop dripping sauces from my notebook.

Easy to Listen

Mr. Dunbar is easy to listen to whether he's on stage or sitting in a window seat watching the first flash of summer dresses.

On stage as a singer of no mean reputation he needs no introduction. Off stage there are a few things people who have watched his polished and vibrant performances may not know.

John Dunbar doesn't talk about it much but in recent years he has twice swirled his kilt at the Grim Reaper.

He brushes both bouts with the surgeon's knife lightly to one side.

"I've had a few sessions in hospital," he says quietly. "Two major operations and 108 pints of blood. But I have pretty good recuperative powers and can usually get back on stage within a couple of weeks of an operation."

DUNBAR
. . . Seattle next

The casual approach shouldn't be misunderstood. Those two bouts with the surgeon have left most of John Dunbar's stomach in hospitals. Fortunately the operations have not affected his Scottish heart nor his desire to sing.

John Dunbar started singing early in life.

"I'm the only member of the family in show business," he said sipping his tea. "But we were all pretty good singers back in Keith Scotland. There were six children in the family, three boys and three girls and we'd gather around and sing like the good Presbyterians we were."

John credits two churches for helping to cultivate his voice.

"I used to go to the Old Church of Scotland in the morning and the Plymouth Brethren later in the day so I got lots of singing on Sundays," he told me with a grin.

It wasn't confusion of religious beliefs that had the young Scots lad trotting from service to service.

"To be honest," he says with faint Scottish burr," the Plymouth Brethren had a pretty tremendous party once a year for their Sunday school kids so . . ."

John came to Canada in 1948 and got his first concert break in Flin Flon, Manitoba.

"It's the little Wales of Canada," he recalls. "The miners there have wonderful glee clubs and it wasn't long before I was singing Gilbert and Sullivan or anything else that needed singing."

Polish

But sing though he could in Flin Flon it wasn't until the musical Scot got to Victoria that his performances began to take on the professional polish.

"I owe a lot to Mr. and Mrs. Roberto Wood," he said. "They are very talented people and Mrs. Wood is an excellent voice coach."

John met more than good voice coaches on the west coast.

Among his fans in those days was a young lady named Joan Fenwick who in 1952 became Mrs. John Dunbar. Two young Dunbars, Sheena, 10, and Scott, 8, round out the Dunbar household.

If John Dunbar were a boastful man he could string the names of the famous in boring procession.

U.K. Success

But he isn't, so when he mentions singing on the Queen Mary in mid-Atlantic or performing with the Mills Brothers in Seattle, or being invited by British impressario Henry Hall to appear in concerts, or singing on BBC radio and television, the items come through as casual references to what he's done and where he has been rather than as a name-dropping exercise.

John had his greatest success in the United Kingdom between 1962 and 1965. Few were the concert halls he missed as he trekked back and forth across the country.

So why, if he was such a success over there, did he come back to Victoria?

"It's a fair enough question," says John, "and it has an almost too simple answer.

'We Missed City'

"We, the family, came back here in 1963 for a visit and for me to sing in a concert. When we got back we realized what we had been missing being away from Victoria and just decided to stay.

"I went back to England for a few months to clean up contracts I had already signed and that was that."

The future

"Difficult to say," John answered. "I was over in Seattle in January sharing a bill at the Edgewater with the Mills Brothers. The audience and the Mills Brothers liked the show and there's a good chance that I might be invited back for a long stand.

"It isn't an easy problem to solve. The night club performer's life is pretty helter-skelter and with children you can't just be wandering around at will.

Big Money

"But on the other hand that's where the big money is and . . . well, we'll see. I know I could make it to the top. That's confidence, not conceit."

He didn't have to say the latter because John Dunbar is obviously neither arrogant nor conceited.

How does a young man with a family to raise find the time to work at a regular job yet still appear in Seattle night clubs and other concert stages?

"Dave Armstrong (bossman at CKDA where John works) is the answer to that," says the singer. "He's been great, really great. Without his help I just couldn't do it."

Eat Anything

The hamburger was long finished and a bran muffin topped off the snack—"It isn't an ulcer, you know, this stomach trouble. I can eat anything" said John by way of explanation.

One last question. How is your longplay record (two sides of John Dunbar) going?

"I don't really know. It hasn't been out long you know. I sang six Scottish songs and six country westerns — the most universal music in the world. People who have bought it seem to think it's pretty good. I hope so, anyway."

'Silent Tibet' First Big Mistake By Chinese in Bid for Power

An Indian diplomat outlined for a small group of Victorians Friday night what he called "the dangerous and insidious subtlety" of Red China's foreign policy.

But he also cautioned that the Chinese Communist government is "settled, stable, strong" and should be helped "to settle down in the family of nations."

Dr. P. K. Banerjee said what is needed is "containment but not isolation" of China.

Dr. Banerjee is one of India's leading China experts. From 1961 to 1964 he was Indian charge d'affaires in Peking. He is now minister at the Indian Embassy in Washington.

Dr. Banerjee was here to speak to the Victoria branch of the Canadian Institue of International Affairs.

NEEDED PEACE

He said his country desperately needed peace to concentrate on its immense problems after gaining independence in 1947. It hoped to keep China at bay by patience and by following a policy of non-alignment in foreign affairs.

He said Nehru gambled that the two great powers could coexist despite idological differences: Nehru was an optimist, said Dr. Banerjee, but the Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung was a cynic.

He said Mao fervently believes Communism to be the wave of the future but that it is first a necessity for China to become an Asian super-power. And he quoted writings of Mao that "war is politics: war is political action."

ASIAN RIVAL

Dr. Banerjee said that, bearing in mind what Mao has written, the record of Chinese aggression against India can be seen in perspective. He said it is highly significant that India, China's great democratic rival in Asia, should be the only country singled out by China for direct attack.

China's foreign policy first went wrong in 1950 when it took over Tibet and completely destroyed its autonomy. Then there was a pause in Chinese expansion for a few years, said Dr. Banerjee.

In 1954 China signed a treaty with India pledging respect for India's territorial sovereignty. China at this time raised no territorial claim on India and accepted the common border long recognized between the two countries.

REDRAWS MAPS

But soon China started what Dr. Banerjee called "cartographic aggression." It issued maps showing parts of Indian territory as being in China. Nehru protested and was reassured by Chou En-lai, the Chinese premier, who said India accepted the McMahon Line as the border. Chou promised the maps would be withdrawn.

But they never were. And then, in 1959, Chou insisted India must negotiate settlement of the dispute over the border. But the Chinese launched an attack against Indian border posts without any attempt to negotiate their claims.

Dr. Banerjee said that in July, 1962, he proposed to Chou En-lai that Indian troops would withdraw to their own territory, as shown to the Chinese maps, and Chinese troops should withdraw to their own territory, as marked on the Indian maps. A settlement might then be reached peaceably on the border dispute.

Instead, the Chinese crossed the McMahon Line and in October moved against India all along the border, pushing back Indian troops almost to the Plains of Assam.

MIDNIGHT DECISION

Dr. Banerjee said that on Nov. 21 he was called to Chou EN-lai's office and they talked together for several hours. Around midnight the Red Chinese premier suddenly told him that Chinese troops would withdraw. Said Dr. Banerjee, "I often wonder why they retreated."

He thinks there are four reasons. Indian soldiers were better equipped to put up tough resistance at the lower levels. The speedy response of the U.S. and Britain in support of India frightened the Chinese that the scope of the war might be suddenly enlarged.

MISCALCULATED

The Chinese miscalculated that their successes would bring down the Nehru government and they would be able to take advantage of the resulting confusion. Instead their success united the country behind Nehru. And the fourth reason was that opinion among the non-aligned powers was against Red China.

He said that of the 30 known top Communist leaders in China, all but two are in the 65 to 75 age bracket. Dr. Banerjee said Mao is afraid that young Chinese today do not view the world as he did when he was young. He said this is the explanation for Mao's recent attacks on "revisionism."

'Awareness Lacking' Of Smoking Dangers

Twenty-five states of the United States are now planning non-smoking and health programs, says Robert Ludwig, secretary of the Non Smokers Association of Canada, now visiting Victoria.

"All across the U.S. there is a growing awareness of the association between cigarette smoking and heart disease. I wish we had more of this awareness in Canada."

For the past six months, Mr. Ludwig has been working on health and non-smoking programs for Washington state and has a temporary office at Olympia.

"These programs are supported by the U.S. federal government, the state government and the Washington foundation," he said.

"Through them we have contacted about half a million school children in Washington. We have also circulated literature in Buffalo and Philadelphia."

Mr. Ludwig is now working on a book to be titled Quit Smoking Gracefully."

150 Intellectuals 'Tricked, Shot' By Nazi Officer

LUENEBURG, West Germany (Reuters)—A Nazi police officer promised 150 Polish intellectuals they would be sent to Palestine and then had them all shot, an American witness told a war crimes trial here Wednesday.

Alfred Monhejt, 38, of New York, was giving evidence at the trial of three former Nazi police officers charged with the mass killing of Jews in the ghetto of Czestochowa, Boland.

He said former police Capt. Paul Degenhardt, 70, promised 150 Czestochowa intellectuals in March, 1943, they would be sent to Palestine in exchange for German war prisoners there.

But they were all shot at the town's cemetery on Degenhardt's orders the same day, the witness said.

Monhejt said Degenhardt shot his father in September, 1942.

Degenhardt told the court Wednesday: "I have shot no one and have ordered no executions."

Fire Damages Hotel

QUEBEC (CP) — A three-alarm fire that heavily damaged the Louis XIV Hotel here Wednesday was brought under control by about 100 firemen early in the evening. All guests escaped from the five-storey, 50-room wood and stone building.

9 IN MEMORIAM

PITT—In loving memory of a dear father, Geoffrey William Pitt, who passed away April 17, 1963.

What I would give if I could say
Hello Dad, in the same old way;
To hear your voice, to see your smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile.
So you who have a father,
Please cherish him with care,
For you'll never know the heartache,
Till you see his vacant chair.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his son, Richard.

CLIFF—In fond and loving memory of our dear Mom and Nana Rosina Violet, "called home" April 16, 1953. Also Dad and Grandad Charles William, Jan. 27, 1962.

Some day we hope to meet them,
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp their hands in the better land,
Never to part again.

—Sadly missed always by twin daughters, Norah, Violet and Dolly, three sons and families.

STEELE — In loving memory of our beloved mother and grandmother, Sarah Priscilla, who passed away April 16, 1965.

In memory she is always near,
Still loved, still missed,
Still very dear.

—Ever remembered by the Family.

VANDER KRACHT—In loving memory of Bram, who passed away April 16, 1965.

Always thoughtful, always kind;
Beautiful memories he left behind.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

Many players would open the South hand with one heart only. There is a lot of reason for this bid. If North has the right cards there will be a slam and a four-heart opening will toss that slam out the window.

NORTH 16
♠ 9 3
♥ 8 4
♦ 6 5 2
♣ A K Q J 4 3

WEST
♠ A K 6
♥ 10 7
♦ A Q 8 4

EAST
♠ Q J 10 8 7 2
♥ 5
♦ J 10 9 3
♣ 8 7

SOUTH (D)
♠ 5 4
♥ A K Q J 9 6 3 2
♦ K 7
♣ 9

Neither vulnerable

West	North	East	South
			4 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♠ K.

On the other hand, South has no defence against spades. This time if he opens with one heart West will double for takeout and East will go to four spades if he has to. Furthermore, he will have no trouble making that contract. All he has to do is to draw trumps and take the diamond finesse.

The four opening effectively shuts East and West out of the bidding. In addition, it will produce a really big swing for North and South unless East and West know how to get full value out of their trick-taking cards.

If West takes his ace and king of spades he will have no way to get more than one diamond trick and not only will South have taken away the East-West spade game but he will have made a game of his own.

Proper use of signals will allow East and West to save something from the wreck and pick up 50 points for a one-trick set. East must drop his queen of spades under his partner's king.

This play cannot be read as a suit preference call for a diamond shift because if East wants a diamond shift he can get it by just playing a low spade. West is not going to shift to a club in any event.

Actually, the queen of spades play is a specific strength signal and tells West that East is sitting with the jack of spades in back of that queen. West leads the six of spades. East gains the lead and plays a diamond through South's king.

USED CARS
FOR SALE—
CHEAP!

What does it take to make a GOOD DEAL for YOU? Hoopla? Claims and counter claims? Singers, Actors and the like? WE THINK NOT! What makes a deal GOOD for you is the condition of the car you buy . . . the size of the price you pay . . . the kind of trade-in allowance you get. This is why we don't cloud the issue with a lot of themes, smoke signals and clever thoughts . . . but instead use the simple (and most honest) Advertising Appeal of all . . . "USED CARS FOR SALE . . . CHEAP! After all, isn't that what you're interested in?

FOR EXAMPLE:

The Spy Who Came Out For the Gold

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says reports are flooding Eastern Canada that a "co-operative spy" involved with Russian embassy officials at the same time as George Victor Spencer has emerged from obscurity to sell his story.

The afternoon newspaper, in a front page story, said Friday it is understood that the man—never publicly named—has run a private business for more than a year in a small community in northern British Columbia.

It says the man was reported to be in Toronto negotiating with newspaper syndicates and television for his story.

(Cecil Smith, director of information for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said in Toronto Friday the CBC interviewed the man in Vancouver and brought some film back to Toronto, but it did not fly the man himself to Toronto.)

The spy case came to light last May when two Soviet embassy officials in Ottawa were expelled from Canada.

At the time, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons two Canadians were involved in a spy ring that led to the deportations.

One was later identified as Spencer, a 61-year-old former postal clerk found dead last week in his Vancouver home. An inquest ruled his death natural.

The Sun says the other was the man now believed in Toronto.

The man was described by Prime Minister Pearson as a naturalized Canadian who got in touch with RCMP immediately after the Russians approached him.

Mr. Pearson described the "co-operative spy" as conscientious and patriotic and said he had acted as an informant for several months.

Big Payoff on Quinella Features Opening Day

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quick Return eased home ahead of Scottsdale Lad to win the feature "Community Chest" seventh race at Exhibition Park Friday.

A crowd of 5,882 turned out in bright sunshine for the first day of the season and wagered a total of $173,026.

Quick Return paid $19.10 on the nose in winning the seventh over a distance of six furlongs in 1:13 1-5.

In the first race Social Wise teamed with Sir Blue for a quinella payoff of $438.70. Social Wise paid a whopping $98.30 to win.

NEW SYSTEM PLANNED FOR TAX PAYMENTS

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A new income tax system for Canadians allowing them to average their income over a period for the payment of their taxes, as is now done by farmers, is expected to be set up after the government gets the Carter royal commission on taxation report.

Such a system, which is a much fairer way to impose income taxes, would enable a university student for example who had very little income and then after graduation obtained a good paying job, to average his earnings. It would work to his benefit.

The same would apply for a man who had a few years of average income and then his a good year when his income shot up. The new computers installed in the national revenue departmental offices can work out such averages quickly and ascertain what the tax would be.

Before the end of May parliament and the Canadian people will know what the Carter commission has recommended in the form of revised taxes. The commission has been making a sweeping review of tax structure.

HIGHER TAXES DUE

A higher level of taxation lies ahead for Canadians to meet the costs of social welfare programs.

The income tax will be continued and revised.

A capital gains tax is expected to be proposed as a source for added revenue.

One possibility is that under the revised tax structure everybody with an income will be required to file an income tax return.

Under the present income tax setup a married person pays tax if he or she earns an income over $2,100. A single person pays tax if he or she earns an income over $1,100. Those earning incomes below that level don't have to file an income tax form.

Today the basic exemption for a married taxpayer is $2,000 and for those who are single it is $1,000. Under a proposal that appears to be more equitable to the taxpayer and a better system insofar as the government is concerned, there would be no such exemption. Instead all wage earners would file income tax forms and the rates in the low income groups would be nil or very low.

FAR SUPERIOR

This system according to many tax authorities is far superior to that of establishing certain basic exemptions and increasing those exemption. The New Democratic Party in its proposed amendment in the budget debate has advocated that the basic exemption for married persons be boosted to $3,000 and for single persons to $2,000.

A capital gains tax seems almost certain to be recommended by the royal commission.

More than one member of the cabinet favors a capital gains tax. But there are others who don't like the idea. In Canada a person whose stock increases in value over a period of time pays no tax when he sells. Under a capital gains tax the difference between the purchasing and selling prices would be taxed.

Imposition of a capital gains tax could be one lucrative source of the needed additional tax revenue that Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp has warned must be raised in the immediate years ahead.

The minister likes the income tax. He described it in his budget last month as the "fairest of our taxes."

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The La Salle commemorative which was issued last Wednesday will be followed on May 2nd with a special 5c stamp to advertise the campaign for Safety on the Highways.

The design for this stamp is the work of Helen Fitzgerald of Toronto and features a number of the symbols which are used on our highways to warn drivers of dangers ahead.

The stamp will use the "DAVAC" adhesive instead of ordinary gum. It is virtually invisible and is similar to that used in 1958 for B.C.'s Centennial Law stamps — and also on our air mail stickers. (Incidentally it will be recalled that New Zealand issued a stamp two years ago to help promote safety on the roads.)

On May 26 a Canadian stamp to advertise the London Conference is due; and a month later (June 30) a 5c Canada Coat of Arms — (Floral Series) will go on sale.

Jamaica will issue its belated Churchill commemorative 6d and 1sh on April 18; to be followed a week later by the Virgin Islands Postal Centenary issue. Four values in U.S. currency will comprise the set — 5c, 10c, 25c, and 60c.

An excellent little book has just been published by the U.S. Department of the Interior entitled "Duck Stamp Data." It can be got from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402, for the nominal price of 25c.

The booklet illustrates and gives full data on all of the 32 U.S. Duck Stamps issued to date. It explains why the first few issues are so scarce and valuable today. It is very well worth having.

These Duck Stamps are, as most collectors know, revenue stamps which have to be stuck on waterfowl-hunting licences to make them legal.

They are beautifully engraved, and make a most attractive addition to the album.

TAKE YOUR CHANCES?

A punchboard contains 100 chances numbered from 1 to 100. The price of each punch is determined by its number. That is to say, number 1 costs 1 cent, number 2 costs 2 cents, and so on.

How quickly can you estimate the total value?

Answer: Fifty dollars and fifty cents.

HOW QUICKLY CAN YOU COUNT?

If 20 times a certain number exceeds a third of that number by 236, what is the number?

Time limit: two minutes.

Answer: The number in question is 12.

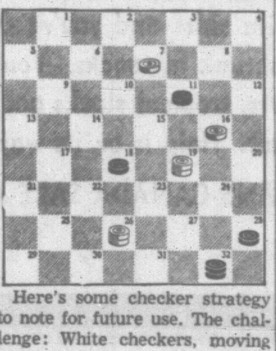
CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



Here's some checker strategy to note for future use. The challenge: White checkers, moving up the board, to move and win in four moves. How is it done?

Knowledge of White's modus operandi here is a must in the education of all aspiring champs, says star player Millard Hopper, who originates these problems for our page. Hopper's solution is presented below.

Solution: White 7—3, Black 11—20, White 19—23, Black 18—27, White 26—31, Black 20—24, White 3—8. Black has no moves left and loses the game.

SCOOTER HO, SCOOTER HEY

A college student on his motor scooter traveled to his destination at a rate of 10 miles per hour. He made the return trip at 15 miles per hour. What was the scooter's average speed?

Don't jump to an obvious conclusion, folks.

Answer: Average speed was 12 miles per hour. Say the distance was 30 miles. The round trip of 60 miles would take five hours, or an average speed of 12 mph.

"Now, there's a pretty picture," says the young man at right, proud of his handiwork with coloring materials.

What has he drawn? We'll let you decide. Here's how:

Using a green crayon, draw from 1 to 2 to 3 to 4.

Using a brown crayon, draw from 4 to 5 to 6 to 7.

Using a red crayon, draw from 7 to 8 t. 9, etc., to 15 (use same dot for 4 and 15).

Next, shade separate enclosures with green, brown and red, respectively.

An ordinary lead pencil will reveal the subject, too, of course. But it won't be as pretty.

Incidentally, if you are painting a picture, what are good colors for the sun and wind?

Give up? The sun rose and the wind blue.

WINNERS AND LOSERS TEAMWORK

Each of the four teams in a week-end basketball league played 15 games this season. Team B won two more games than team D and 11 more games than team C. Team A won six more games than team C. How many games did each win?

Solution: Thirty games were won. A won 6 more than C; B, 11 more and D, 9 more. Six plus 11 plus 9 is 26. Then 26 more than four times the number of games won by C equals 30. Four times the number of games won by C is 30 minus 26 or 4. Therefore C won 1 game and lost 14. A won 7and lost 8. B won 12 and lost 3. Don won 10 and lost 5.

Rain Main Fear As River Peaks

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Red River apparently has exhausted its power but the flood water it spewed into southern Manitoba will keep some 5,000 people away from their homes for some time yet.

"The flood is not over," warned Agriculture Minister George Hutton Friday.

Earlier he reported that in all probability the Red reached its 1966 peak in Winnipeg Thursday—at 26.3 feet above winter average ice level.

Dikes will be patrolled around the clock, Mr. Hutton said, because the metropolitan area of 500,000 can still look forward to about a week of water levels in the 25-26-foot range before the Red starts to subside.

The situation could still turn dangerous if heavy rains come before the flood recedes, he said.

Winnipeg got a break Friday when the Assiniboine River shot its bolt before the Red's high-water crest arrived from the south.

Coming on the heels of good weather conditions, the development indicated the Red's main crest, due Friday at Morris 35 miles to the south, was not expected to have enough punch left to surpass the Thursday level by the time it reaches Winnipeg.

The Red rose slightly at Morris Friday and held steady at St. Jean Baptiste, six miles to the south.

Flood co-ordinator Bob Wallace said it will be some time before an orderly and safe re-entry to Morris can be carried out — possibly not until the water level drops some four feet, the level at which all but essential personnel were evacuated.

Wallace said re-entry will not be permitted until all danger has passed from water behind the dikes, which now are holding back about 20 feet of water.

In Emerson, a border town 60 miles south of Winnipeg, the Red dropped two inches Friday, 2½ feet below the top of an earth and sandbag dike protecting the evacuated community.

Emerson town council met Friday and recommended that re-entry not be permitted until the river drops a further three feet.

NAMED Miss Byline Ball of 1966 in Toronto Friday night, Ellen Tsuji, 20-year-old typist with the New Canadian, a Japanese-English bi-weekly paper, has refused to reveal her vital statistics. Miss Tsuji said she would keep her measurements to herself. (CP Wirephoto.)

MLA Ordered to Trial

QUEBEC (CP)—Marcellin Laroche, 46, Liberal member of the provincial legislative assembly for Portneuf, was sent for trial at the October assizes Friday on charges of influence peddling and conspiracy.

'MAKE FOOLS OF SELVES', DECLARES NDP LEADER

EDSON, Alta. (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, said Friday night Parliament has done little but waste time this session. "In short we've been making fools of ourselves."

He spoke to a convention that chose Neil Reimer of Edmonton, Alberta NDP leader, to run again in Edson in the next provincial election. Mr. Reimer lost to a Liberal in a byelection last year.

Referring to Parliament, Mr. Douglas said: "We haven't tackled a single piece of major legislation," and indicated much of the reason for this is due to the lack of federal leadership.

"This is why MPs have spent a lot of time calling each other names. They can't make up their mind what to put in the legislation."

RCAF PILOT IN 'MIRACLE' LANDING

Section of Giant Plane Blows Out in Mid-Air

BORDEN, Sask. (CP) — Lady Luck must have been hitching a ride aboard an RCAF four-engined Hercules C-130B transport flying from Edmonton to Rivers, Man., Friday.

The four crewmen of the giant transport walked away from the aircraft after pilot Flt. Lt. John Moore of Rivers nursed his badly damaged machine into a farmer's stubble field about seven miles north of here. Borden is 30 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

Flt. Lt. Moore made the forced landing after a large section of the left side of the fuselage blew out at an altitude of 25,000 feet about 100 miles west of where the aircraft landed.

The section which blew out was about eight feet wide and extended almost half-way round the fuselage. As the section blew out, it destroyed many of the flight controls and engine control linkages in the top of the fuselage. Power on three of the four turbo-prop engines failed and was drastically reduced in the fourth.

However, there was no explosion and fire aboard the aircraft. None of the crew was injured.

The aircraft was on a ferry flight from Namao air base near Edmonton to Rivers when the accident happened.

One of the crew, Cpl. Marc Champagne, also of Rivers, was sitting near the section of the fuselage when it blew out and was nearly sucked out of the cabin by the blast of air rushing out.

The cabin of the transport was pressurized and the crew had to switch to emergency oxygen immediately.

The pilot brought the transport into a mile-long stubble field on the farm of Mike Hunchak in what appeared to be a perfect landing.

SKIDS 1,500 FEET

The aircraft skidded down the field for about 1,500 feet.

The tips of the four propellers were damaged from striking pieces of the section of the fuselage as it flew out of the aircraft.

There was a large hole in the top of the inboard right engine cowling and another between the two engines on the right side.

Pilot Moore made a "wheels up" landing and the underside of the fuselage was torn and wrinkled from the skid down the field.

There were no indications how or when the plane might be removed from the field.

Clive Wensley, who farms about six miles west of the scene, said his young son came running into the house saying an airplane was going to crash.

"I thought he was just fooling," Mr. Wensley said.

The RCAF has convened a board of inquiry to investigate the cause.

REPORT SAYS PAIR CLINGING TO BOAT

Rescue boats were scouring the waters north of Ten Mile Point at noon today following a report that an aluminum boat had overturned.

T. W. L. Butters, 2140 Wenman Drive, telephoned Saanich police after he looked from his window and saw a flash about two miles offshore which he thought could have been an aluminum boat overturning.

One report was that two persons were observed clinging to the sides of the boat.

Two Air-Sea Rescue boats and a boat from Oak Bay Marina had found nothing at press time.

Rhodesia Drops Bid for Beira Oil

SALISBURY (CP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today the tanker Ionna's 18,000-ton oil cargo will not be pumped into Rhodesia because he does not want to aggravate the difficulties of Portugal and the ship's Greek crew.

In a broadcast, Smith also said Rhodesia will cut all its remaining diplomatic ties with Britain.

The Ioanna V is anchored at Beira in Portuguese Mozambique and the British government has been putting pressure on the Portuguese government to prevent movement of her oil through the pipeline to Rhodesia.

The Beira port authorities put her under the control of Portugal last Thursday after both the Panamanian and Greek governments revoked her registration.

The broadcast was Smith's first formal comment since the arrival of the Ioanna V at Beira 11 days ago raised the Rhodesian independence crisis to a new peak.

Smith admitted that oil aboard the tanker was meant for Rhodesia.

Smith said last week's United Nations Security Council resolution authorizing Britain to use force to halt tankers believed carrying oil for Rhodesia is not valid because two permanent council members—France and the Soviet Union — had abstained from voting.

Before the resolution, a Royal Navy boarding party had tried unsuccessfully to persuade the Ioanna V's captain from docking at Biera.

"By referring the oil embargo to the United Nations, Britain had unwittingly in the process acknowledged Rhodesia's independence," Smith said, adding that Britain's behavior at the United Nations and a "blatant case of espionage" by a member of the British mission in Salisbury had forced his government to cut remaining diplomatic ties with Britain.

The staff of Rhodesia House in London will be recalled and the British mission in Salisbury will be closed, he said. The decision had been taken reluctantly because the two missions could have led to something constructive in the future, he added, not elaborating.

Smith's mention of espionage apparently was a reference to the expulsion from Rhodesia last month of Neville French, the British mission's first secretary, who was accused of spying.

MID-AUGUST ELECTION IN VIET NAM LIKELY

SAIGON (CP)—South Viet Nam's military government has tentatively agreed to hold general elections for a civilian administration in mid-August, usually reliable sources said today.

The agreement in principle was reported to have been reached in private talks between Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and delegates from the national political congress.

This date would be about a month earlier than the deadline set in a government decree signed two days ago in the face of mounting Buddhist pressure. The decree fixed a time limit of three to five months.

Saigon was quiet today after Friday's announcement that the Buddhist church was calling off its agitation in view of the government concessions.

But in Da Nang, about 3,000 demonstrators took to the streets and demanded that Ky's military government give way to civilian rule in South Viet Nam.

LOYALTY TO CBC QUESTIONED

Two Stars Dropped From Top TV Show

TORONTO (CP) — The hosts of the CBC's controversial public affairs program This Hour Has Seven Days said Friday night the CBC told them they are being dropped from the show because their loyalty is in question.

(The Star says there is a possibility of a strike by producers over the matter. It reports that the executive of the Producers' Association has scheduled a meeting today with key figures in the program and has indicated a membership meeting likely will be called this weekend.)

The CBC said Friday the Seven Days program will continue next fall but Patrick Watson is not likely to be involved in it. The contract of co-host Laurier LaPierre, a McGill University professor and part-time broadcaster, expires in May and Mr. LaPierre said he has been told it will not be renewed.

The CBC said: "It is expected that Mr. Watson will play a ma-

NDP IN B.C. AGAIN FACES MONEY CRISIS

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —The B.C. New Democratic Party has once again found itself in a precarious financial predicament.

"It's a case of the poor getting poorer," Clive Lytle, the party's provincial organizer, said here Friday. "We didn't even have the money to prepare the materials to raise some money."

Mr. Lytle told delegates to the party's annual convention it is evident that stabilization of party finances is a prerequisite to building an effective organization throughout the province.

The party's financial statement shows assets of $30,619 for 1965 and liabilities of $35,480 for a deficit of $4,861.

NATO Allies Study Future French Role

Working Body Formed

BONN (AP)—The United States, Britain and West Germany today set up a new body to deal with the French withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's integrated military structure.

It will consist of the No. 2 man in the West German foreign ministry, Karl Carstens, and the U.S. and British ambassadors in Bonn—George C. McGhee and Sir Frank Roberts.

The agreement was announced after two days of talks in the Bonn foreign ministry on the future of French forces in West Germany.

The new body's purpose, the

announcement said, will be to continue the exchange of opinions.

"Recommendations of the working group," the three nations announced, "will be the object of further consultations among the NATO powers which received the French memorandum."

JOINT STATEMENT

The joint statement said the discussion during the last two days had been on "the political, military and legal questions arising out of the announcement of the French government that French troops in the Federal Republic (of West Germany) are to be withdrawn from NATO command."

Other member states had been informed of the talks, it added, and the participants were convinced that they had made a useful contribution to further consultations among NATO members. The statement did not say anything about the conditions under which France should be allowed to keep its troops in West Germany.

By order of President de Gaulle of France, the two French divisions and two air squadrons in southwest West Germany will be withdrawn from joint Allied command July 1. They will no longer have even limited access to American or British nuclear weapons.

The French want to keep their forces, whose strength they put at 72,000 men, under their own command. West Germany dislikes this because it looks like a return to the post-Second World War occupation regime.

TENSION IN IRELAND

Bullets Rake MP's House

BELFAST (Reuters) — Extremists fired bullets into a member of Parliament's home here early today as Northern Ireland braced itself for an explosive weekend during celebrations of the 50th anniversary of the Irish Rebellion.

Armed police patrols launched a massive security clampdown to stop members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army crossing from the Irish Republic into Northern Ireland, part of the United Kingdom.

Authorities fear violence from IRA forces—pledged to uniting divided Ireland—during a big republican parade here Sunday commemorating the rebellion, which led to southern independence from Britain.

South of the border, Irish Republican police investigated a mysterious explosion that rocked the village of Inistioge in south Kilkenny.

The explosion and five shots were heard while a dance was being held in the town hall following an Easter Rising commemoration parade.

Two bullets shattered windows in the Belfast home of John M'Quade, a member of Northern Ireland's ruling Unionist party whose policy is to keep the province under British rule. M'Quade and his wife were not injured.

Thousands of southern Irishmen expected to flood across the 182-mile border today and Sunday for the celebrations will undergo an intensive check by police.

The government has ordered a temporary cut in rail links with the south to keep out known troublemakers. All trains here from Dublin, the republican capital, are banned for 21 hours from tonight.

New President

BAGHDAD, Iraq, (UPI)—Informed sources said tonight Maj. Gen. Abdel Rahman Aref had been named president of Iraq to succeed his late brother, Abdul Salem Aref. A formal announcement was expected shortly.

NO INVITATION SENT TO GERDA, SAYS PROBER

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes Mr. Justice Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada as saying that Gerda Munsinger has not been invited to appear before a commission investigating allegations that she was involved with ministers of the Diefenbaker government in a manner creating a security risk.

The newspaper quotes him in an Ottawa story: "We have not in any way attempted to bring Mrs. Munsinger to Canada."

The commissioner was replying to a question based on a rumor that Mrs. Munsinger, whose home is in Munich, West Germany, was to arrive in Canada April 28, the newspaper continued.

"When asked about the rumor, Mr. Justice Spence said he was prepared to answer that no attempt had been made to bring Mrs. Munsinger to Canada, but he went on to suggest that it was no business of the reporter who would or would not be a witness at the inquiry, the Globe said.

"I am becoming increasingly concerned that everybody except the man appointed to do it seems to want to run this inquiry," Mr. Spence said.

The first public hearing of the inquiry will be held Monday but an inquiry spokesman told the Globe Friday the doors may not be open for long.

Sulphur Deal Eyed

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta sulphur producers have been offered an opportunity to sell their product to a group of Japanese industrialists at the rate of 100,000 long tons next year, with an increase to 200,000 long tons a year by 1972.

A spokesman for the group said the contract could be on a semi-permanent basis, with preference for an initial minimum contract for 10 years.

Discussions are only at the preliminary stage and price has not been considered, the spokesman said.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1966—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

One day I sketched for you here a futuristic fantasy in which Victoria's suburbs had crept north to mesh with the ticky-tacky subdivisions of Vancouver-employed commuters.

Well, on Thursday evening we took ourselves to the first of four meetings laid on by the capital region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, and came away with the knowledge that the dream, or nightmare, is all too likely to materialize.

The hope of planners, both professional and amateur, is to channel the expected population influx in such a manner that life will remain reasonably pleasant in this demi-paradise.

If they succeed, considerable credit will probably go to a transplanted Welshman by the name of Anthony H. Roberts, whose lilting voice lends a touch of poetry even to sober facts.

★

Mr. Roberts, who directs the Capital Region Planning Board, has broken any number of lances against the dragon of uncontrolled urban sprawl since he came to Victoria from Burnaby five years ago.

He was chief speaker at the meeting, which he shared with a middle-aged audience, a panel of four questioners, and an actual fibre-board panel that towered high over his head.

During introductions and other preliminaries, this last stood faced toward the wall. When the time came for him to commence, Mr. Roberts lugged it around to show Saanich Peninsula in outline. There were no houses, no roads—only a speckle of trees to mark the edge of the watershed.

All was as man first found it; but planner Roberts, a prophet of the future, didn't leave it that way for long.

From a palette which consisted of waxed-paper coffee mugs wedged into holes in a board, he chose a color, then dipped a long-handled brush.

"The Russians," he said, rimming the shoreline expertly with azure, "have their blue belt, and so do we."

True enough; and that's some comfort. But the audience wanted green belts too, and these Mr. Roberts later applied in the shape of parks.

Brown in a peculiarly unpleasant shade was the color of industry, and those areas were even sparser than the parkland.

Downtown Victoria was worth revitalizing, but unlikely to press more than a timid step past its present confines.

The expanse beyond, clear out to Land's End, our prophet of the inevitable left blank except for a slashing north-to-south parkway. Into the open spaces, wave after wave, with a break here for the university and there for a school or a community centre, will surge houses, houses, houses.

★

It should be remembered at this point that, like all good planners, Mr. Roberts is guided by realities and probabilities rather than his own emotions. So please don't blame him.

We're never going to amount to shucks industrially. Our agriculture is a dying duck, since the rise in land prices is going to doom the farmlands. It seems we will remain primarily a government and service town—service in the sense that you serve me and I serve you—with a yearly and lucrative invasion by tourists, if we keep ourselves looking nice.

Another of our present functions will remain unchanged. To borrow apt words from Dr. L. Austin Wright of Deep Cove Property Owners' Association, we will continue as "God's waiting-room" for the elderly retired.

I'm not sure what all this adds up to, but I hope as does Dr. Wright, that space will remain on a peninsula destined to reach the quarter-million population mark by 1981, for a man to paddle his feet in salt water without elbows gouging his ribs.

The unreconstructed will also sympathize with the lady panelist of the quartet, Mrs. Ruby Masters, from the Association of Women Electors.

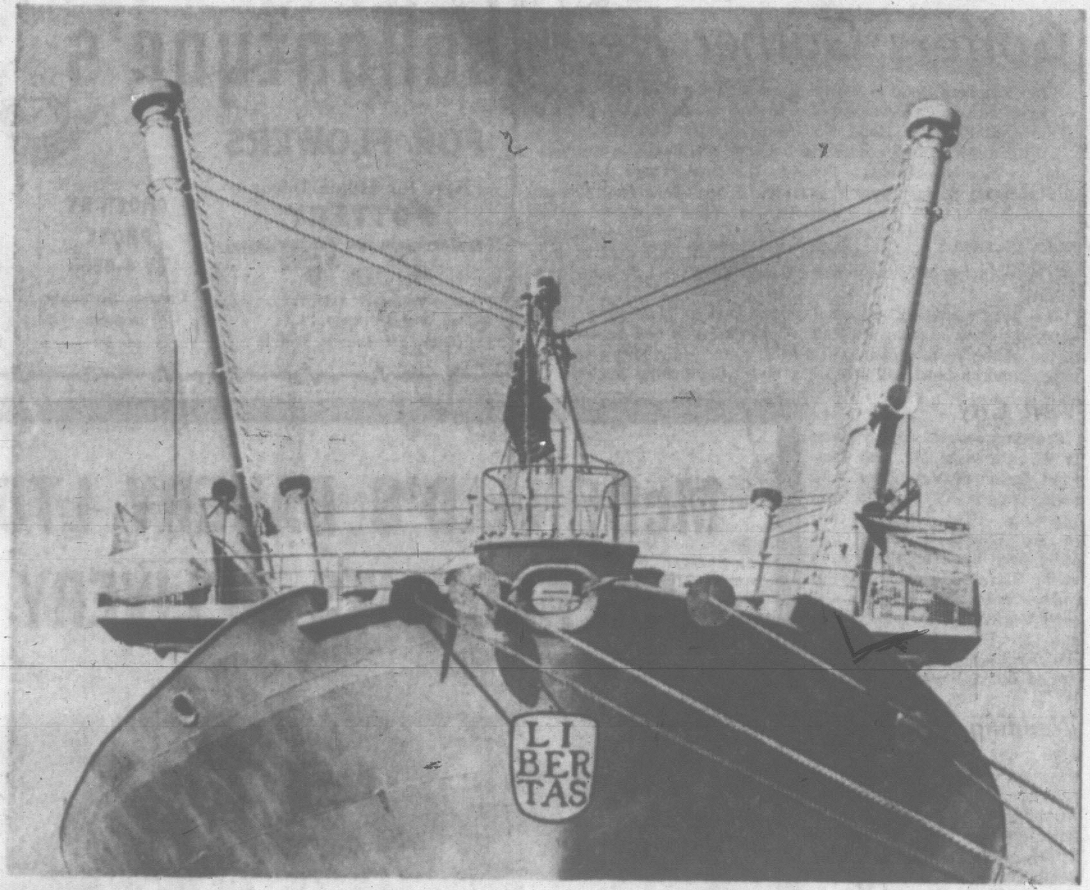
"I hope," said she, wistfully, "there will be at least a little room for the curly lilies."

Victoria's Finest Parade on May 8

Victoria's finest will parade before the public at the annual city police inspection May 8, from 2 to 4 p.m., in Memorial Arena.

Members of the force will receive medals and service bars and the police precision drill squad will perform.

Also on the program will be a judo display, an appearance by Vancouver City Police motorcycle drill team, city police youth band and Victoria Girls' Drill Team.



GIANT ANTENNAS make excellent feelers for the deep-sea freighter Tiha which has just finished loading lumber at Ogden Point. At least that's how it looks in this unusual shot taken by Times photographer Bill Halkett. The antennas are newly designed Sampson posts which splay outwards instead of standing upright as on most ships. The posts support the ship's derricks. The 12,000-gross-ton Yugoslavian-registered ship sailed for the U.S. east coast with 1,125,000 board feet of lumber.

This is a story to bring tea to your eyes.

That's not original but pass the sugar and read on.

It concerns a fairy-tale town called Victoria on a tiny island in the Pacific.

Now the citizens of Victoria were quiet and peace-loving. They worked diligently and steered clear of their big bad brothers on the mainland.

Each day at 5 p.m. the entire populace ceased its daily toil and adjourned to what was known as the "tea shop."

There the goodly womenfolk, teacup in hand, little finger cocked at a 45-degree angle, chatted gaily of the day's social activities.

The menfolk, god-fearing sober men all, discussed the day's events at the office.

In the quaint streets outside, horse-drawn buggies skittered to and fro, bearing young courting couples in the throes of love.

It was an ideal way of life.

Happiness abounded behind the "Crumpet Curtain," a phrase derived from a certain delicacy which was taken with afternoon tea.

But the badmen on the mainland were jealous of the Victorians.

They made jokes about their teas and crumpets. They chided the sober games of cricket and croquet.

Yet no amount of criticism would induce the local populace to change their way of life.

And the latest little funpoking in a press release on British Columbia by the National Geographic Society is no exception.

The release talks tongue in cheek of tea and crumpets, cricket and croquet, horse-drawn carts and the remark: "They're so English it brings tea to your eyes."

HOW TRUE?

Just how true is the fairy tale?

It's pretty accurate," according to Mike Hepple, head of Victoria Visitor's Bureau.

"The people do drink tea, eat crumpets and ride carts," he says. "And why not?"

Mr. England himself, Sam Lane of the Olde England Inn, thinks its just an image.

But it's an image he helps promote with his roast beef and Yorkshire pudding and steak and kidney pie specialties.

The staid old Empress Hotel takes a bow as the tea and crumpet capital of the world.

In the three summer months some 10,000 pots of tea are served between 3 and 5 p.m. along with thousands of crumpets.

"And they're not all tourists," says assistant manager Stan Porter. "Victorians love their afternoon tea."

Alan Macfarlane, the MLA who lives in the heart of "little England"—Oak Bay—sums it up:

"Behind the tourist promoting facade of this tea and crumpet capital are the happiest, hard-working buggy-riders in the world."

DOCTORS SAW YOUTH AFTER CHARGE LAID

A misheard date resulted in an error in the Times report Friday of the preliminary hearing of Francis Wollaston on a charge of capital murder.

The report said Dr. Charles Gregory, a psychiatrist, had examined Wollaston three days before the slaying of 7-year-old Linda Crocker.

In fact, Dr. Gregory's examination was made subsequent to the youth's arrest and at the direction of the juvenile court judge.

It took place Feb. 17, not Feb. 7 as reported.

EXQUISITE SHOW SPOILED FOR WEEKEND GARDNER

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The world's most exquisite and beautiful flowers are on show today at Memorial Hall, 912 Vancouver Street.

But what a difference it would make if the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society gave the show a face-lifting to make it more attractive to the uninitiated.

It would influence more people to take up alpine gardening — one of the most fascinating and rewarding hobbies.

* * *

But it has become, perhaps not intentionally a show more for connoisseurs of plants, specialists and serious gardeners. It needn't be. It could be developed as one of the most attractive shows in the Pacific Northwest.

These are my views after seeing the show for 15 consecutive years.

I'm not criticizing the exhibits. They are exceptional this year. And the collection of plants is the largest of its kind in North America.

But there is a real need to improve the layout. Some of the individual species should be exhibited singly with suitable backgrounds.

* * *

The beauty of many is lost to the untrained eye because they are grouped. Alpines as a whole are miniature and require special settings.

New plants should receive special treatment. Some information should be given as to where they are found and the country of origin.

But don't let these few observations deter you from seeing the show. If you are a gardener, don't miss it. It closes at 9 tonight.

It was opened Friday by Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, a keen gardener and an authority on alpine plants.

Judges awarded the Dr. C. T. Hilton trophy for the highest aggregate of points to J. Erickson, winner of the cup in 1959 and 1963. He specializes in growing alpines from seed.

Other winners: Rex Murfitt, Biggerstaff Wilson trophy for most outstanding plant; A. DeMezey, Christiansen cup, rarest plant in show; Flora-Vista Gardens, Will and Marjorie Pemberton trophy, most outstanding rhododendron.

Col. Keith Dixon, Jeffries cup, highest aggregate novice section; Jonas Mynkantas, Alan Brooks Morkill trophy, best native plant; Mrs. W. W. Ritchie, Barton trophy, best primlia polyanthus (amateur); Ed Lohbrunner, Lohbrunner trophy, best plant for woodland garden; V. W. Ahier, VIR and AG trophy, most meritorius plant, commercial or amateur.

* * *

In the children's section, Heather McIlree placed first in 12 years and under. Jillie Boyd took top honors in the 13 to 16 class.

FINE FLOWERS AND SHRUBS can be seen at the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society at Memorial Hall today. More than 1,000 are on display and some are new to this area. Shown above is Rosalind Napier, 13, of 1930 Woodley Road, inspecting rhododendrons.

Man Given Up for Dead Found Alive by Brother

Slept Under Tree; Ate Rose Shoots

By BOB DONAHUE

For the past five days a 35-year-old draftsman has been living a Robinson Crusoe life while lost on an Island in the Georgia Strait.

Given up for dead several days ago, Gerry Brda of Richmond, slept on a bed of boughs beneath a cedar tree and existed on a diet of rose bush shoots and raw oysters.

He did not know there was a family living about a half-mile from where he swam ashore on Prevost Island, two miles east of Salt Spring Island, last Sunday night after falling from his rowboat on a fishing trip.

He was found alive and well late Friday afternoon by his brother, Robert, several days after RCMP and Air-Sea Rescue listed him as "missing and presumed drowned."

●

His eight-foot plywood boat was washed ashore upright on Salt Spring last Monday.

"It's like coming back from the dead," he said today.

Brda's storybook tale began Sunday evening.

Let him tell it:

I started out about 6 p.m. from Long Harbor on Salt Spring Island. I fished for a while until it got dark when I decided to head back.

One of the oarlocks jammed and I stood up in the boat to kick at it when I fell into the water.

I went underwater and began swimming desperately for the surface, but I didn't know which direction to swim. I must have been swimming downward . . . my lungs began hurting . . . it was pitch black.

Then I just relaxed and when I floated to the surface I couldn't find the boat in the darkness.

I saw a dark outline in the distance which I thought was Salt Spring Island.

●

I swam and I swam—I don't know for how long before I reached shore.

It was so cold. I knew I had to get warm so I crawled up on the bank and fell asleep in the warm moss.

I must have slept for two days, but I thought it was only overnight.

When I awoke I was very sore—my lungs were very sore and I have a game leg which I could barely move.

I hobbled further into the bush until I found a friendly cedar tree where I made a bed of boughs and slept the rest of the day and night.

When I awoke on what I thought was the second day (it was the third) I began picking the shoots from a nearby rose bush. I little while later I went back to the shore and opened some oysters.

●

I knew nobody would be searching for me inland, but it was too cold to stay on the beach so I went back into the bush.

Further inland I found an open meadow where there were pools of water to drink from and it was there I discovered abandoned farm buildings.

I saw the airplanes overhead, but they were so high I didn't bother waving at them.

I made a bed in the barn and fell asleep again. My lungs were still hurting and I thought I had pneumonia. I began to wonder if I would make it out alive.

The next morning I heard a motor boat in the bay so I began walking toward the water.

It was my brother Robert and a friend—I was never so glad to see anybody.

Robert Brda continued searching for his brother after the search was called off because he "just couldn't accept that Gerry was lost."

Mr. Brda will spend a few days resting on Salt Spring at the home of a friend before returning to Richmond.

PREMIER BENNETT
. . . holding his own

Bennett Battles Beatles!

Premier Bennett is as popular as the Beatles with the people who paint pictures on the fence around the museum site.

He appears in two panels, the same number as feature the Beatles.

The other panels feature a bewildering variety of subjects. Many are indescribable and a few are indistinguishable.

Religious themes appear in only three of them but ironically they have caused more trouble than any of the other 400 panels in the fence.

The two youths who painted the religious subjects don't claim to be pious. They used a religious theme because it had not appeared in any other panel.

ACCUSATIONS

But they were immediately accused by passers-by, even before they had finished their paintings, of "pushing religion." Then another painter accused them of stealing the panel he had reserved.

Paint was later splashed on their Crucifixion scene. But the fuss was settled this morning. The other painter gave up his claim on their panel. The youths painted over it and started all over again.

Other painters were at work this morning on the fence. A Norfolk House student was painting a folk singer "just for fun." Around the corner from her several younger teenage girls were working on a panel "to dramatize hanging."

SEARCH CONTINUES FOR BODY

The search continues today for Arthur Dube, an Alberni longshoreman, missing and presumed drowned after a dockside accident Thursday.

Dube's fellow workers said Dube went "over the side" when the Liberian freighter Archangel, tied up to the dock, suddenly rolled and dropped half its cargo of lumber into the water.

The 38-year-old man was working on the deck of the ship. Five other longshoremen were injured.

Rear-End Collisions Sent 3 to Hospital

Two rear-end car collisions Friday night sent three persons to hospital with minor injuries.

Two were injured at 9:22 p.m. when a car driven west on Yates by Robert Unwin, 1842 Crescent, was in collision with the car of Daniel Pain, 33, of 2253 Sooke Rd.

Police said Mr. Pain sustained a back injury and his wife, Shirley, 34, complained of a sore neck.

The accident occurred in the 700 block Yates near Douglas.

Fourteen minutes later cars driven by John F. Olsen, 1742 Howroyd, and Larry R. Schultz, 865 Wollaston, were in collision at Quadra and Hillside.

Mrs. Marie Olsen, 29, was treated at hospital for a sore neck.

Victorians can put away their beach bags and bikinis this weekend — although the weather outlook is "quite favorable" no heat wave is in sight.

Temperature at noon today was 54 degrees and, although the sun was out, it was nothing to write back to folks on the prairies about.

The mercury was expected to rise a degree or two this afternoon, with night temperatures dropping to just above freezing, the weatherman said.

Sunday, however, the thermometer may show "pretty close to 60," said the weather office, allowing Victorians to at least get out and cut their lawns.

Most city residents, however, will probably sit tight, basking in spring sunshine and thanking their stars they aren't in Kimberley or Cranbrook where two inches of snow is on the ground with more falling.

NANAIMO MAN DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

A Nanaimo man injured in a car crash up-Island Thursday died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday.

Edward D. Daniel, 39, was fatally injured when his car went over an embankment and into a trailer sales lot nine miles north of Nanaimo.

Force of the impact tore the engine from the late model vehicle.

Daniel was transferred here from Nanaimo General Hospital early Friday morning.

NDP Ready For Election

Strachan Lists Six Reasons Why Socreds Should Be Challenged

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan doesn't want to fight an election this year but is prepared to do so.

"We had always thought that a government with a working majority could provide stable government. But it is now obvious that the Socreds with their majority cannot do so.

"They seem to be psychologically incapable of fulfilling such an important need."

In his annual report to the NDP provincial convention in New Westminster, Mr. Strachan said that during the recent legislative session, Premier Bennett and his cabinet had repeatedly threatened an immediate general election.

"It is little more than two and a half years since the last provincial election was held and, with his effective majority, it would seem that Premier Bennett has no need to call another general election this year."

Mr. Strachan said, however, that the government should be challenged for its "deceptive tax and economic policies."

"These are encouraging inflation by leading to runaway prices and are reducing purchasing power."

Mr. Strachan laid the planks for his party's next provincial election campaign as follows:

- Labor laws must be changed so that worker and consumers as well as shareholders can share the fruits of economic progress.
- New jobs must be found for British Columbia's young people who are entering the labor force from technical and vocational schools, universities and colleges.
- The government will be challenged for its failure to provide adequate health care and coverage for prescription drugs, ambulance services and chronic care.
- The government will be challenged for its "mishandling" of the Columbia River development and for "misleading" the people about these developments.
- The government will be challenged for its "destructive" parks policy, ignoring the growing pollution of air, land and water and selling-out British Columbia's natural resources.
- The government will be challenged on its "inadequate" child welfare policies, its tax policies, its lack of an agricultural policy and its failure to provide adequate help for the municipalities.

Mr. Strachan paid tribute to Arthur Turner, NDP MLA for Vancouver East, who has announced that, after 25 years' service in the legislature, he will not run in the next provincial election.

Viet Medical Aid Stand Affirmed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Delegates to the annual convention of the provincial New Democratic Party have endorsed the stand of national leader T. C. Douglas in favor of supplying medical aid to civilian war victims in north as well as south Viet Nam.

Delegates voted Friday night to reaffirm support for demands made by NDP members of parliament that the Canadian government supply medical aid to the people of Viet Nam without political discrimination.

Also debated but not acted upon was a resolution calling for a UN peace-keeping force in Viet Nam and recognition of Communist China. The resolution was referred back to the executive for amendments and will be further debated later.

Provincial leader Robert Strachan told the convention that the NDP will fight the next provincial election with good heart, good candidates and good policies. He made it clear that he expects Premier Bennett to call an election this summer or fall, although, he said, there was no need for one.

He accused Premier Bennett's government of encouraging inflation and of deliberately bringing in labor-management legislation which he said creates dissent.

Petition Opposes Sale Of Tot Lot

A petition opposing sale of a "tot lot" on Lugrin Place will be considered by Esquimalt council Monday night.

Residents of the area have protested the proposed sale. The lot is close to site of the new Rockheights Elementary School.

Council planned to team up with the school board to provide better playground facilities on the school grounds.

The tot lot is now "just a vacant lot" with few playground facilities for the youngsters, said Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant.

An application from the Salvation Army for a grant equivalent to business licence fees paid for renting rooms at Matson and Sunset Lodges will also come before council.

A public hearing on proposed increase in off-street parking for Esquimalt apartments will be held at 7 p.m. before the meeting.

Flag at Half Mast For Iraqi President

The main flag at the Legislative Buildings is being flown at half mast today in tribute to Iraqui President Abdel Salam Mohammed Aref, who died Wednesday.

The president and 10 of his aides were killed in a helicopter crash in Iraq.

jor role in the CBC's production plans for centennial year which will capitalize on his outstanding producing abilities."

But Mr. Watson said in a statement carried on CBC national news Friday night:

"Unfortunately what the (CBC) management has been saying publicly is not what they have said to me.

"Mr. Walker (general manager H. G. Walker) told me that there would be no future association between me and This Hour Has Seven Days . . . because management had questions about my loyalty to the management and my loyalty to the CBC, to national broadcasting and indeed they had questions about my attitude toward my country.

MOVE TO MONTREAL?

"Mr. Walker said that if he were able to resolve in his mind the doubts that he had about me he would be prepared to consider my involvement in a new program to be produced in Montreal which would involve my being moved to Montreal. But if for any reason it turned out that I was not to be involved in the Montreal project there would be no future permanent relationship between me and the CBC."

In a CBC news interview from Montreal Mr. LaPierre said that Doug Leiterman, executive producer of Seven Days, had called him to say "that he had just been informed by the top management of the CBC that my contract with Seven Days could not be renewed for next year.

"He also informed me that the reasons given were that I lacked loyalty to the top management of the CBC and also that I allowed my personal opinions to show on the program."

Egypt Army Plot Smashed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Egyptian authorities have smashed a plot by a group of army officers to overthrow the regime of UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser, diplomatic sources said today.

They said 20 officers had been arrested in Cairo and would be given secret treason trials because of the Nasser government's reluctance to publicly admit opposition within the army.

The officers were reported to have decided to attempt to overthrow the regime because of opposition to Nasser's Yemen policies.

U.S. Trollers Remain in Port

ASTORIA (AP)—A price dispute kept the Columbia River salmon trolling fleet of more than 100 vessels in port Friday as the salmon season opened.

The president of the West Coast Trollers Association, James Green of Warrenton, declined comment on a report from Westport, Wash., that fishermen had rejected a buyers' offer of 62 cents per pound for large springs, 49 cents for mediums, and 37 cents for smalls.

GETTING BACK TO EARTH WILL BE PROBLEM

Russia Discovers Moon Radiation No Bar

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet Union's Luna X space station shows that radiation in near-lunar space is no bar to manned moon flights, it was announced here today.

Professor Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said flights in the vicinity of the moon should be possible, but the most difficult task will be returning the spacecraft through the earth's atmosphere.

Keldysh, giving a press conference on the Luna X which began orbiting the moon 13 days ago, said it is using chemical power sources.

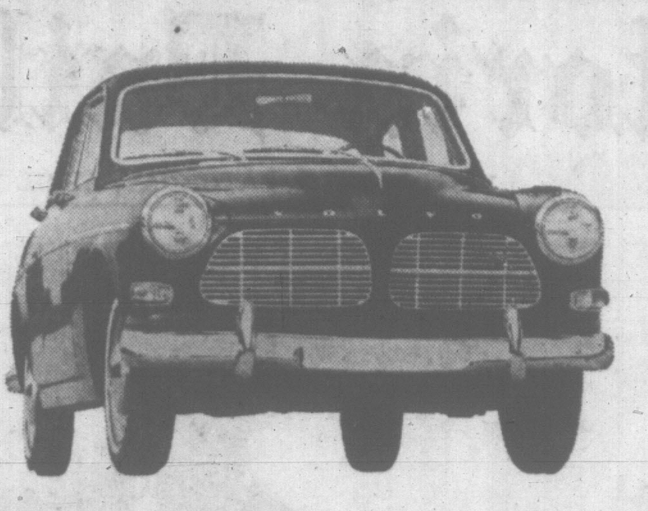
Cosmonauts are studying how to assemble space ships in orbit, he said.

Academician Aleksandr Vinogradov, a noted geochemist, said gamma radiation from the moon's surface is comparable with that of terrestrial granites, but part of this is due not to natural radioactivity but to the interaction of cosmic rays and lunar matter. Such radiation was absent in terrestrial rocks because of the shielding effect of the earth's atmosphere.

The natural radioactivity of lunar rocks was comparable with that of basalt rocks on earth, suggesting that the processes of the formation of the crust of the earth and its planets was similar.

He said Luna X registered 53 hits by meteor particles in five hours and 16 minutes—100 times more than the average in interplanetary space.

Another scientist told the press conference Luna X signalled that the moon had a weak but regular magnetic field.



We Advertise This as the 11-Year Car
Even Our Owners Believe Us

What a manufacturer says about his automobile is one thing. What the owner says about it is often quite another.

We've been saying that Volvo is one tough automobile. As proof, we've been citing the fact that Volvos last an average of 11 years in Sweden where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

A recent survey (honestly conducted) shows that Volvo Canadian owners think this is a well-built car, too. So much so that 94.4% of them recommend Volvos to their friends.

With word-of-mouth like that, you might say, why advertise?

Well, because a lot of people think that quality-built family automobiles tend to be a little stodgy.

Volvos are anything but stodgy. Volvos have won more races and rallies than any compact ever made.

Volvos also happen to run away from every compact in their class and deliver over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

What proof do we offer of that? A test drive.

Arthur Mayse

One day I sketched for you here a futuristic fantasy in which Victoria's suburbs had crept north to mesh with the ticky-tacky subdivisions of Vancouver-employed commuters.

Well, on Thursday evening we took ourselves to the first of four meetings laid on by the capital region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, and came away with the knowledge that the dream, or nightmare, is all too likely to materialize.

The hope of planners, both professional and amateur, is to channel the expected population influx in such a manner that life will remain reasonably pleasant in this demi-paradise.

If they succeed, considerable credit will probably go to a transplanted Welshman by the name of Anthony H. Roberts, whose lilting voice lends a touch of poetry even to sober facts.

★

Mr. Roberts, who directs the Capital Region Planning Board, has broken any number of lances against the dragon of uncontrolled urban sprawl since he came to Victoria from Burnaby five years ago.

He was chief speaker at the meeting, which he shared with a middle-aged audience, a panel of four questioners, and an actual fibre-board panel that towered high over his head.

During introductions and other preliminaries, this last stood faced toward the wall. When the time came for him to commence, Mr. Roberts lugged it around to show Saanich Peninsula in outline. There were no houses, no roads—only a speckle of trees to mark the edge of the watershed.

All was as man first found it; but planner Roberts, a prophet of the future, didn't leave it that way for long.

From a palette which consisted of waxed-paper coffee mugs wedged into holes in a board, he chose a color, then dipped a long-handled brush.

"The Russians," he said, rimming the shoreline expertly with azure, "have their blue belt, and so do we."

True enough; and that's some comfort. But the audience wanted green belts too, and these Mr. Roberts later applied in the shape of parks.

Brown in a peculiarly unpleasant shade was the color of industry, and those areas were even sparser than the parkland.

Downtown Victoria was worth revitalizing, but unlikely to press more than a timid step past its present confines.

The expanse beyond, clear out to Land's End, our prophet of the inevitable left blank except for a slashing north-to-south parkway. Into the open spaces, wave after wave, with a break here for the university and there for a school or a community centre, will surge houses, houses, houses.

★

It should be remembered at this point that, like all good planners, Mr. Roberts is guided by realities and probabilities rather than his own emotions. So please don't blame him.

We're never going to amount to shucks industrially. Our agriculture is a dying duck, since the rise in land prices is going to doom the farmlands. It seems we will remain primarily a government and service town—service in the sense that you serve me and I serve you—with a yearly and lucrative invasion by tourists, if we keep ourselves looking nice.

Another of our present functions will remain unchanged. To borrow apt words from Dr. L. Austin Wright of Deep Cove Property Owners' Association, we will continue as "God's waiting-room" for the elderly retired.

I'm not sure what all this adds up to, but I hope as does Dr. Wright, that space will remain on a peninsula destined to reach the quarter-million population mark by 1981, for a man to paddle his feet in salt water without elbows gouging his ribs.

The unreconstructed will also sympathize with the lady panelist of the quartet, Mrs. Ruby Masters, from the Association of Women Electors.

"I hope," said she, wistfully, "there will be at least a little room for the curly lilies."

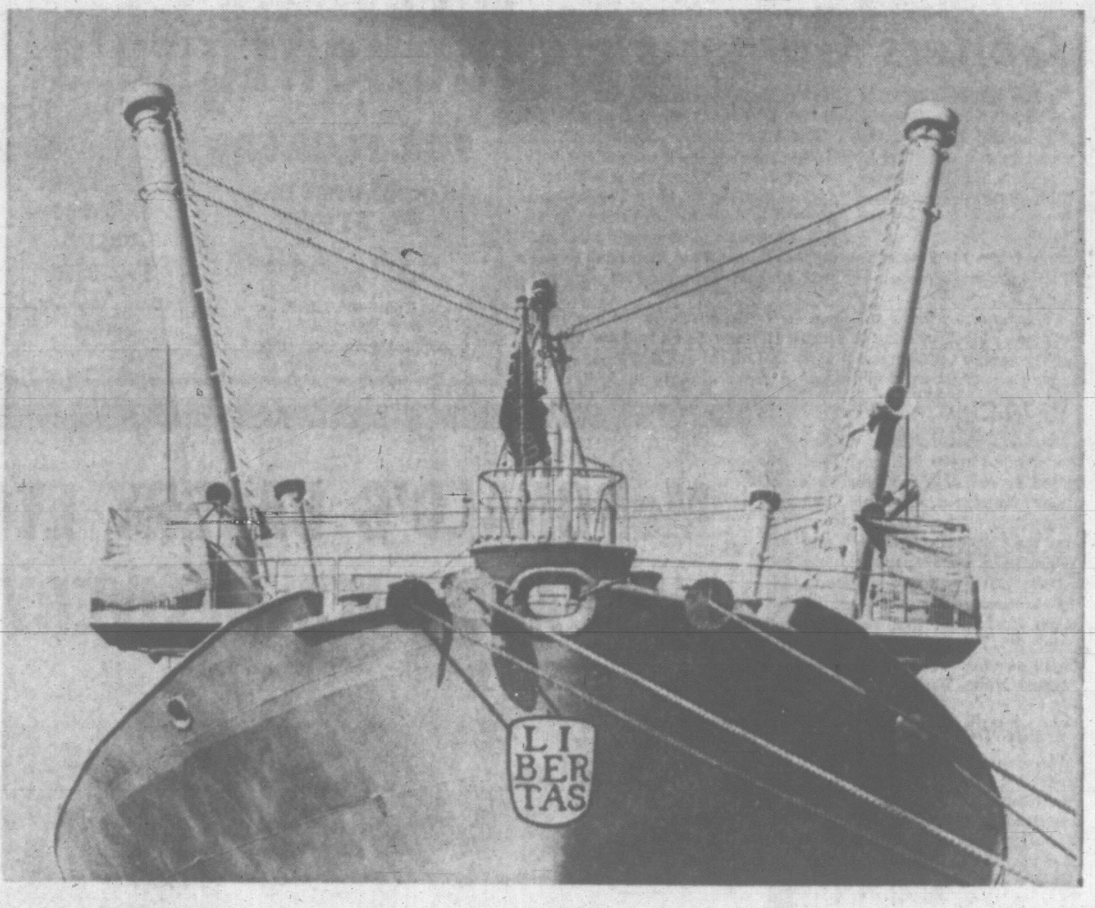
Victoria's Finest Parade on May 8

Victoria's finest will parade before the public at the annual city police inspection May 8, from 2 to 4 p.m., in Memorial Arena.

Members of the force will receive medals and service bars and the police precision drill squad will perform.

Also on the program will be a judo display, an appearance by Vancouver City Police motorcycle drill team, city police youth band and Victoria Girls' Drill Team.

Man Given Up for Dead Found Alive by Brother



GIANT ANTENNAS make excellent feelers for the deep-sea freighter Tiha which has just finished loading lumber at Ogden Point. At least that's how it looks in this unusual shot taken by Times photographer Bill Halkett. The antennas are newly designed Sampson posts which splay outwards instead of standing upright as on most ships. The posts support the ship's derricks. The 12,000-gross-ton Yugoslavian-registered ship sailed for the U.S. east coast with 1,125,000 board feet of lumber.

Slept Under Tree; Ate Rose Shoots

By BOB DONAHUE

For the past five days a 35-year-old draftsman has been living a Robinson Crusoe life while lost on an Island in the Georgia Strait.

Given up for dead several days ago, Gerry Brda of Richmond, slept on a bed of boughs beneath a cedar tree and existed on a diet of rose bush shoots and raw oysters.

He did not know there was a family living about a half-mile from where he swam ashore on Prevost Island, two miles east of Salt Spring Island, last Sunday night after falling from his rowboat on a fishing trip.

He was found alive and well late Friday afternoon by his brother, Robert, several days after RCMP and Air-Sea Rescue listed him as "missing and presumed drowned."

●

His eight-foot plywood boat was washed ashore upright on Salt Spring last Monday.

"It's like coming back from the dead," he said today.

Brda's storybook tale began Sunday evening.

Let him tell it:

I started out about 6 p.m. from Long Harbor on Salt Spring Island. I fished for a while until dark when I decided to head back.

One of the oarlocks jammed and I stood up in the boat to kick at it when I fell into the water.

I went underwater and began swimming desperately for the surface, but I didn't know which direction to swim. I must have been swimming downward . . . my lungs began hurting . . . it was pitch black.

Then I just relaxed and when I floated to the surface I couldn't find the boat in the darkness.

I saw a dark outline in the distance which I thought was Salt Spring Island.

●

I swam and I swam—I don't know for how long before I reached shore.

It was so cold. I knew I had to get warm so I crawled up on the bank and fell asleep in the warm moss.

I must have slept for two days, but I thought it was only overnight.

When I awoke I was very sore—my lungs were very sore and I have a game leg which I could barely move.

I hobbled further into the bush until I found a friendly cedar tree where I made a bed of boughs and slept the rest of the day and night.

When I awoke on what I thought was the second day (it was the third) I began picking the shoots from a nearby rose bush. I little while later I went back to the shore and opened some oysters.

●

I knew nobody would be searching for me inland, but it was too cold to stay on the beach so I went back into the bush.

Further inland I found an open meadow where there were pools of water to drink from and it was there I discovered abandoned farm buildings.

I saw the airplanes overhead, but they were so high I didn't bother waving at them.

I made a bed in the barn and fell asleep again. My lungs were still hurting and I thought I had pneumonia. I began to wonder if I would make it out alive.

The next morning I heard a motor boat in the bay so I began walking toward the water.

It was my brother Robert and a friend—I was never so glad to see anybody.

Robert Brda continued searching for his brother after the search was called off because he "just couldn't accept that Gerry was lost."

Mr. Brda will spend a few days resting on Salt Spring at the home of a friend before returning to Richmond.

On a Tiny Island in the . . .

By TERRY IZZARD

This is a story to bring tea to your eyes.

That's not original but pass the sugar and read on.

It concerns a fairy-tale town called Victoria on a tiny island in the Pacific.

Now the citizens of Victoria were quiet and peace-loving. They worked diligently and steered clear of their big bad brothers on the mainland.

Each day at 5 p.m. the entire populace ceased its daily toil and adjourned to what was known as the "tea shop."

There the goodly womenfolk, teacup in hand, little finger cocked at a 45-degree angle, chatted gaily of the day's social activities.

The menfolk, god-fearing sober men all, discussed the day's events at the office.

In the quaint streets outside, horse-drawn buggies skittered to and fro, bearing young courting couples in the throes of love.

It was an ideal way of life.

Happiness abounded behind the "Crumpet Curtain," a phrase derived from a certain delicacy which was taken with afternoon tea.

But the badmen on the mainland were jealous of the Victorians.

They made jokes about their teas and crumpets. They chided the sober games of cricket and croquet.

Yet no amount of criticism would induce the local populace to change their way of life.

And the latest little funpoking in a press release on British Columbia by the National Geographic Society is no exception.

The release talks tongue in cheek of tea and crumpets, cricket and croquet, horse-drawn carts and the remark: "They're so English it brings tea to your eyes."

HOW TRUE?

Just how true is the fairy tale?

It's pretty accurate," according to Mike Heppell, head of Victoria Visitor's Bureau.

"The people do drink tea, eat crumpets and ride carts," he says. "And why not?"

Mr. England himself, Sam Lane of the Olde England Inn, thinks its just an image.

But it's an image he helps promote with his roast beef and Yorkshire pudding and steak and kidney pie specialties.

The staid old Empress Hotel takes a bow as the tea and crumpet capital of the world.

In the three summer months some 10,000 pots of tea are served between 3 and 5 p.m. along with thousands of crumpets.

"And they're not all tourists," says assistant manager Stan Porter. "Victorians love their afternoon tea."

Alan Macfarlane, the MLA who lives in the heart of "little England"—Oak Bay—sums it up:

"Behind the tourist promoting facade of this tea and crumpet capital are the happiest, hard-working buggy-riders in the world."

DOCTOR SAW YOUTH AFTER CHARGE LAID

A misheard date resulted in an error in the Times report Friday of the preliminary hearing of Francis Wollaston on a charge of capital murder.

The report said Dr. Charles Gregory, a psychiatrist, had examined Wollaston three days before the slaying of 7-year-old Linda Crocker.

In fact, Dr. Gregory's examination was made subsequent to the youth's arrest and at the direction of the juvenile court judge.

It took place Feb. 17, not Feb. 7 as reported.

EXQUISITE SHOW SPOILED FOR WEEKEND GARDENER

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The world's most exquisite and beautiful flowers are on show today at Memorial Hall, 912 Vancouver Street.

But what a difference it would make if the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society gave the show a face-lifting to make it more attractive to the uninitiated.

It would influence more people to take up alpine gardening — one of the most fascinating and rewarding hobbies.

★ ★ ★

But it has become, perhaps not intentionally a show more for connoisseurs of plants, specialists and serious gardeners. It needn't be. It could be developed as one of the most attractive shows in the Pacific Northwest.

These are my views after seeing the show for 15 consecutive years.

I'm not criticizing the exhibits. They are exceptional this year. And the collection of plants is the largest of its kind in North America.

But there is a real need to improve the layout. Some of the individual species should be exhibited singly with suitable backgrounds.

★ ★ ★

The beauty of many is lost to the untrained eye because they are grouped. Alpines as a whole are miniature and require special settings.

New plants should receive special treatment. Some information should be given as to where they are found and the country of origin.

But don't let these few observations deter you from seeing the show. If you are a gardener, don't miss it. It closes at 9 tonight.

It was opened Friday by Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, a keen gardener and an authority on alpine plants.

Judges awarded the Dr. C. T. Hilton trophy for the highest aggregate of points to J. Erickson, winner of the cup in 1959 and 1963. He specializes in growing alpines from seed.

Other winners: Rex Murfitt, Biggerstaff Wilson trophy for most outstanding plant; A. DeMezey, Christiansen cup, rarest plant in show; Flora-Vista Gardens, Will and Marjorie Pemberton trophy, most outstanding rhododendron.

Col. Keith Dixon, Jeffries cup, highest aggregate novice section; Jonas Mynkantas, Alan Brooks Morkill trophy, best native plant; Mrs. W. W. Ritchie, Barton trophy, best primlia polyanthus (amateur); Ed Lohbrunner, Lohbrunner trophy, best plant for woodland garden; V. W. Ahier, VIR and AG trophy, most meritorius plant, commercial or amateur.

★ ★ ★

In the children's section, Heather McIllree placed first in 12 years and under. Jillie Boyd took top honors in the 13 to 16 class.

FINE FLOWERS AND SHRUBS can be seen at the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society at Memorial Hall today. More than 1,000 are on display and some are new to this area. Shown above is Rosalind Napier, 13, of 1930 Woodley Road, inspecting rhododendrons.

Rear-End Collisions Sent 3 to Hospital

Two rear-end car collisions Friday night sent three persons to hospital with minor injuries.

Two were injured at 9:22 p.m. when a car driven west on Yates by Robert Unwin, 1842 Crescent, was in collision with the car of Daniel Pain, 33, of 2253 Sooke Rd.

Police said Mr. Pain sustained a back injury and his wife, Shirley, 34, complained of a sore neck.

The accident occurred in the 700 block Yates near Douglas.

Fourteen minutes later cars driven by John F. Olsen, 1742 Howroyd, and Larry R. Schultz, 865 Wollaston, were in collision at Quadra and Hillside.

Mrs. Marie Olsen, 29, was treated at hospital for a sore neck.

Victorians can put away their beach bags and bikinis this weekend — although the weather outlook is "quite favorable" no heat wave is in sight.

Temperature at noon today was 54 degrees and, although the sun was out, it was nothing to write back to folks on the prairies about.

The mercury was expected to rise a degree or two this afternoon, with night temperatures dropping to just above freezing, the weatherman said.

Sunday, however, the thermometer may show "pretty close to 60," said the weather office, allowing Victorians to at least get out and cut their lawns.

Most city residents, however, will probably sit tight, basking in spring sunshine and thanking their stars they aren't in Kimberley or Cranbrook where two inches of snow is on the ground with more falling.

PREMIER BENNETT
. . . holding his own

Bennett Battles Beatles!

Premier Bennett is as popular as the Beatles with the people who paint pictures on the fence around the museum site.

He appears in two panels, the same number as feature the Beatles.

The other panels feature a bewildering variety of subjects. Many are indescribable and a few are indistinguishable.

Religious themes appear in only three of them but ironically they have caused more trouble than any of the other 400 panels in the fence.

The two youths who painted the religious subjects don't claim to be pious. They used a religious theme because it had not appeared in any other panel.

ACCUSATIONS

But they were immediately accused by passers-by, even before they had finished their paintings, of "pushing religion." Then another painter accused them of stealing the panel he had reserved.

Paint was later splashed on their Crucifixion scene. But the fuss was settled this morning. The other painter gave up his claim on their panel. The youths painted over it and started all over again.

Other painters were at work this morning on the fence. A Norfolk House student was painting a folk singer "just for fun." Around the corner from her several younger teenage girls were working on a panel "to dramatize hanging."

BODY RECOVERED

The body of a longshoreman, killed when a freighter rolled at dockside at Port Alberni Friday, was recovered today from the harbor.

He was identified as Arthur Dube, 38, one of six Port Alberni longshoremen spilled off the deck of the Liberian-registered Archangel.

The freighter, being loaded with lumber, suddenly listed to port, then rolled back to starboard. Its deckload of lumber cascaded into the water and on to the wharf.

NATO Studies Role of France

BONN (AP)—The United States, Britain and West Germany today set up a new body to deal with the French withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's integrated military structure.

It will consist of the No. 2 man in the West German foreign ministry, Karl Carstens, and the U.S. and British ambassadors in Bonn—George C. McGhee and Sir Frank Roberts.

The agreement was announced after two days of talks in the Bonn foreign ministry on the future of French forces in West Germany.

The new body's purpose, the announcement said, will be to continue the exchange of opinions.

"Recommendations of the working group," the three nations announced, "will be the object of further consultations among the NATO powers which received the French memorandum."

The joint statement said the discussion during the last two days had been on "the political, military and legal questions arising out of the announcement of the French government that French troops in the Federal Republic (of West Germany) are to be withdrawn from NATO command."

Other member states had been informed of the talks, it added, and the participants were convinced that they had made a useful contribution to further consultations among NATO members. The statement did not say anything about the conditions under which France should be allowed to keep its troops in West Germany.

By order of President de Gaulle of France, the two French divisions and two air squadrons in southwest West Germany will be withdrawn from joint Allied command July 1. They will no longer have even limited access to American or British nuclear weapons.

The French want to keep their forces, whose strength they put at 72,000 men, under their own command. West Germany dislikes this because it looks like a return to the post-Second World War occupation regime.

RCAF PILOT IN 'MIRACLE' LANDING

Section of Giant Plane Blows Out in Mid-Air

BORDEN, Sask. (CP) — Lady Luck must have been hitching a ride aboard an RCAF four-engined Hercules C-130B transport flying from Edmonton to Rivers, Man., Friday.

The four crewmen of the giant transport walked away from the aircraft after pilot Flt. Lt. John Moore of Rivers nursed his badly damaged machine into a farmer's stubble field about seven miles north of here. Borden is 30 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

Flt. Lt. Moore made the forced landing after a large section of the left side of the fuselage blew out at an altitude of 25,000 feet about 100 miles west of where the aircraft landed.

The section which blew out was about eight feet wide and extended almost half-way round the fuselage. As the section blew out, it destroyed many of the flight controls and engine control linkages in the top of the fuselage. Power on three of the four turbo-prop engines failed and was drastically reduced in the fourth.

However, there was no explosion and fire aboard the aircraft. None of the crew was injured.

The aircraft was on a ferry flight from Namao air base near Edmonton to Rivers when the accident happened.

One of the crew, Cpl. Marc Champagne, also of Rivers, was sitting near the section of the fuselage when it blew out and was nearly sucked out of the cabin by the blast of air rushing out.

The cabin of the transport was pressurized and the crew had to switch to emergency oxygen immediately.

The pilot brought the transport into a mile-long stubble field on the farm of Mike Hunchak in what appeared to be a perfect landing.

SKIDS 1,500 FEET

The aircraft skidded down the field for about 1,500 feet.

The tips of the four propellers were damaged from striking pieces of the section of the fuselage as it flew out of the aircraft.

There was a large hole in the top of the inboard right engine cowling and another between the two engines on the right side.

Pilot Moore made a "wheels up" landing and the underside of the fuselage was torn and wrinkled from the skid down the field.

There were no indications how or when the plane might be removed from the field.

Clive Wensley, who farms about six miles west of the scene, said his young son came running into the house saying an airplane was going to crash.

"I thought he was just fooling," Mr. Wensley said.

The RCAF has convened a board of inquiry to investigate the cause.

IRELAND

Bullets Rake House

BELFAST (Reuters) — Extremists fired bullets into a member of Parliament's home here early today as Northern Ireland braced itself for an explosive weekend during celebrations of the 50th anniversary of the Irish Rebellion.

Armed police patrols launched a massive security clampdown to stop members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army crossing from the Irish Republic into Northern Ireland, part of the United Kingdom.

Authorities fear violence from IRA forces—pledged to uniting divided Ireland—during a big republican parade here Sunday commemorating the rebellion, which led to southern independence from Britain.

South of the border, Irish Republican police investigated a mysterious explosion that rocked the village of Inistioge in south Kilkenny.

The explosion and five shots were heard while a dance was being held in the town hall following an Easter Rising commemoration parade.

Two bullets shattered windows in the Belfast home of John M'Quade, a member of Northern Ireland's ruling Unionist party whose policy is to keep the province under British rule. M'Quade and his wife were not injured.

Spence Slams Press

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes Mr. Justice Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada as saying that Gerda Munsinger has not been invited to appear before a commission investigating allegations that she was involved with ministers of the Diefenbaker government in a manner creating a security risk.

The newspaper quotes him in an Ottawa story; "We have not in any way attempted to bring Mrs. Munsinger to Canada."

The commissioner was replying to a question based on a rumor that Mrs. Munsinger, whose home is in Munich, West Germany, was to arrive in Canada April 28, the newspaper continued.

"When asked about the rumor, Mr. Justice Spence said he was prepared to answer that no attempt had been made to bring Mrs. Munsinger to Canada, but he went on to suggest that it was no business of the reporter who would or would not be a witness at the inquiry, the Globe said.

"I am becoming increasingly concerned that everybody except the man appointed to do it seems to want to run this inquiry," Mr. Spence said.

The first public hearing of the inquiry will be held Monday but an inquiry spokesman told the Globe Friday the doors may not be open for long.

Rhodesia Drops Bid for Beira Oil

SALISBURY (CP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today the tanker Ioanna V's 18,000-ton oil cargo will not be pumped into Rhodesia because he does not want to aggravate the difficulties of Portugal and the ship's Greek crew.

In a broadcast, Smith also said Rhodesia will cut all its remaining diplomatic ties with Britain.

The Ioanna V is anchored at Beira in Portuguese Mozambique and the British government has been putting pressure on the Portuguese government to prevent movement of her oil through the pipeline to Rhodesia.

The Beira port authorities put her under the control of Portugal last Thursday after both the Panamanian and Greek governments revoked her registration.

The broadcast was Smith's first formal comment since the arrival of the Ioanna V at Beira 11 days ago raised the Rhodesian independence crisis to a new peak.

Smith admitted that oil aboard the tanker was meant for Rhodesia.

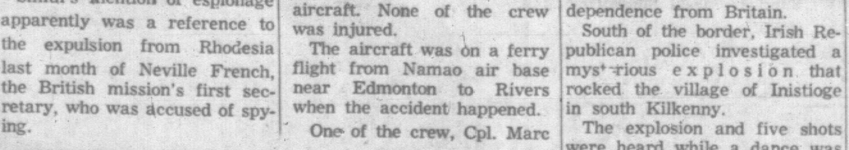
Smith said last week's United Nations Security Council resolution authorizing Britain to use force to halt tankers believed carrying oil for Rhodesia is not valid because two permanent council members—France and the Soviet Union — had abstained from voting.

Before the resolution, a Royal Navy boarding party had tried unsuccessfully to persuade the Ioanna V's captain from docking at Biera.

"By referring the oil embargo to the United Nations, Britain had unwittingly in the process acknowledged Rhodesia's independence," Smith said, adding that Britain's behavior at the United Nations and a "blatant case of espionage" by a member of the British mission in Salisbury had forced his government to cut remaining diplomatic ties with Britain.

The staff of Rhodesia House in London will be recalled and the British mission in Salisbury will be closed, he said. The decision had been taken reluctantly because the two missions could have led to something constructive in the future, he added, not elaborating.

Smith's mention of espionage apparently was a reference to the expulsion from Rhodesia last month of Neville French, the British mission's first secretary, who was accused of spying.



Them Rhodesian oil ships hev a tiger in their hold.

MID-AUGUST ELECTION IN VIET NAM LIKELY

SAIGON (CP)—South Viet Nam's military government has tentatively agreed to hold general elections for a civilian administration in mid-August, usually reliable sources said today.

The agreement in principle was reported to have been reached in private talks between Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and delegates from the national political congress.

This date would be about a month earlier than the deadline set in a government decree signed two days ago in the face of mounting Buddhist pressure. The decree fixed a time limit of three to five months.

Saigon was quiet today after Friday's announcement that the Buddhist church was calling off its agitation in view of the government concessions.

But in Da Nang, about 3,000 demonstrators took to the streets and demanded that Ky's military government give way to civilian rule in South Viet Nam.

The Spy Who Came Out For the Gold

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says reports are flooding Eastern Canada that a "co-operative spy" involved with Russian embassy officials at the same time as George Victor Spencer has emerged from obscurity to sell his story.

The afternoon newspaper, in a front page story, said Friday it is understood that the man—never publicly named—has run a private business for more than a year in a small community in northern British Columbia.

It says the man was reported to be in Toronto negotiating with newspaper syndicates and television for his story.

(Cecil Smith, director of information for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said in Toronto Friday the CBC interviewed the man in Vancouver and brought some film back to Toronto, but it did not fly the man himself to Toronto.)

The spy case came to light last May when two Soviet embassy officials in Ottawa were expelled from Canada.

At the time, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons two Canadians were involved in a spy ring that led to the deportations.

One was later identified as Spencer, a 61-year-old former postal clerk found dead last week in his Vancouver home. An inquest ruled his death natural.

The Sun says the other was the man now believed in Toronto.

The man was described by Prime Minister Pearson as a naturalized Canadian who got in touch with RCMP immediately after the Russians approached him.

Mr. Pearson described the "co-operative spy" as conscientious and patriotic and said he had acted as an informant for several months.

Big Payoff on Quinella Features Opening Day

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quick Return eased home ahead of Scottsdale Lad to win the feature "Community Chest" seventh race at Exhibition Park Friday.

A crowd of 5,882 turned out in bright sunshine for the first day of the season and wagered a total of $173,026.

Quick Return paid $19.10 on the nose in winning the seventh over a distance of six furlongs in 1:13 1-5.

In the first race Social Wise teamed with Sir Blue for a quinella payoff of $438.70. Social Wise paid a whopping $98.30 to win.

NDP IN B.C. AGAIN FACES MONEY CRISIS

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—The B.C. New Democratic Party has once again found itself in a precarious financial predicament.

"It's a case of the poor getting poorer," Clive Lytle, the party's provincial organizer, said here Friday. "We didn't even have the money to prepare the materials to raise some money."

Mr. Lytle told delegates to the party's annual convention it is evident that stabilization of party finances is a prerequisite to building an effective organization throughout the province.

The party's financial statement shows assets of $30,619 for 1965 and liabilities of $35,480 for a deficit of $4,861.

Kennedys Say Castro In Trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem.—Mass.) said Wednesday there is "growing disenchantment" in Cuba with Fidel Castro's regime.

And his brother, Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem.—N.Y.), urged that the United States be ready to send Cuban refugees back to their homeland "when the time comes."

The Kennedys testified at a hearing here of the U.S. Senate judiciary subcommittee on refugees and escapees.

Edward Kennedy said Premier Casro's troubles are disclosed in recent purges, defections and economic difficulties.

He said the U.S. airlift since Dec. 1 has brought more than 14,000 Cubans to join the more than 250,000 refugees who have fled to the United States since 1959. The rate now is 4,000 a month, he said.

Robert Kennedy estimated that at the present rate it would take almost 20 years to accommodate all the Cubans who want to come to the U.S.

But, he said, the flow could be reversed if there were a change in the Cuban government.

"We should be preparing now to facilitate that process for those who want to return when the time comes," Robert said.

6 Months Jail For Stealing Measuring Tapes

A man who stole two measuring tapes worth $15 from a downtown department store Friday received a six-month jail sentence.

Edison Dixon, Drake Hotel, pleaded guilty in central court today to theft under $50.

He told police he had been under the influence of alcohol for the past week.

Court was told he had a criminal record dating back to 1938 which included three theft convictions in the past two years.
